A REAL BARGAIN AT $16,000.

An exceptionally well built, beautiful ten-room house, with all modern improvements, at Brentwood, Long Island, within 25c commutation fare to New York City. Also garage, chicken house, large garden of ground, an abundance of shade trees. A $500 tennis court and a beautiful lawn; within one hundred yards of a very attractive Golf Course, and only two blocks from the Railroad Station, and an equal distance from an all-year-round Inn. House alone could not be built now for less than $25,000. Will bear close investigation. Reason for selling—too large for my present family. Why pay rent with such an opportunity to buy a REAL HOME?

Address: E. H. McWHORTER, Owner,
WILSON BUILDING, 33D ST. & BROADWAY, NEW YORK.

AN OPPORTUNITY TO GET A FINE HOME CHEAP.

My family, which was a large one, has reduced itself to my wife, myself and the servants. I have bought a smaller property in my immediate vicinity which meets my present requirements and desire to sell my large home. To do so quickly, I am offering it at a fraction of its real value to some one of culture and refinement who would be acceptable to my neighbors and myself. The grounds, which include an excellent tennis court, were beautifully landscaped by a prominent architect several years ago and elaborately planted with flowers and shrubs. Five acres about. The house is a gem, in absolutely perfect condition from cellar to attic. The purchaser could move in on 24 hours' notice and avoid the many annoyances and expense incident to occupying a new house. The first floor consists of a large veranda facing east, a panelled living room 33 ft. long with immense inglenook fireplace, a spacious dining room, a tiled breakfast room, two butler's pantries and kitchen. Five master's bedrooms, one 15 x 30 ft. with open fireplace, and two very large tiled bathrooms comprise the second floor. The third floor has a pool and billiard room, extensive servants' quarters and servants' bath. The location is ideal, within five minutes' walk of the express station, with fine commuting service to New York City. The neighborhood is exclusively residential and occupied by an unusually fine class of people. Elevation over 900 ft. All city conveniences for comfortable living in the country prevail. I will sell for $18,000 complete, $10,000 of which can remain on first mortgage, and easy terms can be arranged for the balance. Complete details, including plans and several pictures, can be obtained from the writer by addressing P. O. Box 376, City Hall Station, New York City.

GOVERNOR AVERTS MILK STRIKE BY APPEAL TO MEN

HIS ELOQUENCE TURNS TIDE

Employes Accept Compromise Offer Which They Previously Had Rejected.

WINS AFTER LEADERS FAIL

Drivers Will Get $35 a Week and 2 Per Cent. of Collections Under Agreement.

The threatened strike of milk wagon drivers, which would have caused a suspension of the delivery of milk in this city and vicinity, beginning this morning, was averted last night when, after an earnest personal appeal by Governor Alfred E. Smith at the Manhattan Casino, 155th Street and Eighth Avenue, approximately 9,000 members of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Drivers voted by acclamation to accept the compromise offer of the milk distributers of $35 a week and 2 per cent. commission on collection. They had asked $50 a week.

Earlier in the day the Governor, who has been in touch with the situation since it became acute Wednesday, sent telegrams to the distributers and the drivers urging that their differences be submitted to arbitration. He pointed out that any interruption in the city's milk supply would be a public calamity.

The distributers, through the New York Milk Conference Board, agreed to the proposal. They suggested each side appoint two representatives and Governor Smith three others to constitute the arbitration board. The drivers would not agree and went ahead with plans for a strike vote.

The drivers met at 6 o'clock and the auditorium of the Manhattan Casino was packed with drivers, clerks, and other milk employes. There were 500 from Newark, 300 from Passaic, 400 from Jersey City, 300 from Westchester, and the remainder from Local 584, which has its headquarters at 315 West Forty-second Street.

Extreme disorder prevailed at the beginning of the meeting, and it was twenty minutes before Michael Cashal, First Vice President of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Drivers, who presided, could get the assemblage down to business.

Men Favor a Strike.

It was evident the men had determined to vote for an immediate strike. They had delayed a strike vote twenty-four hours, hoping the distributers would make further concessions. Mr. Cashal urged the men not to take the initiative in a conflict that would cause them trouble. He was frequently interrupted. He argued that in case of a strike, every city department and all social and fraternal organizations would be asked to establish milk stations and make delivery of milk.

The speaker made no progress with the men, who interrupted him with shouts and questions. At this stage he was called from the platform to the telephone to talk with Governor Smith, to whom he explained that a strike appeared certain from the attitude of the men. The Governor asked that the vote be postponed until he could arrive.

When Mr. Cashal announced that Governor Smith would reach the Casino in twenty minutes, there was prolonged applause. He then continued to urge the men to accept the offered compromise.

"If you decide to arbitrate," he said, "you will have to arbitrate from the $33 wage, plus 1 per cent. on all collections, instead of the $35 wage, plus 2 per cent."

Upon his arrival, Governor Smith conferred with Mr. Cashal several minutes before making his way to the stage. He was not recognized at first, and had to elbow his way through the crowd. When it became known that the Governor was in the hall the audience broke into prolonged cheering. There were shrill cries of "Hello, Al!" "How is Al?" and "Hello, Governor!"

Arrives at Psychological Moment.

The Governor had arrived at the psychological moment. He seemed to realize the crowd were with him, and that it would not be hard to convince them they would be wrong in declaring a strike. Acknowledging the hearty greeting, he doffed his hat and waved it.

Mr. Cashal introduced the Governor, saying: "He is a man for you, and I know one when I see him, but you men will have to be right, for he is right."

After the applause had subsided the Governor made a short but effective address.

"I know this city as well as any man in it does," he said. "It doesn't seem so long ago to me when I worked in the Fulton Fish Market, and there are many of the old fnen now there who can remember when I used to work for Feeney & Baker.

"When I went to Albany on the first of January, I wanted to be right to the laboring men, and as a consequence I can say to you that every plank in my labor platform and in my inaugural address was written in by members of the

Germany Stops Rail Travel for Ten Days to Save Coal

BERLIN, Nov. 2, (Associated Press.)—A ten-day cessation of railway passenger traffic is the Government's latest effort to prevent a national catastrophe owing to lack of coal and to safeguard the transportation of potatoes before the first frost falls. The only exception in the stoppage of passenger services will be the Berlin suburban traffic, which will suffer only to the extent that trains will cease running at 11 o'clock at night.

It has been proposed that passenger coaches be attached to freight trains during the embargo period, which is to be followed by an era of further restrictions on travel until the situation has improved sufficently to warrant limited services.

The transportation situation thus created by the Government is unparalleled, even considering the critical mobilization days at the outbreak of the war. The predicament is largely the result of protracted strikes in the railway repair shops which have prevented the production of necessary rolling stock.

DRAFT OFFICIAL CLEARS UNTERMYER

Declares He Sought No Different Classification Because of Owning a Farm.

NEVER MADE AN APPEAL

His Case Went to Higher Boards Under the Law—War Department Asked for Papers.

Irwin Untermyer, candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court on the Tammany ticket, last night made public a statement by George Lee Carr, military clerk of local Board 126, who took Mr. Untermyer's declaration under the selective draft law. Mr. Carr in his statement unqualifiedly denied that Mr. Untermyer, as has been insinuated, sought exemption from military duty or a deferred classification.

The statement was inclosed in a letter sent late last night to Bainbridge Colby, Chairman of the Non-Partisan Judiciary Committee, which is conducting the campaign for the anti-Tammany candidates for judiciary offices. The letter, which follows one of Saturday offering to produce his questionnaire for inspection by a representative of Mr. Colby, provided the War Department would give its consent to that procedure, was written by Mr. Untermyer before he had received a letter from Mr. Colby declining to accept the offer of the Tammany candidate. This letter was made public by Mr. Colby last night.

Mr. Untermyer's letter follows:

"New York, Nov. 2, 1919.

"Bainbridge Colby, Esquire, 32 Nassau Street, New York City:

"It is now nearly 11 o'clock at night, and I have remained in constant communication with my headquarters all day, in order to learn from you the arrangement which you might desire to make for the inspection of my questionnaire.

"I have just learned over the telephone of your open letter to the newspapers in which you decline, as I expected you would, to accept my offer to produce my questionnaire for public inspection. You have chosen instead to repeat your malicious innuendos and insinuations, preferring them to the truth. You have falsely suggested that I was attempting to kill time and for that reason was making no effort to procure an inspection of my questionnaire.

"I had anticipated some such unfair charge from you, and in order to forestall it and to make the truth public at the same time that I wrote you offering an inspection of my questionnaire, I made arrangements to have my representative at Washington take up the matter. He has interviewed War Department officials today in an effort to procure the questionnaire on a Sunday. He will continue his efforts early tomorrow and will then make upon the proper authorities due demand for that document so that the contents may be made public. This action on my part shows that I desire to have the truth made public while your action in refusing my offer to inspect my questionnaire shows that you do not wish the truth, but prefer to resort, as you have continuously resorted, to false and malicious innuendoes and slanderous suggestions.

"You have ignored my denials. You have refused my offer. You do not retract your libelous misstatements. You do not attempt to justify them. You have neither the honesty to speak the truth nor the courage to correct a falsehood. Mere words will not be received by any man or woman as a substitute for fair dealing.

"Although you have not produced a single item of evidence to substantiate any of the charges made by you, I enclose herewith, pending the result of my efforts to obtain an inspection of my questionnaire a copy of a letter from the military clerk of Local Board 126, who states the facts as represented by me. This is the only evidence at present available in this city on this point.

"Such men as you, always ready with a word of slander and never with a word of truth, are a menace to every honest man.

"Yours truly,

"IRWIN UNTERMYER."

Mr. Carr's letter to Mr. Untermyer follows:

"New York, Nov. 1, 1919.

"Mr. Irwin Untermyer, 120 Broadway, New York City:

"My Dear Mr. Untermyer—The false and unfair statements that are being

ROCKEFELLER GIVES TEN MILLIONS MORE TO FIGHT DISEASE

Makes Addition to Endowment Fund of Institute for Medical Research.

TO MEET INCREASED COSTS

Has Donated Total of $27,000,000 to Provide for the Continuance of Its Work.

GREAT SUMS IN OTHER GIFTS

Aggregate of Benefactions Is Now Placed at Nearly Half a Billion Dollars.

The Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research announced yesterday that John D. Rockefeller had added $10,000,000 to his previous gifts to that institution, making its total endowment more than $27,000,000. This makes $30,000,000 recently given by Mr. Rockefeller to fight disease, a gift of $20,000,000 to the General Education Board to spread medical education having been announced a few weeks ago.

Mr. Rockefeller's gifts to the four largest institutions founded by him, according to figures obtained from Dr. Starr J. Murphy, one of his principal advisers in his benefactions, are as follows:

Rockefeller Foundation	$125,000,000
General Education Board	50,000,000
University of Chicago	34,000,000
Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research	27,000,000
Total	$239,000,000

Many smaller sums probably would bring the total of his gifts to the neighborhood of half a billion dollars. Dr. Frederick Taylor Gates, Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Rockefeller Institute and for years one of the closest associates of Mr. Rockefeller, said:

"His gifts would total several hundred million. I have never kept an accurate record."

Dr. Gates was asked if the total would not be somewhere between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000. He said:

"I think that would be putting it very low."

Dr. Murphy said no record had been kept of Mr. Rockefeller's gifts for various public causes, and that he would not feel safe in making a guess at the total.

Purpose of the Gift.

The addition of $10,000,000 to the endowment will not result in any considerable extension of the work of the institute. During the war the staff, laboratories, and hospital were turned over to war service, especially the production of serums and work on the treatment of wounds and diseases most frequent among soldiers. Since then the institute has returned to the wide field of research in which it was engaged before the war, and recently the cost of its work has exceeded the income from its endowment, making it necessary either to increase its capital or to curtail its activities.

In announcing the new gift, the institute issued a publication on its activities. Explaining the organization and scope of the work, the publication says:

"The hospital, of which Dr. Rufus Cole is director, was opened in 1910. It has a capacity of sixty patients, who are selected for admission because they are suffering from diseases which have been chosen for observation and study.

"The equipment includes laboratories of bacteriology, pathology, physiology, and chemistry, as well as clinical facilities, so that the staff is enabled to study the clinical aspects of the disease under conditions as near as possible to laboratory standards of exactness and efficiency, and is also able to engage with a minimum waste of energy in such laboratory researches as it may be desirable to correlate with the clinical studies. Only graduate nurses are employed in the hospital, and a training school for nurses is not maintained.

"The Department of Animal Pathology, of which Dr. Theobald Smith is director, was organized in 1916, and is devoted primarily to the study of the diseases of animals which are of great economic importance, and from which light of fundamental significance may be thrown upon the problems of human pathology.

Engaged in Research Only.

"The three departments of the institute are organized for research only. Under normal conditions, they give no instruction to students, and thus the institute absolves its staff from the necessity of devoting time and energy to teaching, or to the consideration of subjects and problems chosen in the student's interest rather than because of their value and promise for the advancement of science.

"It has been the theory of the institute's organization that it can best serve medical science by devoting a great deal of attention to the investigation of fundamental biological, physical, and chemical subjects. Chemical laboratories in which this aspect of science, as well as those of direct clinical importance, constantly have been under investigation, and laboratories in which problems of general biological interest were chosen, have largely occupied a number of members of the staff and used a considerable share of the institute's annual budget. While the larger

British Labor Winning in Municipal Elections

LONDON, Nov. 2.—The bulk of the results of the municipal elections for Town Councils in the provinces and for Borough Councils in London will not be known until Monday. Those already announced, however, indicate a great labor triumph.

The labor candidates' successes are equally striking in London and the provinces, and are largely at the expense of the Progressives.

THIEVES ROB HOME OF MRS. GAYNOR

Family Silver Worth $2,000 Stolen from Widow of Former Mayor.

NEW TRICK BY CRIMINALS

Another robbery in the lower Fifth Avenue section, in the home of Mrs. William J. Gaynor, widow of the Mayor, at 9 West Ninth Street, was reported to the police yesterday by her son, Rufus Gaynor. Burglars got into the house at some hour between Saturday night and yesterday morning and carried away all of the family silverware, except two large pieces, from the dining room and closets in the basement. The lock on the street door at the basement entrance was picked open and double locks on the hall door of the dining room were forced and broken.

Among the articles stolen was a tea set that had been a gift from the late Stewart L. Woodford, Minister to Spain, which he presented to Mr. Gaynor many years ago. The other plate taken was marked or engraved with initials that cannot be obliterated without destroying the articles. The total loss is estimated at $2,000.

The burglars worked boldly with electric lights ablaze, while they selected and bundled the silver, and these lights were still burning when a maid entered the basement rooms in the morning. Several large pieces of silver had been taken from a cabinet and had been left on a table. Mrs. Gaynor said she had been awakened after midnight Saturday, but the noise which had disturbed her appeared to be in the street, and she did not investigate it.

A new form of robbery of business vehicles has been called to the attention of the police by the Herman Cloak Company at 1,33 Broadway.

"On Thursday afternoon," said the manager of the firm, "we made a shipment of six large packages, valued at several thousand dollars, to John Wanamaker. While our truckman was putting these goods in the vehicle he was asked by a stranger if he would do a job for him on the way downtown. The truckman was given fictitious name and address in the Masonic Temple Building, at Twenty-third Street and Sixth Avenue, and while he was in the building and endeavoring to find the address the truck and merchandise disappeared. The police recovered the truck, but the goods have not been found."

John De Lano, 41 years old, of 58 West Eighth Street, Manhattan, was arraigned yesterday in the Williamsburg Court on a charge of grand larceny by Herman Goldstein, manager of the Williamsburg Chemical Works at Morgan and Ten Eyck Streets, which, he said, had been robbed of dyestuffs valued at $10,000. Magistrate Dodd held the prisoner in $1,000 bail for examination on Nov. 6, and the thefts of dyestuffs, collusion between other employe, found a can on the floor bearing the name of Goldstein gave the card to Detectives De Guido and Hemmendinger, suggesting that it might be a clue. In rooms in the West Eighth Street house were found dyestuffs valued at $1,000, the detectives say, and the occupants were De Lano and Angelo Cardero, 28 years old. The latter was held at the Stagg Street station, Brooklyn, on a charge of using the mails to defraud, made by Post Office Inspector Schaffer.

The detectives said that in their search of the rooms they had found aggregating $12,8 of the two prisoners addressed and stamped for mailing, with 500 money orders notices to people all over the country that express packages consigned would be forwarded on remittance of sums varying from $2 to $5.

"The circulars were inclosed with return envelopes, bearing the name and address of an express company," said one of the detectives. "These men had been operating under the names of the Mediterranean, Italian and European express companies, and the Federal authorities had been searching some time for the swindlers. The fake express business had brought money from thousands of victims, according to the money orders we found and the suspected previous remittances received."

A representative of Bloomingdale Brothers made charges of suspicion of grand larceny against Max Babitsky, 19, of 2 East 114th Street, and Harry Shapkin, 18, of 157 East 113th Street, entry clerks, when they were arraigned yesterday in Yorkville Court. Louis Shapiro, 19, of 163 East 103d Street and Charles Dobres, 18, of 225 East Ninety-eighth Street were arraigned on the charges of suspicion of receiving stolen goods, each was held in bail of $1,000, for examination tomorrow. Store Detective Cohan Bonser told the court that the firm of Bloomingdale Brothers had been robbed of $4,000 in C. O. D. packages and shipments.

Will Watch Developments Before Taking Steps to Have Mines Resume.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—All information obtainable from the bituminous coal fields of the United States, in which more than 400,000 members of the United Mine Workers of America have been ordered out on strike, indicated that nothing could check the momentum of the walkout, despite the temporary restraining order issued Friday in Indianapolis. Deprived of the directing hands of its leaders, as a result of the injunction, the members of the union were prepared to show on the first full working day since the strike order became effective, their ability to halt the production of soft coal throughout the nation.

The operators, so far as available reports show, have made no plans to combat the strike, notwithstanding the fact that troops, both Federal and State, have been sent, in several instances, to localities from which they might beat guard coal properties in the event of violent efforts to prevent non-union men from taking the places of strikers. On the other hand, there has been no reported picketing activity by members of the unions. Both operators and strikers apparently have decided to await developments before either takes a further definite step in the controversy.

Reports from railroad centres showed that seizure of coal in transit, as ordered by the Federal Government, had begun. Hundreds of coal-laden cars in transit were taken over by Regional Directors of the Fuel Administration and were sidetracked to await possible distribution under the Administration's priority schedule.

Much interest was expressed by operators' representatives as to the manner in which the restraining order would be heeded by union leaders and their followers tomorrow. No intimation was made that anything but strict obedience to the terms of the writ would be offered by the heads of the union. Rather was the conjecture based upon what orders, if any, that might cancel strike arrangements would be issued, and whether the men themselves would obey such orders, in event of their issuance. Some union district chairmen have publicly stated that the strike movement has gone too far to be influenced by writs or injunctions, and insist that the walkout will prevail in spite of court proceedings. Operators were not inclined to dispute that assertion or the claims advanced by the unions as to the number of men who obeyed the strike order Friday night.

In taking stock of the situation today, so far as production is concerned, operators pointed to the practically normal production in the non-union mine fields of West Virginia and Pennsylvania, there being about 150,000 non-union miners, broadly speaking, in these States. West Virginia operators maintained that in that State soft coal production was at 80 per cent. of normal. About 50 per cent. of Kentucky's 40,000 union miners also were at work yesterday under contracts.

In Alabama, where the miners' chiefs said 23,000 of the 26,000 miners had walked out, operators, while not denying the figures, pointed to some of the larger mines of that State as still in operation. These claims left some confusion which the operators thought would be dispelled tomorrow.

In Utah another confusing situation prevailed. The majority of miners remained at work, it was reported, because of conflicting statements that the strike was off and that it was not off. At least 1,000, however, struck, it appeared.

Colorado's mining districts were largely closed down, although the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company reported five mines in operation.

Elsewhere, especially in the bituminous fields of Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois, the strike apparently was fully effective. The mines generally were closed, except for such men as the union permitted to remain to care for machinery and other equipment.

Regulars Go to Wyoming, Utah and New Mexico To Be Ready to Protect the Miners At Work

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—The War Department today put at the disposal of Major Gen. Leonard Wood, commanding the Central Department, the 14th Cavalry, at Fort Sam Houston, for use, if necessary, in Colorado in connection with the strike of soft coal miners.

Federal troops are already in West Virginia, Wyoming, and Tennessee for emergency use, and General Wood is ready to dispatch further Regular Army men to any dangerous points upon requests from civil authorities for Federal aid.

A detachment of Federal cavalry from Fort D. A. Russell has reached Rock Springs, Wyo., and begun patrolling the coal fields. Governor Carey requested troops yesterday.

The first squadron of the 8th Cavalry left El Paso, Tex., today for Gallup, N. M., for duty in connection with the strike, at the request of Governor Larrasolo.

One company of the 32d Infantry, armed with machine guns, left Camp Kearny, Cal., for the Utah coal fields today, and other troops were ready to leave on short notice. Two companies of coast artillery at San Francisco were ordered ready for movement.

State troops to the number of 1,000 or more have been mobilized on orders in Colorado, Alabama, and other coal producing States, the authorities holding them ready for calls for protection of miners and mine properties.

Oklahoma has mobilized its National Guard troops, which are being distributed through the coal district.

Socialist Ministers' Influence on Labor—Remarkable Restoration of Railroads.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 1.—Belgium has suffered terribly, but her people, who have undergone so many wars and oppressions and survived them by virtue of hard work, have turned once more to that ancient prescription and are finding again that it answers.

Since the armistice the country has been governed by a National Coalition Ministry. The Cabinet is based on a very complicated balance of forces, for not only are all three parties—Catholics, Liberals and Socialists—represented in it, but there also has to be a balance between the Walloons and Flemings, and another between the statesmen who served their country in exile under the Government at Havre and those who served it at home under the rigors and horrors of the German occupation.

An administration so formed must have obvious defects; yet on the whole it has justified itself. Three Socialist Ministers—Vanderveide, Anseele, and Wauters—have played an essential part in the discouraging strike tendencies among the workers and keeping constructive ideals before their eyes, while the country has had the services of first-rate administrators like M. Renkin, Minister of Railways, and M. Jaspar, Minister of Economic Affairs.

Renkin's work has in some ways been the most indispensable of all; for in Belgium, as in other civilized countries, railways are arteries of economic life, and without the restoration of these few industries can revive. The activity of her railways today is one of the definite economic advantages which Belgium has at the moment over both Germany and France.

Remarkable Railway Progress.

When I asked Mr. Renkin how it was done, he replied: "Par vaillance," which may be Englished "By sticking to it." The difficulties were enormous. At the time of the armistice the Belgian State Railways had only 500 locomotives, many of them needing repairs. At the beginning of October M. Renkin was every day running 2,000 passenger trains and moving 178,000 tons of freight.

On main lines like that between Brussels and Antwerp the passenger service reaches about three-quarters of the prewar number of trains; elsewhere three-fifths or one-half. The moving of freight requires a good organization, for there are only 74,000 cars, of which no less than one-sixth are undergoing repairs. Before the war, with 92,000 cars and only 5 per cent. ordinarily under repair, the Belgian State Railways moved from 250,000 to 260,000 tons.

These results are the more remarkable when it is realised that the whole railway system west and south of a line drawn through Alost to the German frontier was completely wrecked by the retiring enemy. Every station and every bridge was blown up, even bridges on unfinished lines that had never been used.

Huge craters were made in the embankments and at level crossings, and in particular every smallest detail of the signaling system was destroyed. Yet today the entire Belgian railway system is working except some fifty unimportant kilometers. Temporary

FEDERATION MENACE IN PENNSYLVANIA

State Labor Body Appeals to Palmer and Sproul for Free Press and Free Assembly.

WILL ACT UNLESS HEEDED

Executive Board Authorized to Call Out 500,000 Members if They Think Best.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Nov. 2.—The Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, at the close of an emergency convention called by President James P. Maurer to "devise means of restoring civil liberty in Western Pennsylvania," by a virtually unanimous vote of the 506 delegates in attendance here today, adopted a resolution calling on Governor William C. Sproul and Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer of the United States Government to "restore free speech, free press and freedom of assembled in Pennsylvania."

President Maurer and the Executive Council of the federation are authorized to call a general strike on the failure of the State and National Governments to remedy the condition that exists. The strike, if called, will involve more than 500,000 members of the American Federation of Labor in Pennsylvania. The petition states that executive autocracy and judicial anarchy exist in Western Pennsylvania and that the rights of the people are being trampled underfoot.

The petition is addressed to Governor Sproul and Attorney General Palmer, the resolution reading, in part, as follows:

Whereas, As the result of an apparent conspiracy on the part of organized capital, through pressure on various public officials and the use of a subservient press, a crisis is being created in the State of Pennsylvania, as a result of the denial to the people of their fundamental constitutional rights of free speech, free press, and free public assemblage; and

Whereas, We assert that in this State there exists at this time one law for special privilege and another law for labor; and Charge Judicial Anarchy.

Whereas, In many localities of Pennsylvania executive autocracy and judicial anarchy are in the saddle and the rights of the people are being trampled under foot; and

Whereas, We hold that our Government is a Government of law and not a Government of executive orders, and that public officers are the servants of the people and not the masters of the people; and

Whereas, We hold that when the people of our State are denied their rights and suffer injustice they still possess the constitutional right to petition the Government for redress of their grievances and for a restoration of liberties; therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor, in special convention assembled at Pittsburgh, this 2d day of November, 1919, we hereby petition Governor William C. Sproul of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer of the United States Government, as follows:

First, that steps be taken at once to restore to the people of Pennsylvania the constitutional rights of free speech, free press, and free public assemblage;

Second, that the people of this Commonwealth be guaranteed that executive autocracy and judicial anarchy shall cease and that public officers shall perform their duties in conformity with the law and that they shall not go beyond the law; and

Third, that the Governor of Pennsylvania call a special session of the Legislature for the purpose of aiding to restore constitutional liberty in Pennsylvania and to act as an impeachment tribunal against public officials who may be charged and found guilty of violation of law and of their oaths of office; and be it further

Resolved, That in presenting this lawful petition to the Government we

URGE NEW INDUSTRIAL BOARD

Engineers' Brotherhood Thinks It Could Solve Strike Situation.

PALMER WARNS DEALERS

Tells Wholesalers Maximum Price Will Be Enforced and Profiteers Swiftly Punished.

GOVERNMENT AWAITS TEST

Expects Return of Some Miners Today and Tuesday—Is Prepared for Any Emergency.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—With the Government prepared to meet any emergency and awaiting the result of the expected return to work tomorrow and Tuesday of some union miners, and as well the expected use of non-union miners in the affected districts, there were only two developments in the coal strike situation here today.

One was a statement from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, suggesting the immediate calling of an industrial conference "not pledged to oppose collective bargaining" as the most practical way of solving the present industrial condition, which it described as "the most serious crisis in the history of the country."

The other was a letter written to the Wholesale Coal Trade Association of New York by Attorney General Palmer, in which, in forceful language, he answered an appeal for the withdrawal of the maximum price restriction by stating that any violation of the Government's orders by operators or dealers would be certainly and swiftly punished.

The Brotherhood Statement.

The brotherhood statement reads:

"In view of the condition facing our country at this time, which in our judgment is far more serious than during the late war, inasmuch as it affects all classes of the people, and in consideration of the situation, the Advisory Board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers assembled at Washington and formulated the following declaration of principles:

"The Advisory Board of Locomotive Engineers, the undoubted Americanism of whose membership should assure them recognition, not only by the Government, but by every factor contributing to the welfare of all the people, believe that:

"'The industrial conditions now confronting the nation, with capital and labor occupying a militant attitude toward each other, while the whole country is suffering from the high cost of living caused by hoarding and profiteering, resulting in general discontent, which tends to lower production, has brought about the most serious crisis in the history of our country.

"'We believe that there is no industrial dispute or misunderstanding that cannot be adjusted upon a basis of justice and right, and we further believe that in seeking justice, justice should be practiced by all concerned.

"'We believe in the laws and institutions of our country which guarantee that all the people shall have equal opportunity and a fair and impartial hearing before being condemned. We deplore the action of the Federal Government in its present attempt at government by injunction, believing such action will only tend to make conditions worse and defer, if not defeat, a peaceful settlement.

"'The Advisory Board has full assurance that we express the unanimous sentiment of the 85,000 members of our organization that the principle of collective bargaining is of vital importance to them and cannot be construed as harmful to any interest which desires to be just and fair. As a remedy for the present turbulent conditions we suggest that immediate steps be taken to assemble at Washington an industrial commission that will recognize the rights of all citizens and is not pledged to oppose collective bargaining, as this is a time for deliberate action on the part of all concerned in a peaceful solution of the present conditions.

"'We pledge the support of our organization to the Government in every just and reasonable effort toward stabilizing industrial conditions to the end that normal conditions be restored.

"'We believe that if such a policy is adopted reason and justice will take the place of passion and the autocratic and militant attitude now being displayed. In such event a successful and permanent adjustment of the relations between capital and labor, which vitally concerns all the people, could be hoped for.'"

Will Prosecute Profiteers.

The warning that the Department of Justice was prepared to proceed against any coal operators or dealers who attempted to take advantage of the strike to obtain unfair profits, was given tonight in a letter written by Attorney General Palmer to W. A. Marshall, President of the Wholesale Coal Trade Association, Inc., of 1 Broadway, New York.

The Attorney General's statement was in reply to a circular prepared by Mr.

Marshall in which he, in the name of the association, opposed the fixing of maximum prices by the Government as a measure which would discourage the efforts of the operators to mine as much coal as possible, and asked that the law of supply and demand be permitted to control the situation.

Such a proposition, Mr. Palmer wrote, amazed him. It was not the intention of the Government to permit any interests to profit by the emergency created by the coal strike, and if an attempt was made by operators or dealers to obtain advantage at the expense of the public, he would "take the same action against such persons as has been taken against the officers of the mine workers."

The Department of Justice and the Railroad Administration have made elaborate plans to enforce the maximum prices fixed on Friday by the Government, following an executive order issued by President Wilson. It was evident by the tone of Mr. Palmer's letter to Mr. Marshall that this would be done.

The Wholesale Coal Trade Association of New York, Inc., 1 Broadway,
Oct. 31, 1919.

Dear Sir—The fact that there is no present general shortage of coal and that if the miners who want to work are given protection by the Government they will work, leads us to make the following statement and recommendation:

First—With proper police or troop protection there will be a sufficient number of miners who will be willing to continue at work to insure, with present stocks, an adequate supply to meet the emergency created by the strike.

Second—Fixing a maximum price will curtail the operators' ability to meet the abnormal production costs caused by the strike and will discourage the operators in their efforts to produce coal.

Third—The law of supply and demand will take care of distribution better than any theoretical program.

We are not now confronted with a warfime condition, but one in which the demand for coal is normal and will continue so if the public is assured of protection to miners to enable them to produce, and non-interference by Government departments in the matter of distribution.

Fourth—The putting into effect of priority lists will result in unnecessarily overstocking certain consumers and allowing others to go without.

Fifth—If there is an attempt at profiteering the machinery provided under the recent amendments to the Lever law may be used to prevent the same.

We recommend that the miners be given protection so that they may work in safety and that the consumers of coal be allowed to procure the same through the usual normal channels, without interference from Government departments or the Railroad Administration.

Respectfully yours,
W. A. MARSHALL, President.

Palmer Warns Dealers.

The Attorney General replied as follows:

Nov. 2, 1919.

Dear Sir: I am in receipt of your circular letter of Oct. 31, 1919, and am amazed by its contents.

While, of course, proper protection will be given to all miners who are willing to continue at work, it must be perfectly plain to you that even under such conditions the supply of coal must be far from normal; your proposition amounts, in effect, to a declaration that coal dealers should be permitted to take advantage of these abnormal conditions and have their prices based entirely upon the law of supply and demand, which is only another way of saying that they should be permitted to charge the public whatever they please. The demand for fuel will be constantly increasing, and with the supply decreasing, unless there is Government regulation, prices charged to the public will be outrageous and the profits accruing to dealers unconscionable. You ought to be quite as willing as other citizens to co-operate in the general public welfare in this emergency, even to the extent of sacrificing profits.

The action of the Government in restraining the officers of the Mine Workers' Union from further urging the strike order already issued was taken solely in the general public interest, and I shall not permit it to be used directly or indirectly for the benefit of the employers' side of the controversy. If any advantage shall be taken of present conditions by any arrangement or agreement of two or more persons to restrict either production or distribution in order to enhance the price of fuel, I shall, without hesitation, take precisely the same action against such person as has been taken against the officers of the Mine Workers' Union.

Yours truly,
A. MITCHELL PALMER,
Attorney General.

The distribution of the available coal supply, under a priority list, has been left in the hands of the Railroad Administration by Fuel Administrator Garfield, while the Department of Justice will proceed against any operators or dealers who fail to meet the conditions set down by the Government. In some instances, under the resumption of price fixing by the Government, coal will be obtained by consumers at a rate slightly less than has prevailed in the last two or three weeks.

All Coal Cars in Use.

The report that additional injunctions might be obtained in Federal court districts if the situation warranted such action during the next few days was neither denied nor confirmed at the Department of Justice today. It simply was stated that the Administration would take all necessary steps when the occasion arose.

All available coal cars were being used by the Railroad Administration to get supplies of fuel to points where it would be ready for quick distribution in emergency cases. Particular attention is being paid to the necessity for providing for public utility corporations and municipal transit lines which depend upon electricity for power.

The supply of coal in the hands of the Railroad Administration is said to be somewhat larger than is usually the case, and there is no cause in most districts for immediate concern. The Regional Directors have been vested with authority to cancel trains where they believe it can be done without hardship, but no general policy of cutting down passenger traffic has been adopted by Director General Hines.

Neither the Government departments nor the operators gave out here further estimates concerning the number of miners who had obeyed the strike call. It was stated that information was at best uncertain and that it would be impossible to give a satisfactory review of the situation until another twenty-four or possibly forty-eight hours.

The War Department continued its preparations for the distribution of troops to points where they would be quickly available in the event of disturbances. Facts concerning troop movements were withheld but the preparations are being made with great thoroughness and on a scale which would provide for a long campaign.

There was a report that Secretary of Labor Wilson would make the usual formal offer to have his representatives act as conciliators, but how this will work out, inasmuch as the Government has taken such drastic action as an interested party to the strike, is a matter of considerable doubt.

The statement of the Advisory Committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers was accepted, at least, as indicating that there would be no move on the part of that body to embarrass the Government by a sympathetic strike. It was, in fact, much more conciliatory than the statement made yesterday by W. G. Lee, head of the Brotherhood of Trainmen. Optimists hold that the developments of the last few days have indicated that labor is largely convinced that sympathethic strikes at this time would be fatal to its best interests and that the attitude of the miners has in no substantial sense the backing of public opinion.

OPERATORS WAIT OUTCOME.

Will Co-operate if Brotherhood Suggestion is Approved.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 2.—Thomas T. Brewster, Chairman of the Coal Operators' Scale Committee, asserted tonight, after being apprised of the suggestion of the Advisory Board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers that an industrial commission be named to deal with the present industrial unrest that any action taken on the suggestion by the Government would receive the hearty co-operation of the operators.

"While we do not expect many union miners to return to work tomorrow," Mr. Brewster said, "those who do report will be treated as though they had never laid down their tools. No miner will be discriminated against. Probably some of the men will return to work when their surplus funds run out and their families are in need.

"We are anxious to reopen negotiations with the miners whatever they agree to our proposition to refer all disagreements to arbitration and continue coal production pending the award of the arbitration board.

"We will leave everything to the Government and will not request representation on regional committees. We also will support the Government in whatever action it takes regarding the suggestion of officials of the Locomotive Engineers' Brotherhood."

UNION OFFICES CLOSED.

Lewis and Other Coal Mine Officials Take a Holiday.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 2.—The headquarters of the United Mine Workers in this city were virtually deserted today. Acting President John L. Lewis having gone to his home in Illinois and other officials also having taken a vacation over Sunday. They will be back the first of this week to do the only thing that is left for them to do—prepare for the big legal battle next Saturday when the hearing in Federal Court to make the temporary restraining order permanent comes up.

Intimations that the Government contemplates supplemental proceedings in the District Courts of other coal States to enforce the injunction were not confirmed by Federal authorities here last night.

DISPUTE PITTSBURGH TIEUP.

Union Claims 48,000 Are Out—Will Return, Operators Say.

PITTSBURGH, Penn., Nov. 2.—Both union and non-union coal mines in the Pittsburgh district and throughout Central and Western Pennsylvania were closed today, as is the custom on Sunday. Actual developments in the miners' strike were few, but the operators and union representatives maintained that the advantage rested with their respective sides.

Union leaders asserted that in the Pittsburgh district alone 48,000 union miners had walked out Saturday and that about 80 per cent. of the non-union workers also were idle. Operators said that the miners were on their annual hunting excursions, and would return to the mines by Wednesday.

Officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad here announced that the strike thus far has not affected the railroads in this district, and that freight crews handled as much coal Saturday and today as on the same days of last week.

ALL QUIET AT CHARLESTON.

Mine Operators Seek to Avoid Precipitating Lawlessness.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 2.—Mine operators today indicated that they would do nothing that would have the slightest tendency to cause lawlessness. President C. F. Keeney of the mine workers failed to make any statement, saying that the restraining order in Indianapolis was in effect and that until action had been taken officially he could not speak. He said the situation was quiet in the organized fields of the State over Sunday.

Cars are being diverted from the organized field to the nonunion and open fields, giving a surplus of equipment for the coming week.

In the Logan field, where a heavy tonnage is expected, rains during the last two days washed out bridges, tracks, and fills, but the equipment will be in shape for work Monday morning. There has been no disorder.

ALABAMA GUARDSMEN OUT.

Union Leaders Claim Gains in the Number of Strikers.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 2.—One company of the Alabama National Guard went into camp today at the State Fair Grounds here and another company was en route here tonight from Montgomery. The troops, it was announced, would be used only in event disturbances arose in connection with the strike of coal miners.

Mass meetings of union miners were held at various points in the Alabama coal fields today, and union officials tonight claimed that there would be fewer miners at work in the fields tomorrow than on Saturday.

SAY COMPERS OFFERED PLAN TO END STRIKE

Lewis Is Noncommittal on Rumor—Frank Farrington Discredits the Report.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 2.—Responding to questions as to whether Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, had suggested a plan for settlement of the strike of soft coal miners, John L. Lewis, Acting President of the United Mine Workers of America, declared tonight that he was "noncommittal."

Questions put to Mr. Lewis were prompted by persistent rumors in miners' circles here that President Gompers had intervened in the strike, or at least offered his good offices.

Frank Farrington, Chairman of the Miners' Scale Committee, and President of the Illinois District, when asked about the rumor, said he had no knowledge of any communication from Gompers to Mr. Lewis or International officials. He expressed the opinion that nothing of the sort had been received.

Mr. Lewis intends to return to Indianapolis tomorrow morning at 6:40. He declined to indicate the purpose of the trip or the length of his intended stay there.

Before the strike started, the capital of Indiana was selected as the most central point from which to direct the struggle. It is rumored that the action of the International officers in closing the office in Indianapolis and departing for home complied with the injunction granted and that it is now safe to transact international union business there.

Mr. Lewis, who spent the afternoon automobile riding, carefully refrained from commenting upon the strike or answering any questions which might be interpreted as conveying information to the miners.

"I am an American citizen," was his answer to a couple of questions.

John Creighton, who was scheduled to arrive with the Government papers, failed to appear.

There will be a meeting tomorrow of the Executive Committee of the State miners' organization.

B. & O. AT CUMBERLAND IS HIT BY COAL STRIKE

Special to The New York Times.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Nov. 2.—The effect of the coal miners' strike was shown here today by an almost complete suspension of work in the yards of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, all yard crews having been laid off for thirty-six hours from 6 o'clock last night. Not a car of coal has been moved since 8 o'clock yesterday morning, when the order came to stop all movements, superceding the original order, which permitted a limited movement. The Baltimore & Ohio dispatched 1,200 cars through here yesterday as against a daily average of 5,000 before the strike.

Conditions in the mining region already have settled down to a waiting game, with no sign of a break and not the least indication of disorder. Howard Cross, a local operator, controlling a number of mines, said he had advices that the mines along the M. & K. Railroad would be working tomorrow. Carl C. Hetzel, another operator, said his mines at Listonburg, in the southern end of Somerset County, Penn., were in operation, and plants in Logan County, W. Va., in which he is interested, were also working.

ROWOVERDELEGATES TO LABOR CONGRESS

Workers in Japan, France, South Africa, and Argentina Object to Men Sent.

LABOR DEMANDS MORE VOTES

Dissatisfied with Present Basis of Representation—Unemployment Question Up Today.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Seating of labor delegates to the International Labor Conference from Japan, France, South Africa, and Argentina will be contested at a meeting tomorrow of the conference's Committee on Credentials.

Protests against the seating of the labor delegate from each of the four countries have been laid before the Credentials Committee, asserting that the delegate in question was not chosen fairly and does not represent the labor majority of his country.

All four of the protested delegates bear credentials from their Governments, and it is expected that the committee at its meeting which will follow the general session of the conference tomorrow will vote to admit them to the gathering. The Peace Treaty provides that the several Governments are the appointing powers, but that the Government must accept the "advice" of leading industrial and labor organizations.

Objections to the Japanese labor delegate, forwarded by workers in that country to Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, are particularly strong. Trade unions as known in America and Europe do not exist in Japan, U. Masumoto, the worker delegate, was chosen indirectly under Government supervision through a series of local and district primaries. As a result of the ill feeling thus engendered, Mr. Masumoto, it has been reported, was attacked by Japanese laborers on his way to board the ship on which he came to the United States.

The Argentine labor representative, Americo Balino, the protests assert, was not chosen by the most representative labor organization in the republic.

The objection to the seating of Leon Jouhaux, the French labor delegate, has come from some of the French railway workers. M. Jouhaux is Secretary General of the French Confederation of Labor.

Labor leaders are so much dissatisfied with the present basis of representation in the conference that the issue threatens to overshadow for some time the subject matter for which the conference was called, although the question of representation will not be brought to a test vote before the arrival of the Germans and Austrians, on whom the labor delegates count for support. As the conference now stands labor has one delegate to each two for the Government and one for capital.

The appointment of a commission to take up the question of unemployment is on the program for tomorrow, and may bring forth discussion as to what policy the conference should adopt in handling this and the other four items of its agenda. A portion of the conference membership desires to have all questions debated in full and open sessions, but others contend that agreement among all three groups (Government, employers and labor) can be reached more readily by a commission.

GOVERNOR AVERTS MILK MEN'S STRIKE

Pledges a Square Deal.

I contend there is no disorder—social, political or labor—so great that it cannot be settled. Now, you men can settle your troubles. You have the ability and the intelligence to do it in an orderly and peaceful manner. If you will follow your leaders, I'll go with them. I'll put all my strength into it to see that you get an absolutely fair, square deal, both personally and as Governor."

When the Governor jumped from the stage at 1:50 o'clock, it was evident his dramatic entrance and appeal had won the day. As he passed through the aisle to the theatre entrance, he again was vigorously applauded.

Before the vote was taken, a man seated near the front of the hall obtained recognition from the chair and began speaking. He had scarcely begun when there were cries of "Lynch him," "Throw him out," from those about him. There were then up in all parts of the hall. The speaker finally was ordered by the Chairman to sit down. There were several other attempts to continue the discussion before Mr. Cashal announced:

"It has been moved to accept a final proposition offered us by the New York Milk Conference Board. All those who are in favor of this motion will signify by saying aye."

It appeared from the roar that followed that the motion had been carried unanimously, but when the Chairman called for the negative vote there was a considerable volume of "Noes." The Chairman announced that the motion had been carried and that there would be no strike.

Radicals Attack Leader.

While the hall was being cleared some twenty or thirty men who apparently were dissatisfied with the outcome, stood menacingly before the stage. When Mr. Cashal left the hall, he was escorted by the thirty-three members of the Wage Committee who had been with him on the platform. Several attempts were made to break through the guard, but the efforts proved futile.

The dissatisfied men were said to be radicals, some of whom, it is admitted, were members of the union.

Under the compromise accepted, the clerks are to receive $23 a week, plus 2 per cent. for collections, and all inside help will receive $30 a week, the union leaders announced. The drivers will receive $35 a week, plus 2 per cent. for collections, and will get one day off each week. Heretofore they have had one day off in four weeks.

The following telegram was sent by Governor Smith to Elkin Nathans, Secretary of the Milk Conference Board, yesterday morning, when he learned from Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, Secretary of the Governor's Wage Labor Board, of the seriousness of the situation:

"I have been informed that your negotiations with the milk drivers' union have resulted unsatisfactorily, and that a strike is threatened, interruption of the milk supply to the people of the City of New York, especially to the children and the sick, would be a public calamity. You have a responsibility to the public. Your must either continue your negotiations or submit the matter to arbitration.

"I place at your disposal my Labor Board or stand ready to appoint any other body of arbitrators agreeable to both sides. Please inform me of your action."

Employers Willing to Arbitrate.

Mr. Nathans replied that your telegram of even date received. We recognize our responsibility to the public and realize that a cessation of the delivery of milk to the people of the City of New York would be a public calamity. We therefore accept your offer of arbitration. Immediate action is necessary, and we would suggest that each side be permitted to appoint three representatives and that your Excellency appoint three, the whole to constitute a board of arbitration whose award shall be final and be effective as of Nov. 1.

The Governor sent a similar telegram to the milk drivers, who replied they were awaiting further concessions by the distributors.

When told that the men had voted to accept the compromise offer, the Governor said:

"I am glad to know that the men are going to remain at their posts of duty. As I looked them over, they seemed to be a fine, clean-cut body of men, and I felt they would not do anything to cripple the city's milk supply."

The November retail milk prices have not been announced by the distributors. It is understood there will be an advance in price, but how much has not been determined, it was said.

DON'T BOYCOTT MRS. GARY.

Wives of Gary Steel Workers' Auxiliary Seek Her Membership.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Mrs. Elbert H. Gary of New York is not to be excluded from the social circle of Fifteenth Avenue in the city of Gary, established by her husband. On the contrary it was made plain at a meeting of the wives of steel workers at Gary this afternoon that the dispute with Mr. Gary does not extend to his family.

Passing a resolution of sympathy for the wives of workmen who deserted the strikers and went back to their jobs, the Women's Auxiliary elected Mrs. Elbert H. Gary a member of their organization, contingent upon her acceptance.

The following telegram was sent to Mrs. Gary:

"We, the women of the steel strikers' auxiliary of Gary, have this day in open meeting elected you as honorary member of our organization. Kindly inform us if you will accept."

In addressing the meeting J. T. Vind, organizer for the American Federation of Labor, said:

"One thing about Judge Gary is that he never berated your husbands to the polls and forced them to vote his way. If they voted for the capitalistic parties it was their fault."

SPURNS PROFITEERS' MONEY

Preacher Urges Baptist Churches Not to Accept Their Gifts.

Baptist churches throughout the country were urged to spurn money offered by profiteers, "the meanest kind of thieves," in a statement issued tonight by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Zane Batten, Secretary of Social Service Education for the American Baptist Publication Society.

"Every Baptist Church should know whether its members are engaged in this nefarious business of profiteering," said Dr. Batten. "The church should refuse to touch the dirty money of these people. No self-respecting church would tolerate in its fellowship a person known to be guilty of highway robbery or worse stealing, and the sin of profiteering is meaner, blacker and more sinful than either of these. The Church must make the will of God plain on this subject."

BETTER TEETH AIMED FOR.

Dental Care to be Provided for Italian School Children.

—Through co-operation of the Board of Education, the Health Department, the Children's Aid Society and the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor the preventive dental program is to be inaugurated among school children in the Italian district between Broadway and the Bowery from Canal to East Houston Street.

The program provides for cleaning the teeth of all children from the first to and including the fifth grade twice a year, and for the repair of defective teeth in these grades for three years. The idea is to take young children, before their teeth have become badly decayed or their mouths unhealthy, correct defects, and give them a start in life with better teeth and healthier mouths.

The Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor will install a dental hygienist, a nurse with at least a year's training in the public schools of this district. The dental hygienist will begin work in Public School 106, at 253 Lafayette Street, and as additional hygienists are available the association plans to put them to work. It is estimated that the work in the Italian district will require eight dental hygienists and three dentists.

Bailey B. Burritt, General director of the association, refused yesterday to this program as an experiment to prove that such work will prevent decay in children's teeth and result in better health.

Belgians Deck Soldiers' Graves.

BRUSSELS, Nov. 2.—For the first time since the war the Belgians today were allowed to commemorate the death of their fallen heroes. All Saints' Day was celebrated with great pomp in Brussels. Burgomaster Max deposited flowers on the graves of Belgians, Canadians, English, French, and Russians. Wreaths were also deposited on the grave of Van Cauwenhout, the composer of "La Brabanconne," the Belgian national anthem.

SAYS MAYOR DELAYS END OF PIER STRIKE

President O'Connor Criticises Hylan's Efforts as Tending to Keep Men Out.

NO AGREEMENT IN SIGHT

Latest Offer of Insurgents Has Not Reached Shipping Interests—Circular to Strikers.

The continued effort of the Special Federal Conciliation Commission, Mayor Hylan Chairman, to bring about a compromise between the steamship owners and the striking longshoremen is responsible for the failure of the men to return to work, according to T. V. O'Connor, President of the International Longshoremen's Association, who added that not more than one-third of the longshoremen have gone back. Mr. O'Connor estimates that about 30,000 longshoremen are regularly employed in this port under normal conditions. He says that the longshoremen are being deceived by the insurgent leaders and made to believe that by staying out they will eventually get more than the 70 cents an hour awarded them by the National Adjustment Commission.

The latest proposal of the insurgent leaders to return to work at the old wage of 65 cents an hour just as soon as the steamship interests would agree to ignore the award of the National Adjustment Commission and leave the question to "any other fair-minded tribunal that will adjust the grievances of the longshoremen," has not yet been presented to the steamship owners, but from the remarks of some of them last night they will not consider any change in their position, Frederick Toppin, Vice President of the International Mercantile Marine, and spokesman for the shipping interests, said that he had not been informed of any new proposal and added, "What assurances have we that the longshoremen will keep any new agreement any better than they kept the agreement with the National Adjustment Commission?"

Fewer than 200 men were at work yesterday on the piers of the International Mercantile Marine in the Chelsea district. There was no work at the French Line, Pier 57. Union leaders reported that some work was being done at Pier 86 of the French Line, and at other piers north of there on the Hudson River.

Richard Butler, insurgent Chairman, and William J. Smith, secretary, issued a statement yesterday declaring that "not more than 3,000 men are at work, and they are strikebreakers, imported from the South."

Mr. O'Connor ridiculed the statement, and said that the United States Shipping Board and the Labor Contract Bureau of the United States Transport Service of the United States Army would corroborate his reports as to the number of longshoremen at work.

Thousands of unsigned circulars urging the strikers not to return to work were scattered along the waterfronts yesterday. "Know your friends and know your enemies," the circular read. "Your enemies are the checkers who are affiliated with your unions." The circular went on to say that the checkers were active in assisting the strikebreakers. Alleged secret entrances and exits from the piers were revealed in the circulars and the strikers were urged to get busy and protect all gateways.

F. Paul A. Vosgerau, a member of the Conciliation Commission, addressed the insurgents again yesterday. Thomas Barry, an insurgent leader, was reported yesterday to have returned to the ranks of the O'Connor followers.

Local 923, one of the strongest in Brooklyn, with a membership of 2,000, voted yesterday afternoon not to go back to work, it was announced following a meeting at Visitation Hall, Verona Street, near Richards Street, Brooklyn. Hoboken Local No. 587 was reported to Mr. O'Connor as having withdrawn from the Butler faction, and the members will attempt to return to work this morning.

KILLING FOLLOWS STRIKE.

Proprietor Shot in Laundry at Night from the Street.

Henry Isaacs, proprietor of the Washington Place Laundry, at 88 Washington Place, who was shot at 10 o'clock Saturday night, when three men stopped in front of his place and one of them fired on him with a revolver, died at St. Vincent's Hospital at 8:30 yesterday morning. Isaacs was 46 years old and lived at 329 East Twentieth Street.

At the hospital Isaacs told the police he believed the attempt had been made to kill him because of trouble he had with employes during the laundry strike.

NEW STRIKE MENACE IN PENNSYLVANIA

expect, as citizens of Pennsylvania, that our servants in public office shall redress our grievances and comply with our lawful, reasonable, and constitutional demands, and failure on their part to do so shall be construed by us to mean that those rights are to be continued to be denied to us, in which event we have no other alternative than to use our economic power to compel the restoration of those liberties; and be it further Strike Is the Alternative.

Resolved, To that end we hereby instruct the Executive Council of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor to issue a call for a State-wide strike when, in its judgment, it is necessary to compel respect for law and the restoration of liberty as guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States and of the State of Pennsylvania; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be sent to Governor William C. Sproul, Attorney General Schaffer of Pennsylvania, Attorney General Palmer of the United States, and President Woodrow Wilson, and the Executive Council be instructed to give this resolution the widest publicity and each delegate is instructed to secure its publication by local papers throughout the State for the information of the people of Pennsylvania.

James B. Gent, President of the State Association of Machinists, speaking in favor of the resolution, said:

"These are serious days. Any man living in these days will possibly be complimented in later days for helping to get us out of slavery. At the present time, severing the abrogation of our constitutional rights, I say to you men, as representative of almost 400,000 machinists in the State of Pennsylvania, that we as machinists are in favor of the general strike."

A delegate asked President Maurer if the State Federation had the power to call a general strike, to which he answered:

Expects Federation's Support.

"That question may have been agitating the minds of a great many of you. We are living in extraordinary times, when the rights and liberties of the people of this great Commonwealth are at stake. A time that means a life and death struggle for organized labor. A time has arrived when we have to fight, and the Pennsylvania State Federation of Labor will fight. I do not entertain the slightest suspicion of opposition from the international union officials or Samuel Gompers. I believe the federation will have their hearty support."

Resolutions were adopted calling for the repeal of the Espionage act and an amnesty to all political prisoners and urging all labor unions to give immediate financial support to the steel strikers. The convention also adopted a resolution calling upon the miners, the railroad men and the steel workers to "pool their forces from a general committee and to refuse to make any settlement which does not include all of them."

Other resolutions were adopted denouncing the injunction obtained by the Federal Administration against the leaders of the United Mine Workers of America, as "one of the most vicious assaults on labor, and forcibly establishing involuntary servitude in violation of Section XIII. of the Constitution."

The convention showed much feeling against Francis Feehan, a former President of District 5 of the United Mine Workers of America, and now holding a position under Governor Sproul in the Department of Labor and Industry, and President Maurer had hard work getting him a hearing, but when he did get a chance he said:

"A lot of agitators are blowing bubbles. I am blowing none. I stand with the Government."

The convention also passed the following resolution regarding the withdrawal of James Maurer's passport several months ago by the State Government:

Resolved, That the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor, representing more than 500,000 organized workers in special convention assembled in Pittsburgh, hereby express their indignation and resentment of this gross and flagrant insult to the State of Pennsylvania acting through one of its commissions, as well as to organized labor of this State, and insist that the Pennsylvania representatives in both houses of Congress demand not only an explanation from the Federal authorities, but the return of the passport so that they would proceed with the work of the commission; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to Secretary of State Robert Lansing, Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, Governor William C. Sproul, and to every Pennsylvania member of the House of Representatives and Senate.

BREWERS' CONVENTION OFF.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 2.—Decision by the United States Brewers Association that the convention scheduled for this month shall not be held is regarded by the liquor interests generally in this resort as being full confession that there is no use of continuing the fight to win an advantage in the few weeks remaining before constitutional prohibition comes into effect. The convention was arranged at the Traymore for Nov. 20-21, and the cancellation was announced today.

The one great opportunity for a last stand to win or fall, the brewers agree, must be on the attack in January upon the validity of the constitutional amendment, in the hope that a decree from the Supreme Court of the United States will be in favor of the liquor interests.

BELGIAN INDUSTRY IS FORGING AHEAD

bridges and wooden stations are in general use, although the rebuilding of permanent structures may be seen everywhere in progress.

Coal Output Nearly Normal.

I have referred thus particularly to the recovery of the railways because it is so essential to the recovery of other things and because it has been effected in the face of such extraordinary obstacles with no little outside assistance. But the same story meets one on all sides. For instance, the railways themselves could not run without coal, and one of the cardinal facts in Belgium is that her coal mines are not merely working and working without strikes, but producing a larger proportion of their pre-war output than those of any country in Europe—perhaps in the world.

I visited one of the largest collieries concerned in a district employing some 10,00 hands. One of the Directors who took me over the surface installations showed that the output was now 90 per cent. of that before the war. This, or but little less, is about the national percentage. At the colliery in question the dustier coal is made up by machinery into briquettes, which are burned by locomotives. Belgium is able to export coal today because her partially reopened factories do not make their full demand for it.

She also exports beet sugar because her sugar industry, thanks to the efforts of growers and manufacturers alike, has substantially increased its pre-war output. She is exporting very considerable quantities of glass because in all but one of her glass works before the war the blowing was done by mouth, and, although in that one the Germans destroyed the machinery, in the others it was only necessary to re-employ human blowers, who happily had not lost their cunning. Besides matches, nuinc-props, and some other miscellaneous articles, she is already exporting yarns and even some madeup textile goods, such as shirts.

WANTS FREIGHT FOR BOSTON

Government Discriminating Against City, Says Waterways Commissioner.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—William S. McNary, State Commissioner of Waterways, asserts that the War Department gave New York shipping business it could not handle while Boston docks were going idle, and that the same policy is now being followed by the United States Railroad Administration.

He says Boston will be able to maintain her place as the second commercial port only if the railroads are forced to allocate to it some of the heavy freight now being sent to New York.

Extremely chic, "different" and altogether charming are the petticoat novelties now displayed in the Department on the Second Floor.

For evening wear there are delicate confections of georgette or chiffon, of crepe de Chine or supple satin, deftly combined with lace, net or ribbon; while for street and sports use there are petticoats of silk jersey or of taffeta, modeled on smart, trim lines that conform to those of the fashionable outer-clothes.

The collection includes a number of imported models, and a most interesting group of Japanese silk petticoats, richly hand-embroidered.

CITIZENS UNION HITS WOMAN CANDIDATE

MAJOR KELLY PROTESTS

Calls on Supporters to Write Name on Ballot—Rumors of Bad News for Tammany.

The Citizens Union, through Walter T. Arndt, its Secretary, made public yesterday a statement in which it was charged that Mrs. Mary M. Lilly, member of the Assembly from the Seventh Manhattan District and a candidate for re-election on the Democratic ticket, has been receiving two salaries since June 1, one from the State and one from the city, in violation of Section 7, Article 3 of the Constitution.

"On June 16 of this year," says Mr. Arndt's statement, "while still a member of the Assembly, Mrs. Lilly was appointed Director of Women Prisoners on Blackwell's Island. In this position she is on the pay roll of the city in the Department of Corrections and draws an annual salary of $2,100.

"The records of the Secretary of State's office at Albany fail to disclose that she has sent in her resignation as a member of the Assembly. Presumably, therefore, were a special session of the Legislature called before Dec. 31, she would appear at Albany as the representative of her district, and she is again a candidate for the $1,500 a year State job while still holding the $2,100 a year city job.

"Section 7, Article 3, of the State Constitution, says: 'No member of the Legislature shall receive any civil appointment within this State, * * * or from any city government during the time for which he shall have been elected; and all such appointments and all votes given for any such member for any such office shall be void.'

"Section 8, Article 3, says: 'No person shall be eligible to the Legislature who at the time of his election, is, or within 100 days previous thereto has been, * * * an officer under any city government. And if any person shall after his election as a member of the Legislature be elected to Congress or appointed to any office, civil or military * * * under any city government, his acceptance thereof shall vacate his seat.

"Section 1549 of the New York City Charter provides that any person holding office either by election or appointment, who shall during his term accept or hold any office connected with the government of the City of New York shall be deemed thereby to have vacated any office held at the time under the city government.

"The Citizens Union believes these facts in connection with the candidacy of Mrs. Lilly should be of interest to the voters."

The Citizens Union has indorsed Mrs. Lilly's Republican opponent. Attempts to reach Mrs. Lilly last night were unavailing.

Major Michael A. Kelly, lone candidate for the Liberty Party and aspirant to the office of Aldermanic President, issued a statement at his headquarters, in the Hotel Normandie, last night, in which he urged all his followers to vote against the Tammany candidates and criticised the action of the Election Board in striking his name from the general ballot.

"The expunging of my name from the ballot," said Major Kelly, "was an outrage, and was the work of clever and experienced hands in attacking nominating petitions."

Major Kelly said that the action to have his name stricken from the ballot had been brought purposely too late for him to verify the affidavits on which the action was based and properly examine the records of the Election Board for material with which to contest these affidavits.

"The Legislature is responsible for the law," he said in conclusion. "The courts cannot be held responsible for reckless statements in the affidavits. But the political organization that sponsored such affidavits should be, and I sincerely trust that no friend of mine will vote the Tammany ticket, and for the office of President of the Board of Aldermen I trust they will write my name on the ballot."

In Tammany circles, where there had been considerable apprehension due to the strong following of Major Kelly, it was said yesterday that too few of those who had joined his political adventure would go to the trouble to write in his name to affect the result.

What purported to be the figures embodied in a confidential report submitted to Tammany Hall a week ago by confidential investigators aroused a good deal of comment in Republican circles yesterday. The report, it was stated, gave Robert L. Moran, the Tammany candidate for Aldermanic President, a plurality of less than 2,000 in Manhattan and only 9,000 in the Bronx, which is Mr. Moran's home borough. Representative La Guardia, the Republican candidate for that office, according to the figures, would run ahead of other candidates on the Republican ticket in both boroughs. Justice Joseph E. Newburger, according to the report, was leading the judiciary candidates, with Robert L. Luce second, one of the Tammany candidates second, Philip J. McCook, Republican, third, and Irwin Untermyer, the other Tammany nominee, fourth. Of the candidates for the City Court, Richard S. Smith, whom Tammany rejected for renomination, was reported to be leading, with Joseph A. Callahan, Bronx Democrat, second and Henry K. Davis and William H. Carroll, two of the Republican candidates, in a close race for the third winning place.

The confidential report is said to have indicated the election of a number of Republican Assemblymen in Manhattan and two Socialists—in the Fourth and Eighth Assembly Districts—by 700 and 1,000 plurality, respectively.

Louis Fehr, campaign manager for James O'Malley, Republican candidate for Surrogate against ex-Senator James A. Foley, predicted last night that his candidate would be elected by a plurality of 50,000, and would carry eighteen of the twenty-three Assembly districts in Manhattan. In Tammany circles, it is generally believed that Mr. Foley will get a bigger vote than any other candidate on the Tammany ticket.

City Magistrate Henry H. Curran, Republican candidate for Borough President, was visited at his headquarters in the Hotel Navarre yesterday afternoon by sixty former members of the 77th Division, New York's Own, with whom he spent more than an hour chatting about wartime experiences. Magistrate Curran, who has the rank of Major, commanded the 302d Ammunition Train. The visit, it was said, was to celebrate the anniversary of the second drive in the Argonne in which Major Curran took part.

Flier Scatters Circulars Over Judge Ward's District.

A novel method for circulating election handbills was used yesterday when Lieutenant J. N. Lieutenant Dillon, flying with Lieutenant Wesley Smith, left Roosevelt Field at noon and after reaching Sixty-third Street and Central Park let loose 5,000 of his circulars. The district extends as far as 110th Street and goes from the park to the North River. Lieutenant Dillon will repeat the flight today. He is a member of the American Flying Club and the Royal Flying Club of England.

ALSACE-LORRAINE READY FOR ELECTIONS

Will Be Represented in French Parliament After Half Century of Exile.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

STRASBOURG, Nov. 2.—Reunited with France, Alsace-Lorraine will after the lapse of nearly half a century be once more represented in the French Parliament.

The elections will take place about the middle of November. Premier Clemenceau is coming to the Alsatian capital on Tuesday, accompanied by M. Pichon and other Ministers. M. Clemenceau will deliver an important political address, and while it is expected that he will officially close his own great career as a statesman and retire to private life and that the Parliamentary tribune will know him no more, the Premier is expected to address encouraging words to the children of the motherland so lately restored to her bosom after fifty years of sorrowful severance.

He will also, it is thought, add a reminder to the beaten enemy on the other side of the Rhine that the Treaty of Versailles is not a mere "scrap of paper," that its obligations must be fulfilled and that Prussian propaganda must cease in the liberated territory.

All political groups in Alsace and Lorraine, from Socialists to Moderate Republicans, accept the peace treaty as an article of political faith, but the Autonomists, whose headquarters are on the right bank of the Rhine, out of rifle range of the French advanced posts, refuse to accept the treaty. Baron Kopp is one of the moving spirits in the movement, of which the driving power is German. Money flows in from Germany, from America and from Switzerland and propaganda leaflets are smuggled across the Rhine into Strasbourg.

So far the Autonomists have waged a mere paper warfare in dull German prose and not very seriously. In the forthcoming elections they are unable to find a single candidate willing to embrace their tenets and carry their banner unfurled to the ballot box.

The Alsatians, so far as I can discover, are not autonomists. They are happy in their newly acquired French citizenship. Long confinement in the Prussian straitjacket has told upon them mentally and morally, but the air of freedom and enjoyment of liberty of thought and action are proving a wonderful tonic and the Alsatians are becoming mentally robust.

Germanism had been eminently successful in preventing the people from learning French, and now in the streets of Strasbourg the citizens bravely struggle with the language of Molière. Schools have been opened everywhere by the French, and the university which existed solely for the inculcation of German Kultur has been remodelled on lines worthy of its century-old traditions, of the time when Frank, Saxon, and Scot foregathered within its portals. Still, for all this, the first batch of Alsatian Deputies in the new Parliament will not muster a strong battery of Parisian French.

Yesterday I had an interview with M. Millerand, the Commissary General for Alsace-Lorraine. He is very optimistic as to the people settling down under the new régime. Much work is yet to be done in order to eradicate the last traces of the detestable Prussian domination.

"We find," says M. Millerand, "that schoolboys have been taught to spy on each other, and it will take some time for the youth of the country to realize that such conduct is base and dishonorable."

BURN GERMANS' HALL.

Returned Soldiers Supposed to Have Set Fire to the Building.

Special to The New York Times.

STANTON, Neb., Nov. 2.—Germania Hall in Stanton, which was used by a number of German societies before the war, was set on fire last night and burned to the ground after a German society meeting had been held in it. Returned soldiers are charged with firing the building and they are not denying the charge.

Stanton County is settled by Germans and there are more Germans than Americans in the county. During the war it was a hotbed of Germanism, and Germania Hall was the chief gathering place. The United States Marshal finally closed the hall and sent the German flag, which formerly floated over the building, to Washington.

Last week former members of German societies announced that a Hallowe'en party would be held in the building. German colors were used in the decorations. Returned American soldiers, feeling that the hall would again be used as a rallying point of the Germans, made the threat that never again would Germania Hall be used.

Last night, after the party, the building was discovered to be on fire. The fire department is composed of Americans. Half an hour was required to get the fire machines started. They crawled at a snail's pace. Finally, after a line of hose had been laid, several small slashes were found in the rubber. The firemen announced the hose would not hold water and that the extra hose was out of commission. The building burned without a bucket of water being thrown on it.

COL. ELLIOTT ENDS HIS LIFE

Commandant at St. Johns, Annapolis, Was Born Here.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 2.—Lieut. Col. Duncan Elliott, commandant of cadets at St. John's College, this city, committed suicide this afternoon by shooting himself in the head. He had been in ill health some time.

This morning he wired for his brother, Richard Elliott, at Atlantic City, who arrived shortly after the body was found. The body will be sent to Woodlawn, N. Y., for burial.

Lieut. Col. Elliott was a native of New York City, and entered the service just before the Spanish-American war, being commissioned from the ranks in 1900 as a First Lieutenant in the 8th Cavalry. He was made a Captain when placed at the head of the Military Department of St. Johns, and was promoted to Lieutenant Colonel after the outbreak of the war.

He was married, but had been divorced for several years. He is survived by three sons.

BOSTON LABOR BODY FIGHTS COOLIDGE

DEMOCRAT ISSUES WARNING

Wood, Candidate for State Treasurer, Declares He Stands on Law and Order Platform.

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—The Boston Central Labor Union today adopted resolutions calling upon organized labor and its friends, irrespective of party affiliations, to cast their ballots for Governor Coolidge's "strongest opponent," to the end that "we may remove this menace to the public safety and vindicate the justice of our cause."

The resolutions charged the Governor with allowing the Police Commissioner "to force upon the police a situation whereby it was necessary to go on strike," and "by his lack of good judgment and tact" with allowing a situation to be created "whereby murder, robbery, and other crimes have been committed on the streets of Boston," and with having caused "by his acts and speech a spirit of antagonism and hatred against organized labor, which is contrary to the ethics of an officer of the State."

A straw vote conducted throughout the State by The Boston Post, Democratic paper, returns Governor Calvin Coolidge, Republican, re-elected by a majority substantially larger than that given him last year. Richard H. Long, Democrat, the Framingham shoe manufacturer, who was defeated by Coolidge last year, is again his opponent, Coolidge this time running as the "law and order" candidate.

In 1918 Coolidge defeated his opponent by 17,000 votes. The straw vote just taken by the Democratic organ indicates that Coolidge will be the victor on Tuesday by a margin very much larger than before.

The Post, though heretofore consistently Democratic, has come out squarely for the election of Coolidge, and in a double-column editorial in its Sunday edition asserts that "the manhood of the Commonwealth is called to decide whether law and order shall be enforced or repudiated." "Long," it says, "is appealing to dissatisfaction and dislike of our tried and true institutions. If law and order and the will to compel obedience to free institutions established by tradition, precedent, and statute are to be indorsed, every man who believes that such things are the glory of the past, the strength of the present, and the hope of the future will vote for Calvin Coolidge for Governor."

Chandler M. Wood, Democratic candidate for State Treasurer, in a statement tonight declared he could not "yield the right to anyone to commit the Democratic Party to any other course than the principles of law and order advocated by the Democratic Party of Thomas Jefferson, Grover Cleveland, and Woodrow Wilson."

"I cannot permit that party," the statement read, "to be put in the position of sanctioning disobedience to law or the violation of oaths of office. I cannot remain silent when that party is represented as standing for those things which I am certain misrepresent American ideals and the true interests of those who labor."

Mr. Wood said an effort was being made "to commit the Democratic Party to an undemocratic and un-American position on the paramount issues of the campaign," and added:

"That party stands for law and order. It has always put the welfare and the security of the State above the interests of any class. It has always been the true friend of the rank and file of organized labor.

"As the candidate of that party I wish it known to all that I unalterably stand for law and order and the preservation of the laws of this commonwealth, and only on that basis and on the basis of my qualifications do I seek the suffrage of the people."

Mr. Wood is running against Fred J. Burrell of Medford on the Republican ticket, and many Republican leaders are working in favor of Wood because of his longer experience.

The opposition to Burrell in his own ranks comes as a result of his nomination at the primaries over Colonel Perkins, a war veteran. His victory was chiefly due to the similarity of his name to that of Charles L. Burrill, the present Treasurer, who is leaving office because of statutory limitation. Many voters supposed Fred J. Burrell was the present incumbent and naturally supported him.

LA GUARDIA TWITS HYLAN.

Calls Murphy "Glucose King" and Attacks Estimate Board.

Referring to Charles F. Murphy as "the Glucose King" and belittling the intelligence of Mayor Hylan, Fiorello H. La Guardia made a campaign speech last evening at the first of the season's forums at the Church of the Ascension, Fifth Avenue and Tenth Street. Thomas J. Curtis of the American Labor Party, who had received its nomination for the Presidency of the Board of Aldermen, and Mrs. Mary B. McDonald, representing the Socialist Party, also spoke.

"Tammany Hall for the last two years has had complete control of the city's finances," Mr. La Guardia said, "and they like it. It is now necessary for a minority representation on the Board of Estimate to check and control the actions of Tammany. It was formerly the custom for the board to hold its hearings in public when making up the budget, but this year it was made up entirely behind closed doors."

Mr. La Guardia then poked fun at the Estimate Board and said:

"It took a junior clerk, I am told, to instruct Mayor Hylan that three were necessary for a quorum. Of course the Mayor did not know that."

Harvard Gets Reports on 2 Comets

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 2.—The Harvard Observatory announced tonight that it had received cable messages, one from Kyoto, Japan, and the other from Paris, reporting observations on two comets. From Japan a comet was observed on Oct. 23 with a magnitude of nine, and from Paris a comet, supposed to be that of Schaumasse, was observed on Oct. 30 with a magnitude of twelve.

"The institute requires all who serve on its scientific staff to give full time to the work, permitting them to pursue no gainful occupations outside its organization, and paying them a stipend fixed with reference to their complete devotion to whatever may be their special assignments.

"It is not the aim of the institute to perpetuate the lines of investigation in which it may engage, should the usefulness or promise of these at any time become doubtful. On the other hand, the elucidation of fundamental problems under favorable conditions may proceed with adequate support for an indefinite period, unhurried and unhindered by the urgency of immediate results. The organization of the scientific staff is, thus, flexible and adaptable to the ever-shifting requirements of research, so that its directors may alter the emphasis of its work and focus its various resources upon different aspects of complex problems."

NEWFOUNDLAND HOLDS ITS ELECTION TODAY

Will Vote for Legislators for the First Time Since 1913—Fishermen a Factor.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Nov. 2.—Newfoundland will hold its first general election in six years tomorrow, the ordinary four-year term of the Legislature having been extended from 1917 because of the war. Interest in the result is heightened because of political changes since 1913 that have provided new party lines, with the Fishermen's Protective Union comprising a labor element. In the character of the opposition appearing the Fishermen's political unit for the first time.

A vigorous campaign has been waged and a close vote is expected, but, as delays are considerable in receiving returns from the distant coast districts, some days will probably elapse before the result will be definitely known. Both the Government and the Fishermen's party have full tickets in the eighteen constituencies, and in addition there are several independent opposition candidates.

The Government party is led by Sir Michael Cashin, who became Prime Minister last May, on the succession to Dr. W. F. Lloyd, who Cabinet survived the Coalition Cabinet of Sir Edward Morris but a few months. The opposition is led by R. A. Squires, who was defeated in the last general election by a Fishermen's candidate running on the Liberal Union Party ticket, but who subsequently served in the Legislative Council and after the Cashin Ministry was formed was succeeded by W. F. Coaker, leader of the Fishermen's Party, for the leadership of the opposition.

At the last general election, in 1913, the People's Party, led by Prime Minister Edward Morris, won 31 seats to the 150 of the opposition, which, under the name of the Liberal Party, includes the Fishermen's Protective Union. With the outbreak of the war, party differences were buried, and in 1917 a Coalition Cabinet was formed. This Cabinet survived for a few months, however, Sir Edward Morris retiring and Dr. W. F. Lloyd, who had led the Liberal Union Party being elevated to the Premiership.

The Lloyd Ministry was overturned last May, when Sir Michael Cashin, who had been Finance Minister in various administrations for ten years, resigned, charging that the Lloyd Ministry was dominated by Coaker and the fishermen element. Cashin consented to form a new Ministry, with the result that the fishermen, who had supported the Government, were given over to constitute the principal members of the opposition, and to the Lloyd Administration joined forces with what remained of that party to constitute the present Government.

made from the stump and in the press with respect to your draft questionnaire prompt me to bring to your attention the following matters:

"I was the military clerk at Local Board 126 at the time you returned your questionnaire to the board, and filed it.

"I recall the occasion upon which you first appeared before the board. Noticing that your name was Untermyer I asked whether you were in any relation to Samuel Untermyer, of whom I had read in the newspapers, and you told me you were his son.

"You then discussed with me the filling out of your questionnaire in which you claimed classification under 2A as a married man who's family were not dependent upon him for support.

"In going over the various items of the questionnaire you told me that you owned a farm of about 600 acres, and you asked me whether or not you were obligated under the law to mention that fact in your questionnaire.

"We then both read over the wording of the questionnaire and I advised you that under the law, and more particularly under the instructions we had received from the War Department, you were obligated to show the facts. I recall that when I made this statement you said: 'Well, I want to be sure that the questionnaire is made out in accordance with the law, and I will put it in if you wish, but it doesn't make any difference anyway, as I rightly belong in Class 2A.'

"A few days later you returned with the questionnaire to which you had attached a rider showing your ownership of the farm, but explicitly showing also that your interest in it was financial only and that you earned your living by the practice of the law.

"In view of the fact that your questionnaire showed that you owned a farm it was not passed upon by the local board at all, but under the law went direct to the district board, which, upon your own questionnaire, classified you under 2A. I know of my own knowledge that no appeal was ever taken by you to the district board.

"A newspaper reporter interviewed me recently and I stated the facts to him as above. He tried to get me to change my statements, but I refused to do so. He especially tried to get me to say that Mrs. Untermyer had come before the board for the purpose of assisting her husband, but I stated to him, as was the fact, that I never saw her nor heard of her doing so. Notwithstanding this statement on my part he labored with me for some time with a view to getting me to change my statement so as to show that Mrs. Untermyer had appeared before the board.

"Because of the limitations of the selective service law I appreciate the difficulties under which you have been laboring as against the false attacks that have been made upon you, and I hope this letter may be of some assistance to you in bringing the truth to light.

"Very truly yours,

"GEORGE LEE CARR."

The letter from Mr. Colby opened with a flat declination of Mr. Untermyer's offer and urged the latter not to wait for his co-operation "in this eleventh hour dash for your honor." He called attention to the fact that, while the charges that Mr. Untermyer had sought to evade military duty were first made on Oct. 21, no attempt had been made to have the questionnaire produced for inspection until the campaign was virtually at an end.

"The only material point in your draft record is what you said on the subject of your agricultural or industrial occupation, Mr. Colby wrote. Did you directly or otherwise refer to your Summer place in the Adirondack region as bringing you within the exemptions of the draft law? And were you not at pains to avoid a waiver of any exemption?

"There ought not to be much trouble in getting at the truth of this, unless you have fenced and fiddled until there is not physical time to find your questionnaire in a single day among the millions of similar documents on file in the Washington barracks of the War Department.

"But if you are sincere in your belated change of front on this subject, you will not pause for my consent and co-operation. You have my consent, and my co-operation or that of any one can only impede your progress and consume time."

'BIG 6' AGAIN VOTES NOT TO ARBITRATE

ORDER STRIKE-FUND LOANS

International Officers Booed and Hissed at Local Meeting—President Scott Absent.

Settlement of the differences between the printers and their employers, which, with the lockout of the pressmen and feeders, have disorganized the printing industry for a month, appeared further off than ever yesterday when Typographical Union No. 6 voted practically unanimously against arbitrating the question of hours and wages.

This action was taken in answer to the ultimatum of the Employing Printers, in which today was set for a decision on the proposal to arbitrate all issues in the controversy. Big Six has heretofore repeatedly refused to arbitrate the 44-hour week.

The meeting was held at the New Star Casino, 107th Street and Park Avenue, into which more than 3,000 members were crowded. For the first time since they went on "vacations" in sympath with the locked-out pressmen and feeders they were addressed by officers of the International Typographical Union. Secretary-Treasurer John W. Hays, First Vice President Walter Barrett, Third Vice President Charles Smith, and International Organizer Bert Brady outlined the attitude of the international organization toward the New York situation. After the meeting, which was closed to reporters, versions differed as to the spirit in which these men had been received. It appeared that some of them were heard attentively, but that at least one was booed and hissed. President Marsden G. Scott, who a short time ago called the leaders of Big Six "Huns and Bolshevists," did not appear. It is one of the stated grievances of Big Six that Mr. Scott has never consulted with any officer of this union since the beginning of this trouble, has attended various sessions of the employers, has been entertained at luncheon by them, and has discussed affairs with them, and our only knowledge of his proceedings in this city is gained from the press.

The vote against arbitration came on a resolution to hold a referendum on Wednesday to determine whether all questions should be arbitrated. A motion to lay the resolution on the table was carried almost unanimously. A motion was then put to withdraw the scale of wages and hours which had been presented to the employers back to the Scale Committee. This was carried unanimously. The effect will be to leave the union free to make entirely new proposals to the employers. What these will be was not indicated, but President Leon H. Rouse remarked that they "might demand even more than they had before."

The ruling officials were empowered to negotiate loans for the "out-of-work fund," but a motion to increase the maximum benefits from $12 to $15 a week was carried without dissent, and when one member offered to lend his $500 Liberty Bond other offers were made.

Big Six issued a twenty-page closely printed pamphlet yesterday reviewing the situation.

"The situation in New York has now reached a deadlock," says the pamphlet. "The printing offices cannot start unless the pressmen and feeders return to work. It is useless for the typographical union to come to an agreement with the employers, because its members would still be out of work. The international union formed by Berry is impotent to supply men capable of manning the pressrooms, and the locked-out pressmen and feeders utterly repudiate Berry and all his works. The employers refuse to meet the pressmen or feeders until they make peace with Berry, a thing which Berry professes to be impossible so long as these unions exercise their right to select their own officers."

BUTCHERS STRIKE ENDING.

Manhattan Workers Returning—Brooklyn Situation Unimproved.

Indications yesterday were that the strike of meat cutters, drivers and salesmen of the Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers Workmen of North America would soon be over so far as Manhattan is concerned. The situation in Brooklyn, where the greatest number were said to be out, did not look quite as promising.

George W. Sheppard, business agent of Local 19, at 1 Columbus Avenue, said yesterday that three-fourths of the 1,000 members of his local would return to work this morning, the employers having signed the new agreement, which provides for a minimum wage of $40 a week and "more equitable working hours." He said that twenty-seven master butchers were among those who signed up. The members of Local 19 are exclusively store tenders.

John Riechaub of Local 174, which is the principal local in Manhattan, whose members are sausage and packing house workers, said yesterday that the strike in this branch of the industry would soon be over, as employers had agreed to the new contract.

"We are asking butchers to pay common laborers $32 a week; shipping floor operators, $38 a week; sausage makers, $36 a week, and ham workers, $42 a week," he said. "This is an increase of $7 a week for common laborers and $6 a week for the other classes of employes."

PLUMBERS WANT $10 A DAY.

Brooklyn Workmen Threaten to Break Agreement and Strike Today.

One thousand Brooklyn plumbers have threatened to strike this morning unless their demand for a wage increase is granted. The men, who receive $7 a day, are asking for $8 a day, effective today, with a further increase to $10 a day beginning Jan. 1. It is understood that the Master Plumbers are willing to give the men $8 a day on Jan. 1, but want the present wage scale of $7 a day continued until then.

Officials of the Association of Master Plumbers, 283 Livingston Street, Brooklyn, said yesterday that the journeymen plumbers by striking would break an agreement which does not expire until May 15, 1920. Under this agreement the men received $6.50 until last July, when they were raised to the Manhattan scale of $7 a day.

For greater purchasing power of the dollar come to this store. That is our bid for your patronage and that brings up the subject of our policy.

Cash buying and selling with one price for all has been the fundamental principle of this organization since its birth almost sixty-two years ago.

Cash buying and quantity buying have enabled us to procure merchandise at lower prices than those who buy in smaller quantities and ask credit.

Therefore when a fair margin of profit is added to the original cost our prices are lower than those of the merchant who asks for credit.

Then we save you an extra amount by not giving any one credit. For credit departments cost credit stores money and the customers pay, without regard to whether or not they ask credit. That extra saving enables us to safely say that ours are "lowest-in-the-city prices."

One other angle of the policy of this organization remains to be explained. We sell dependable merchandise only—calling things by their proper names and never tolerating anything that might border upon misrepresentation. If you are at all skeptical about a dollar going farthest here—spend a dollar elsewhere. The next one will be spent here.

FINDS PROHIBITION AN AID TO RADICALS

CONDITIONS IN THE WEST

More Crime and Drug Addicts Discovered by Anti-Prohibitions Association Investigators.

The Association Opposed to National Prohibitions made public yesterday a summary of a report received from investigators in eleven States, describing conditions said to have followed on the heels of prohibition. The report tells of increase in radicalism and Bolshevist tendencies among the people, of an increase in the number of drug addicts and of a greater number of crimes committed in the States where the investigations were made. In part the report is as follows:

"The study, or survey, was made by trained newspaper and magazine investigators acting for the Association Opposed to National Prohibitions. Information was gathered by the investigating staff from every official and unofficial source within the States investigated, and from talks with hundreds of representative and unrepresentative citizens.

"The conclusions drawn from the investigation are:

"(1.) That all radical elements and all I. W. W. leaders are earnest advocates of prohibition, as they assert that it is driving into the radical groups many men who in normal times were law abiding labor unionists, and the I. W. W. is constantly preaching more pay and a six-hour day.

"(2.) That the labor union members pass through two stages. First they pass resolutions demanding the return of beer and light wines, and then they turn to the I. W. W., taking out red cards of membership.

"(3.) That prohibition merely puts a ban on good liquor and a premium upon hair oil, wood alcohol mixtures, patent medicines with a high percentage of alcohol, and other dangerous chemical compounds as beverages.

"(4.) That a new kind of disaster has been added to the police lists: 'Death due to drinking wood alcohol.'

"(5.) That the number of drug addicts is vastly increased in all of the cities, and there is more crime.

"(6.) That in some of the Western cities fully 60 per cent. of the people are brewing beer at home and the farmers are making various wines and hard cider.

"(7.) That the corruption of politics has been greatly increased since a new source of graft has been developed.

Survey of Eleven States.

"The eleven States visited were in the West. Denver, Col., which was the first city of importance visited by the investigators, was in the throes of a whisky scandal. It was charged that public officials had winked at the smuggling into the State of nearly $4,000,000 worth of whisky. Whisky could be obtained freely in Denver at $7 a pint. The police reported that the number of drug addicts since the coming of prohibition had trebled, while large parts of the population were brewing strong beer at home with the aid of malt syrup, hops, and other supplies freely carried for that trade by the drug and grocery stores. Radicalism was steadily gaining as trade unionists joined the I. W. W. and radical literature was everywhere for sale.

"In Salt Lake City, Utah, similar conditions were found. Drug addicts had increased 200 per cent., many homes had becomes breweries, and whisky was selling at 50 cents a drink. The Utah mining camps of Eureka, Bingham Canyon, and Park City, and the smelter camps of Garfield and Magna exhibited a score of dissatisfied union labor leaders who asserted that their following was becoming radical and joining the I. W. W. The miners complained bitterly because of their loss of beer and their lack of funds to pay the high prices demanded for other beverages. The Utah farmers were extensively engaged in the manufacture of peach brandy and home-made wines, while Ogden, Utah, swarmed with bootleggers. The mining camp at Ely, Nev., had a miners' strike when the investigation was under way there, and the labor elements, rendered radical because of prohibition, were in evidence everywhere. Anarchy, violence, and even Bolshevism and soviet rule were openly advocated by soap box orators. A white moonshining whiskey known as "white mule" was being sold at $4 a pint to such as had the money.

Physician Condemns Prohibition.

The investigation disclosed Butte, Mon., to be a hotbed of radicalism and of crime. Dr. J. F. McCarthy, a leading physician, said of conditions there:

"In my judgment this prohibition curse is leading straight to death and blindness in Butte. The city is flooded with both good and bad whiskies, but the bad moonshine brand is in the majority, and as a direct result incalculable injury is being done to life and health. The nation has gone crazy at the behest of the bigots and witch burners, and the end is not yet. A return to the license system is the only possible solution of the problem."

In Anaconda and Helena similar conditions existed but not on so widespread a scale.

The mining camps of the Coeur d'Alene region of Idaho were found to be permeated with radicalism. The I. W. W. publications were in every reading room and the investigators confess that they heard "more red revolutionary talk in the Coeur d'Alene region than anywhere else."

"One well read and intelligent miner of the region said to the investigators: "'Prohibition looks to the men like a piece of class legislation. The operators have ample supplies and the men are forced to pay high prices for vile stuff. They resent it. It is making radicals of former conservatives."

Increase in Drug Addicts.

When the investigators reached Spokane, Wash., they found the city greatly exercised at the number of drug addicts which prohibition had added and their raids upon drug stores for drugs. Spokane appeared to be the headquarters of the I. W. W. for that region.

A national I. W. W. leader encountered by investigators in Spokane declared:

"A few months of prohibition have done more for the I. W. W. than years of organization work without prohibition could accomplish."

Seattle was found to be a hotbed of I. W. W. effort and Bolshevism. The leaders of the radicals were all for prohibition while a Superior Court judge, four deputy sheriffs, an ex-Speaker of the Washington State Legislature, and several other officials were on trial charged with having conducted a whisky smuggling ring. Drug addicts had increased to an alarming extent while the Seattle Union-Record of Aug. 23, 1919, declared:

"There is more open vice, gambling and bootlegging in this city than at any previous time."

Portland, Ore., presented a similar picture, though the city was not running so wide open.

The States of California, Arizona, Texas, and Oklahoma were all found to be infected with I. W. W. activities and those of the Bolsheviki. Everywhere the leaders of the red element were praising prohibition as a recruiter for their cause.

FOUR FIREMEN OVERCOME.

Rescued Unconscious from Smoke Filled Basement.

A Fire Captain and three firemen were overcome by fumes of burning rubber yesterday while fighting a fire in Fitzpatrick's garage, at 1,172 Fifth Avenue. They were carried from the basement of the building by other firemen. Three of them were taken to the Harlem Hospital, where it was said their condition was serious.

Those overcome were Captain James Shaw of 9,333 Forest Avenue, Brooklyn; William P. Guire, 373 East Ninetieth Street; Charles Kall, 330 East Seventy-third Street, and James Foster, 509 West 174th Street. All were members of Engine Company 22 of East Eighty-fifth Street. Foster recovered rapidly and is considered out of danger.

The fire was noticed by Patrolman James Murphy of the East 104th Street Station. The firemen confined the flames to the basement and first floor. Because of smoke, it was difficult to enter the building.

Captain Shaw and the three firemen made their way to the basement. When they did not reappear in a few minutes other firemen rushed in after them. They found them unconscious and carried them to the street.

Charged with Raising Bills.

Angelo Moll, a tailor living at 406 East Sixty-third Street, was arraigned before Magistrate Alexander Brough in Essex Market Court yesterday, charged with converting one-dollar bills into ten-dollar bills. He was turned over to the Federal authorities. Patrolman William Milacek testified he found sixteen altered bills in Moll's possession.

Insomnia Victim Leaps to Death.

After preparing dinner for her family yesterday and at its conclusion seeing her husband retire to the parlor to read a newspaper, Mrs. Celia Jurinsky, 38 years old, of 3,808 Third Avenue, the Bronx, went to the bathroom, uttered a shriek and leaped five stories to the courtyard. She died in Fordham Hospital a short time later. Jurinsky said his wife had been suffering from insomnia.

CARRANZA PROMISES AN HONEST ELECTION

Declares Present Government Will Not Interfere, but Will Let People Choose President.

DETERMINED TO RETIRE

He Is Tired of Office, He Says—Ambassador Bonillas Rival of Generals Gonzalez and Obregon.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 1.—President Carranza, talking over questions asked by the Mexico City papers, stated to me today that all stories of his not wishing to turn over the Presidency were foolish, as he was tired and only too willing to retire after carrying out the wishes of the people who elected him to the highest office. "I have held every office," said President Carranza, "starting from local town Judge, alternate in the State Legislature, alternate Senator, temporary Governor of the State of Coahuila, Governor, First Chief of the Revolution, and President, so you can see I am tired and want rest. Also I have my ranches, which you saw during our recent horseback trip through the State of Coahuila, which I must take care of.

"You may be sure that I will be one President, if not the first, who has retired completely to private life."

THE TIMES correspondent asked President Carranza about the charges that the Federal Government had fixed the State elections for Governor.

"Foolish charges," he replied. "I have not interfered in any elections. Each candidate, both successful and defeated, in the different States came to me before the elections, saying that they would run and asking my opinion. I told them all that if they had support and were sure that the people really wanted them as Governors, to go ahead. Naturally only one candidate in each State could win.

"I repeat the Federal Government did not interfere in any State election and will not interefere in the Presidential elections except to see that the elections are legal. Whomever the people elect will be President. I wish to repeat that when my term is over I will retire."

"Mexico City papers say: 'Do you think the time has arrived to start the campaign for President?'"

"Yes; I think the time has arrived for starting the Presidential campaign and for other Federal positions. One candidate has already started. I think that all other candidates should have equal advantages."

"Do you think the elections will cause new disturbances in the interior?"

"I do not think that we will have disturbances of any importance during the elections, but there may be slight disturbances on Election Day as happened during the last municipal elections."

"Do you think it convenient to give amnesty for all expatriated Mexicans who did not take part in the cuartelazo of 1913, so that they may take part in the elections?"

"It is not convenient. It is impolitic to give amnesty before the elections to those implicated in the cuartelazo. Those who did not take part are remaining of their own free will in other countries as the Government has given permission to all who asked to return to Mexico."

"In what condition will the new President find the Treasury?"

"The new President will find the Treasury in better condition than it is now if conditions in the country, as expected, continue to improve all next year."

"When your term is over will you retire to private life or continue to take an active part in political life?"

"When I defeated for the Presidency to the successful candidate I will retire to private life and attend to personal business, retiring to live in the interior of the country."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

QUERETARO, (via Galveston,) Oct. 31.—The Presidential campaign in Mexico is moving. Several States have named Ambassador Bonillas as a candidate. The independent parties which elected Governors in Queretaro, San Luis Potosi, Guanajuato, Coahuila, and Colima have organized as Bonillistas. Workingmen of the States of Yucatan, Vera Cruz, and Michoacan have organized labor parties to support Bonillas. Many professional men, doctors, bankers, and merchants favor Bonillas as opposed to a military candidate.

Followers of General Pablo Gonzagales, who during the war were pro-Ally, now are against the United States, claiming that Bonillas will have the backing of Washington.

The statement of General Obregon of Sonora on his departure for Mexico City that he would follow the wishes of the voters and, if defeated, would accept without protest, has caused a very favorable impression as removing the fear of possible trouble.

Gonzales's followers refuse to state whether he will respect the vote.

AUTO PILOT SHOT IN RACE IN TEXAS

Major Scanland, U. S. A., with Seven Others, Including Four Women, Held for Murder.

TARGET SHOOTING, HE SAYS

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 2.—Major F. M. Scanland, U. S. A., and seven others, including four women, were arrested tonight at Las Cruces, N. M., charged with the murder of John T. Hutchings of Alamogordo, who was fatally shot today while driving an automobile in a cross-country road race.

The cause of the shooting has not been ascertained.

Besides Major Scanland, the arrests included Fred Jackson of Alpine, Texas, and Harry G. Overstreet, "Chalk" Altman, Miss Billie Bennett, Mrs. Overstreet, Mrs. P. L. Holbrook and Mrs. E. M. McPherson, all of El Paso.

"It was only an accident," said Major Scanland. "We were target shooting and had a target on the same side of the road we were on."

The shooting occurred near Lanark, N. M., sixteen miles west of El Paso, during an El Paso to Phoenix race. Hutchings was shot in the back, a bullet penetrating the automobile seat and lodging near the base of his spine. His motor car was said to be traveling forty-five miles an hour at the time. Oliver Lee, Hutchings's mechanician, said he heard six shots fired.

Lee piloted the car, with its wounded driver, to Lanark. There he borrowed a rifle and returned to the scene of the shooting with Winchester Cooley and District Judge W. R. Howe. Here they took into custody the eight persons held at Las Cruces. The four men and four women were occupants of an automobile.

Hutchings was chauffeur for General John J. Pershing when General Pershing commanded the American punitive expedition into Mexico. He had won numerous automobile races in El Paso and Juarez, Mexico.

SAVES CHILDREN'S LIVES.

Police Sergeant Conlon Stops Runaway Horse on Crowded Street.

Sergeant J. Conlon of the Bedford Avenue Police Station, Brooklyn, made a daring stop of a runaway horse which was dashing toward a crowd of children yesterday afternoon. The horse was attached to a delivery wagon owned by Morris Steiner, a butcher of 228 North Main Street, Brooklyn. Just as Steiner climbed onto the seat the horse started and he was thrown to the ground. Many children were just coming from Sunday school classes at the Church of Our Lady of Consolation, 184 Metropolitan Avenue.

DRINK RECIPE IN COURT.

The passing of the saloons need not worry the individual anxious for a drink with a "kick," according to a prisoner arraigned in the Gates Avenue Police Court, Brooklyn, yesterday, charged with intoxication. He gave his name as Edward E. Stack, 40 years old, of 342 Sumpter Street.

"Where did you get the liquor?" asked Magistrate Dale.

"I make it myself," replied the prisoner.

"Maybe some of the boys would like to be let in on the secret," said the Magistrate. The prisoner produced a recipe which he said would make fire water 100 per cent. proof."

The Magistrate suspended sentence, but as Stack was passing out of the building several of the habitués and attachés gathered about him and obtained a copy of his recipe. Here it is:

"Two pounds of brown sugar, one pound raisins, one quart corn meal, three lemons sliced, cake of yeast-foam, one gallon distilled water. Put in crock and let stand for thirty days, then strain."

MADRID, Nov. 2.—The Spanish clergy, from the highest ranks down, has requested the Government to increase clerical salaries which have remained unchanged since 1851. when, after the seizure of the Church property by the State, the salaries were fixed by agreement between the Government and the Vatican.

TO AID ARMENIAN CHILDREN.

Association Reports Receipt of $750,000 to Avert Starvation.

The American Relief Administration European Children's Fund announced yesterday the receipt of $750,000 from the Commonwealth Fund, New York, for the relief of children in Armenia. This is the amount required, according to Colonel William N. Haskell, Allied High Commissioner to Armenia, to provide one meal a day for three months for 150,000 children who are starving.

The distribution of supplies provided by this fund is expected to begin on Dec. 1. The same plan which is followed by the American Relief Administration European Children's Fund in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Jugoslavia, and other countries of Central Europe, as well as the new Baltic provinces, under which a scientifically balanced ration is now being provided for nearly 3,000,000 undernourished children under American supervision, will be applied in Armenia.

The relief is supplied by local committees, organized by Americans and through wholesale buying, and by cutting out expenses the cost has been reduced to about $1.50 per child per month.

HERTLING FOUGHT WITH LUDENDORFF

TELLS OF THE COLLAPSE

Headquarters, After Planning a "Duchy of Flanders," Came to Demand a Peace Offer at Once.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 1.—Captain Count Karl von Hertling in his reminiscences just published says his father, the Chancellor, told him that von Hindenburg and Ludendorff both threatened to resign unless von Bethmann Hollweg was dismissed, but when Chancellor Hertling accepted the office they promised to keep out of politics. Chancellor Hertling was always on good terms with Hindenburg but never sympathized with Ludendorff, whose attitude was always that of a dictator.

Once discussing the Polish question Ludendorff became quite rude and seemed to wish that Hertling resign in order to establish a military dictatorship. Hertling, like his predecessor, Bethmann Hollweg, was constantly in opposition to Ludendorff, who always tried to overrule him and generally succeeded.

At that time Grand Headquarters very sanguinely planned the erection of a duchy of Flanders, expressing the willingness to cede the rest of Belgium to "Royalist France." Hertling only smiled indulgently.

Then came Bulgaria's collapse. The Kaiser, unseparated, told Hertling that Czar Ferdinand swore an oath of eternal allegiance to the German Kaiser before the altar in a certain church at Hamburg.

Over night Grand Headquarters changed front, suddenly desiring a parliamentary Government. Hertling told the Kaiser he would go. While he was in conversation with the Kaiser Ludendorff entered, asking, "Haven't you got a new government yet?" The Kaiser, annoyed, replied, "I cannot work miracles." Ludendorff demanded: "A new government must be formed immediately and a peace offer forwarded today, without fail." The Kaiser rejoined, somewhat cowed: "You might have told that fourteen days ago."

"I stopped my sore throat with this pleasant-tasting tablet"

SORE throat is now realized by the medical profession as an ailment that, if neglected, is liable to develop into much more serious trouble—such as Tonsilitis, Influenza, etc. And sore throat means the lowering of your natural bodily resistance to the millions of germs that you cannot avoid inhaling at every breath; it means that these germs have found a breeding spot in the delicate membranes of the mouth and throat cavities. And there they must be subdued.

Physicians have found that in treating this germ danger they attain fine results with

Formamint
THE GERM-KILLING THROAT TABLET

Sucked like candy, it melts in the mouth and releases its powerful, yet harmless, germicide which mixes with the saliva and is carried easily and naturally into the throat passages, reaching the germs, destroying them and quickly promoting the healing of the membranes.

Formamint is a scientific, pleasant remedy for all mouth and throat troubles. If you have a sore throat, or feel one coming on, prove for yourself the efficiency of this little tablet. At all druggists — 50 tablets for 50 cents.

A Statement to the Voters
By
IRWIN UNTERMYER

November 2, 1919.

I am, as you know, a candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court together with my fellow Democrat, Justice Robert L. Luce. I was nominated at the primaries of the Democratic Party to succeed a Judge who declined to run in those primaries and who, if elected, would be able to serve only four years out of a fourteen-year term of office, having reached the age of compulsory retirement.

I will be nearly 34 years of age when I assume office, should I be elected, and this has been the serious offense with which I have been charged, an offense which I neither palliate nor deny.

I have been admitted to the bar for almost ten years, and even those who oppose me politically have not ventured to suggest a criticism of my integrity or character. I am, and for eight years have been, a member of a well known law firm of this City and I have participated in all its activities. I have tried and argued cases of importance in which precedents of moment have been established.

My political adversaries have attacked, maligned and denounced me for political advantage, but every such attack has been answered and refuted by me. I have made no attack upon any man in my campaign, and, whether I win or lose, I have done nothing which I need ever regret.

One of the main criticisms that has been levelled against my candidacy has been that by advertisement my friends have attempted to bring my name and cause before the voters as conspicuously as possible. I have no apology to offer for this, and it is, indeed, fortunate that they were able to do so; for otherwise the powerful interests opposed to me, in the press and elsewhere, might altogether have suppressed my campaign. What those interests are, and how malign they are and why they are arrayed in opposition to me, is known to everyone who reads this statement.

The campaign is over. You are about to make your decision. I have stated my case with frankness; and I ask your support if you believe that the interest of the people will be thereby served.

RHODES SCHOLARS AGAIN ARE NAMED

America Gets 64 Appointments, the First for This Country in Two Years.

MANY SOLDIER CANDIDATES

Majority of Former American Rhodes Scholars Also Saw Service in the War.

BOSTON, Nov 2.—The names of the first Rhodes scholars to be appointed from the United States for two years were announced tonight by Professor Frank Aydelotte of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, American Secretary to the Rhodes Trustees, who was in charge of the selection. The names of sixty-three were announced, the full number, lacking one, allotted to the United States this year instead of the yearly quota of thirty-two. The name of the sixty-fourth, whose selection from Michigan was postponed, will be announced later. The same number will be appointed next year.

A large proportion of the candidates were men who had been in military service, and many of them had already studied for a short term at Oxford under the educational plan arranged by the American Expeditionary Force. Interest in the scholarships was also increased by the announcement that Oxford University would in the future offer the Ph. D. degree.

With the Rhodes scholars now appointed and a large number whose term at Oxford was interrupted by the war and who are now returning to complete their course, Oxford will during the next two or three years have a larger American population than ever before in its history.

The war record of the American Rhodes scholars is now being compiled by Professor B. E. Schmitt, Western Reserve University. Between 250 and 300 of the 400 Rhodes scholars who have gone to Oxford since the scholarships began in 1904 were in military or Government service during the war, most of them in the American army and a few in the British and French. Twelve American Rhodes scholars lost their lives in service.

Among the appointments, which are subject to ratification of the Rhodes trustees, are the following:

Connecticut—1919, William Dwight Whitney, New Haven, (Yale.)
Maine—1919, Philip Dyer Crockett, Everett, Mass., (Bowdoin College.)
Maryland—1919, Frank V. Morley, Baltimore (Johns Hopkins University.)

Banks everywhere use the L. B. Card ledger—

Twenty-five years ago the first bank installed the L. B. Card ledger. The list has grown steadily. Today this master-method of handling active, inactive and savings accounts is used by banks, large and small, in every section of the country.

These banks adopted it only after careful investigation and comparison. They found, as you will find, that no other ledger can approximate it in speed, in accuracy, in simplicity.

Reference to any account is almost instantaneous. The cards are easily and quickly handled. The method of guiding leads the fingers straight to the right card. The L. B. Card ledger is especially adaptable to posting by machine; —assuring speed-with-accuracy.

A visit to our sales rooms will show you why the L. B. Card ledger is making good—not only in banks, but in commercial houses of every class.

THIS IS NOT AN OFF YEAR

The conduct of the government of the City of New York, and the independence and integrity of the judiciary, are at stake.

Do You Desire To Control Your Government?

We wish to call the attention of our fellow-citizens in New York and Bronx Counties that notwithstanding the recommendations of every legal association in the city, the editorial recommendations of the press, and long records of efficient service, the Tammany machine has refused its support to Justice Newburger for the Supreme Court and Justice Smith for the City Court. A moral issue has been raised. A rebuke should be given to those who would traffic in judicial positions for purposes that will not bear examination, and use the judicial office to pay political obligations. We ask your support for these men and the other Republican nominees for similar positions in order that those who seek to apply the spoils system to the judiciary may be repudiated.

Of primary importance to the city at large, however, is the election of Mr. F. H. La Guardia to the Presidency of the Board of Aldermen, which position carries with it membership of and three votes in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, and an obligation of equal moment rests on the voters of Manhattan to elect Mr. Henry H. Curran to the Presidency of that Borough, a position which carries two votes in the Board of Estimate and Apportionment.

This body is the governing council of the City. By the election of both of these men any action of the Board can be temporarily suspended until examination shows its desirability. The election of either one would let in the light of publicity to the Board's proceedings and serve as a check on the City Administration.

At the present time every member of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment is a member of the Tammany Party. This condition has not existed since the regime of Mayor Van Wyck in 1901, prior to the adoption of the present Charter. Projects that cannot bear the light of day are passed without public knowledge of their purpose or effect. This condition is fraught with danger to the city and cannot be permitted to continue without lasting harm to its interests.

Both La Guardia and Curran are men of vision, initiative and independence; qualities sadly lacking in the present City Administration. La Guardia was born and educated in New York. He is now a member of Congress from this city, to which position he has been twice chosen. Curran has served several years in the Board of Aldermen, and is now one of the City Magistrates. Both men have records of efficient service in public life and in the United States Army during the war. The presence of men of their character and ability in the Municipal Government will be of great positive advantage to the city, and will serve as a rebuke to the present inefficient, extravagant and confused administration.

In the first place, he and his associates have shown total inability to cope with any municipal problem. No move has been made for the settlement of such pressing questions as the Riverside Drive improvement, the elimination of the West Side tracks, the Jamaica Bay improvement, or the increase of other port facilities. In the meantime and in spite of the enormous natural advantages of New York Harbor, commerce is being diverted to other ports.

So far as the City Government has any scheme for the solution of the traction matter, the plan would seem to be to force all local railway companies into bankruptcy, and to acquire and operate these ruined properties at the expense of the public.

The city administration has endeavored to use the proceeds of long term securities for current expenses, and legal proceedings were necessary to restrain this conversion. In the effort to reward political adherents and personal retainers the civil service laws have been violated. The appointment of Riordan, wholly unqualified under the law, as Chief Medical Examiner, was revoked only because of the threat of legal action. Efforts to subjugate the School system were stopped by court decree.

An administration that is kept within the law only by mandamus injunction and court orders is not one to inspire confidence.

For some time the city has been agitating for a Central Purchasing System, and in May of this year a law authorizing the Mayor to create a Board of Purchase for the acquisition of City Supplies went into effect. The present administration has not only bought supplies through this body, but has continued the purchase of supplies by each department head as well, with the resultant waste, inefficiency and opportunities for dishonesty the law was designed to check. The net result of this reform under Mayor Hylan has been to add another competing agency for the purchase of city supplies; in other words, the law has been used to increase the very evils it was designed to diminish.

The morale of the Police Department has vanished. Political pull has replaced efficient service to the public as a means of advancement. Efficient officers of long service, such as Inspector Costigan, have been eliminated or assigned to posts of little importance. Men dismissed for ample cause, and refused reinstatement by previous administrations, are being taken back in the force in large numbers. Carefully planned schemes for the help and supervision of those released from State Prison have been thrown into the discard, as have also well tried plans for the prevention of crime.

It is no wonder that under these conditions felonies have increased, that burglaries, robberies and "hold-ups" on the public streets are of daily occurence; and that in the recent trolley strike in Brooklyn the preservation of public peace and private safety was a scandalous failure.

Like loss of efficiency has characterized the administration of other departments.

In the Department of Health the Mayor, for the enhancement of his own political prestige, has withdrawn the work of industrial hygiene from the Bureau of Preventable Diseases and placed it under direct charge of his own appointee. This action was taken against the protests of labor and civic organizations. He has endeavored to do away with the work of trained specialists in charge of the technical branches of the department.

In the disposal of the city refuse by the Street Cleaning Department the present administration has returned to a practice discarded years ago. And once more, the fleets of filth dump their cargoes outside the harbor gates, with the result that the neighboring beaches in New Jersey and Long Island are covered with offal and refuse, to the detriment not only of residents in those neighborhoods but to the thousands from all parts of the city who use those beaches for bathing and recreation.

The administration of the Department of Markets has been a public scandal. Quantities of food have been bought and have disappeared, leaving as their only trace obligations to be met by the city, and, what is more sinister, claims for large commissions. According to the report of the Mayor's own Commissioner of Accounts, the head of the Department of Markets has extended special facilities to favored organizations, in two of which—the Plaza Community Club and the Mutual Finance Exchange—he has himself been interested. The assets of many of these organizations are fictitious, and they are backed by individuals of no financial responsibility. Subscriptions to their stocks have been openly solicited on the grounds that the City Administration was interested in their success. The personnel of the Department of Markets, chosen without regard to the civil service rules, is composed of political hacks, none of whom are qualified by training or experience for the duties they are supposed to perform. It is no wonder that in spite of many promises this department has done nothing to cheapen or improve the system of distribution of food to the people of New York.

The Mayor has quarreled at one time or another with those he has appointed. Bugher of the Police and Amster of the Health Department resigned because of his sinister political interference in the details of administration of their departments. His relations to the Governor, a member of the same political party, by the way, are openly hostile. His quarrel with the Public Service Commission has degenerated, on his part at least, to personal denunciations and abuse.

Mistrusted by those to whom he owes his nomination and election, openly repudiated by many of his own party, quarreling with those with whom public duty brings him in contact, the Mayor of New York presents a pitiable spectacle.

Reviewing his administration to date, it is not too much to say that the Government of the City of New York has not made a single step forward since the inauguration of the present regime. Not a plan has been developed, much less carried out, to deal with any municipal problem. On the other hand, there has been a distinct trend backward.

Progress made during the administration of Low, McClellan, Gaynor and Mitchel has ceased and a retrograde movement has set in toward those conditions that made American city government a reproach to our democracy. The election of a Republican Board of Aldermen, of La Guardia and Curran, transcends political lines. Not only would the City of New York be benefited thereby, but their victory would be hailed throughout the country by men of all political faiths as victory for clean government and efficient administration. People throughout the land would take heart at this as evidence that the greatest city in the world was prepared to take again her proper place in the forefront of municipal progress.

The libels against my firm and myself have been reiterated so often that I have accepted the advice of our counsel, Mr. Robert H. McCarter of New Jersey and Mr. Julius Henry Cohen of New York, to publish the following letter, from which the above is a part. I am sure our many good friends will be glad to have this clear statement from former Attorney General Lewis to combat the subtle and powerful influences that have been used against us.

In re Forstmann & Hoffmann Co. and JULIUS FORSTMANN

My dear Mr. Cohen:

Some weeks ago you called my attention to a report in the above entitled matter, dated April 3, 1918, made by Mr. Alfred L. Becker, a Deputy Attorney General during my term of office, who had charge of the investigations conducted by my office pursuant to the provisions of the Peace and Safety Act, Chapter 595, Laws of 1917. The report was approved and adopted by me and you have asked me to examine the record and determine whether such approval was justified. As this record is voluminous, I requested Mr. Alexander Otis, also a Deputy Attorney General under my administration, to examine the testimony and documents and prepare a report thereon for me.

After three weeks of almost continuous study of the records in this case, Mr. Otis now presents a report going thoroughly into the evidence, from which it appears to my satisfaction that, if I had been able to give the time personally to an examination of the complete record, I should not have approved of the report, as made by Mr. Becker, in so far as it reflects upon your clients. Indeed, I am satisfied that if it had not been for pressure by the War Trade Board for an immediate report, Mr. Becker would not have made the reflections upon the loyalty and integrity of your clients that appear therein.

I recall distinctly that at one of the hearings at which I was present, I gave to Mr. Forstmann's representative my assurance that his client would be given full opportunity to answer any matters which he might care to explain. Mr. Forstmann appeared voluntarily and not in response to a subpœna, and without such an appearance my office would have had no jurisdiction to inquire into his loyalty. During his examination he was repeatedly requested not to interpose any explanation, but to answer directly the questions put to him. This was during the examination of March 15th and 16th, 1918, at which I was present. I did not attend the subsequent hearing held March 27th, March 29th and April 2nd. It was not until the last hearing that Mr. Forstmann's defense and explanations were put in. His side of the case covers 175 pages of testimony and includes many documents and letters, the due consideration of which required considerable time. This was April 2nd, and the report is dated April 3rd. On April 6th, as I am advised by Mr. Otis, the minutes of the last hearing were delivered to Mr. Becker by the stenographer. It appears, therefore, that the report was dictated by Mr. Becker without having before him the minutes of the proceedings in which Mr. Forstmann's defense was interposed and without the advantage of any brief or summary by counsel which might have indicated the value and significance of the evidence introduced in Mr. Forstmann's behalf.

In view of this I have carefully gone over Mr. Otis' report and have read considerable portions of the evidence presented at the hearings which I did not attend. I am forced to the conclusion that the report as made by Mr. Becker and approved by me contains reflections upon the loyalty and integrity of Mr. Julius Forstmann which are not warranted by the evidence. While there were circumstances tending to create suspicion, Mr. Forstmann's explanations seem to me satisfactory, and I think make the reflections cast upon him unfair and unjust.

Any public officer may make a mistake in war times, when quick action is required, but when it appears that an innocent man has suffered with the guilty, I feel it my duty to say so and express my regret.

I hand you herewith a copy of Mr. Otis' report in this matter, which goes into the details at length and you are at liberty to make such use of it as you may deem proper. I hope that it will have the effect of correcting the injustice that has been done to your clients.

Sincerely yours,

NEW YORK TENNIS CLUB TEAM BEATS GERMANTOWN PLAYERS, PHILADELPHIA TITLE HOLDERS

NEW YORKERS WIN INTERCITY TENNIS

Metropolitan Champions Beat Philadelphia Title Holders by 6 to 3 Score.

RICHARDS DEFEATS TILDEN

Takes Two Straight Sets from National Runner-Up on Courts of Germantown Cricket Club.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—The New York Tennis Club, champions of the Metropolitan Association this season, added to their laurels today by winning an intercity team match from Philadelphia's interclub title-holders, by a score of 6 to 3. The New Yorkers won five of the six singles encounters, and therefore did not need the extra point which they picked up in the doubles. The matches were played on the Germantown Club's courts.

The surprise of the day was the defeat of William T. Tilden, 2d, national runner-up, by Vincent Richards, in straight sets, 6—4, 6—2. This is the second time this year that the youthful star has beaten his former doubles partner in open competition, the first being in the final of the national indoor championship.

Stanley W. Pearson turned in the only individual victory for the Philadelphians, capturing two close sets from W. Halsey Wood at 7—5, 6—3. Ingo Hartmann, Allen Behr, Captain J. Harry Steinkampf, and Walter J. Toussaint were all returned winners in the singles, while A. J. Ostendorf and Carl Jolliffe landed a victory over White and Bradley in the combination event.

Tilden partially redeemed himself by taking the top doubles match from Richards and Behr, in partnership with Rodney Beck, and Pearson and L. C. Wistar upset the hitherto invincible combination of Steinkampf and Hartmann in straight sets, Pearson thus becoming the only double winner for the Germantown side.

Richard's Chops Work Well.

The game played by Vincent Richards is of a kind best calculated to offset the varied attack of the brilliant Tilden. The well-placed chops of the Yonkers boy prevent a consistent rushing of the net, and make a chopping return a difficult matter. His own volleying is deadly against anything but the fastest and most accurate of drives.

Tilden's cannon ball service yesterday had no terrors for Richards. He was able to bunt the ball down the sidelines in his usual imperturbable fashion, and the Philadelphian was again forced to play him largely from deep court, as in the historic indoor final.

Once driven out of the most telling offensive position, America's second ranking player was baffled by the exceedingly accurate and aggressive volleying of the junior champion. Richards showed an uncanny anticipation of the ball's flight, and by waiting always until the last moment for making his shot, he was able to secure sharp angles and a confusingly disguised direction, which often left his tall opponent absolutely out of reach of the ball.

It was nip and tuck throughout the first set, but after Richards had put this to his credit at 6—4, he went after the second with a world of confidence and allowed his rival only two more games before closing out the match.

Pearson's victory was won with a far softer game than was displayed by the two headliners, but his steadiness pulled him through safely, against the almost equally dependable defense of Halsey Wood. The opening set was hard fought, going eventually to the Philadelphian at 7—5, and this success gave him confidence to hang stubbornly to his lead until the second was his at 6—3.

Hartmann's left-handed loop-drives proved too much for L. C. Wistar, the former football star, both sets falling to the New Yorker by 6—3 scores. Rodney Beck, one of the best of the Philadelphia juniors, proved even easier for Allen Behr, who allowed him only one game in the opener, and then closed out the match by a comfortable margin at 6—1.

Uphill Fight for Toussaint.

Steinkampf won in straight sets from A. Morton, but Toussaint was able to gain a victory over S. White only after the stiffest kind of an uphill battle. The New Yorker is a notoriously slow starter, and the first set went completely against him by the one-sided score of 6—2. Trailing in the second, and apparently on the road to defeat, Toussaint braced suddenly, and, by acquiring control of his fast deceptive forehand shot, pulled out to a tie score at 7—5. The rubber was well contested, but Toussaint always had a slight winning edge, and eventually landed the match with a 6—3 decision.

Richards and Behr, the Metropolitan, Manhattan, and North Side doubles champions, began well against Tilden and Beck, taking the first set at 7—5 after a brilliant exhibition of team play. Then Tilden's peculiar aptitude for doubles came more and more into evidence as he began making seemingly impossible shots, covering a vast amount of ground, and killing everything that came within reach of his racquet. The second set was quickly over at 6—3, and after another bitter struggle the rubber went to the same side at 6—4.

Pearson and Wistar proved too steady and resourceful for Steinkampf and Hartmann, the New York captain having one of his uncertain days overhead, while his southpaw partner was far more useful on ground strokes than as a volleyer. The match went in straight sets at 6—3, 7—5.

The last pairs of doubles rivals staged another three-set encounter, the third of the meeting, White and Bradley taking the opener at 7—5, while Jolliffe and Ostendorf found themselves in the next two for a final victory at 6—4, 6—2.

The New York team was yesterday without the services of Elliott H. Binzen, Henry H. Bassford, and Leon Croley, three of its most consistent winners, but the Germantown Cricket Club also played somewhat below its normal strength. By its intercity triumph the New York Tennis Club is entitled to the interclub championship of the East.

The summaries follow:

New York Tennis Club, (6;) Germantown Cricket Club, (3.)

Speedway Brushes Tomorrow.

The fourth weekly harness racing matinee of the Road Drivers' Association, scheduled for yesterday on the Harlem Speedway, was called off by the R. D. A. officials because of the unfavorable condition of the uptown half-mile racing stretch. The officials decided to run off their postponed matinee tomorrow afternoon beginning at 2 o'clock. A program of four brushes will be contested, as has been customary since the Fall season was ushered in a month ago. Additions have been made to the number of trotters and pacers in the competition, according to J. A. L. Barrington, Chairman of the Brush Committee.

HAM AND WEST LEAD.

Are High Scratch and Handicap Gunners in New York A. C. Shoot.

Only fourteen gunners reported for the first Sunday shoot of the season at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. The day was clear and were it not for a wind of moderate strength the conditions would have been ideal. As it was the scores were fairly satisfactory. The high scratch gunner was F. J. Ham, who took the event with a card of 91 out of a possible 100 targets. The high handicap gunner was H. C. West. With the exception of Ham, he alone had a full card of 100 targets.

The Sunday program this season is made up of four regular cups, all at 25 targets. They are the Tournament, the Byronel, the President and the Lyon cups. Last year, the Byronel Trophy was at 50 targets. Yesterday legs on these cups were scored by all gunners with full cards of 25 targets. In addition, there also is a Sunday Bueymeyer Cup. F. J. Ham and G. H. Martin scored with 48 out of 50 targets each.

The only straight string of the day was returned by Dr. G. H. Martin in the shoot for the President's Cup. Tomorrow the club plans to hold its first big holiday shoot of the season. The event will be at 200 targets. Shooting will start at noon. It is expected that more than a half hundred gunners will be on the firing line. The scores made yesterday are as follows:

STECHER VS. LEWIS TONIGHT

First of Championship Wrestling Bouts to be Held at the Garden.

The first of a series of wrestling bouts designed to crown an undisputed champion will bring together Joe Stecher and Ed. "Strangler" Lewis in a finish match at Madison Square Garden tonight. They will wrestle catch-as-catch-can with the strangle hold the only grip barred.

For the last several years the heavyweight wrestling title has changed hands many times, but the holder never has felt that his claim to the coveted championship was established thoroughly. There have always been others to dispute it.

At present Joe Stecher has the most valid claim to the crown. Lewis is the first of the mat artists to get a chance at it this year and, since the management has announced that a fall must be scored, a definite decision is assured. It has been decided that the men will wrestle regardless of time until one or the other's shoulders have been pinned to the mat. Unless a fall is scored neither athlete will receive any money and the admission charges will be refunded to the spectators, according to an announcement by the management.

Additional interest in the match has been aroused because it will be a battle between Lewis's famous headlock and Stecher's powerful body scissors. For long it has been a mooted question in wrestling as to which of these two holds was the more effective. This question should be definitely settled when they meet tonight. When Lewis first introduced his headlock there was a general outcry against it. It is a particularly punishing hold when properly applied and wrestlers everywhere declared that it should be barred just as the strangle hold is. The body scissors is equally as punishing a hold and has caused fractured ribs.

Stecher and Lewis are in excellent condition for the test. Both men arrived in this city several days ago to put the finishing touches to their training for the bout. Lewis, who was hampered in several of his matches last season by minor injuries, has completely recovered and says he is stronger than ever. He has taken on some weight but is far from being fat. He did a great deal of work in the open during the Summer and early Fall in preparation for a strenuous campaign this Winter.

Stecher has been working on his farm at Dodge, Neb., and appears to be in excellent shape. He has devoted considerable time during the off season to developing his leg muscles to aid him in applying the body scissors. He, too, has taken on weight. He seems to be better developed from the waist up than he was a year ago. In the matter of weight Lewis will have a decided advantage. He tips the scale at 240, while Stecher weighs 220. In height and reach, however, Stecher has the edge.

George Bothner, the veteran wrestler and official, will referee the bout.

Newcastle United fell back as the result of a surprising defeat before its own supporters by the lowly-placed Preston North End. Quite the feature in this division was the fourth straight win of the famous Aston Villa team, which beat Middlesborough by 5 to 3.

In the Southern League Queen's Park Rangers lost its second game this season at Swindon, the town club accounting for the game by 5 to 2. Crystal Palace won again, beating Southampton by 3 to 0, and has yet to lose its first game in this competition.

November's Gridiron Tests.

The harvest season of football is at hand. The elevens of the colleges and universities are about to reap what they have sown. The big games—those traditional spectacles of the gridiron—toward which the coaches have pointed their teams, are just ahead and the intervening time is too short to permit of further experimenting. The mentors must stand on what they have built. They no longer can rip apart and remodel their machines. For weeks every energy and effort has been expended to gradually work the teams to a state of perfection, both in physical condition and playing ability, for these contests.

At most of the so-called larger institutions one or two games are the objectives each year. Victory in their feature games discounts anything that may have transpired previously during the campaign on the chalk-lined turf. The other contests on the schedules are arranged more in the way of practice gallops, designed to test in a measure the progress being made in the development of the teams. Frequently in recent years they have resulted in upsets. Frequently the "big 'uns" have been compelled to bow in defeat before the elevens which were intended to be used as sparring partners, but, later in the season, if the big team is able to humble its traditional rival or rivals, even though those rivals be weaker than many another team, the past is blotted out and the big team goes down in its university's history as a highly successful eleven and its coach shares proportionately in its glory.

The time has arrived when these teams are to be put to their "real tests." Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Pennsylvania, Cornell, West Point, and Annapolis are on the eve of those games which, to them and to their thousands of supporters, mean more than anything else in a football way. Beginning next Saturday, the first of these classics of the gridiron will be staged. In a football sense the contest does not measure up to that which was played at Hanover, N. H., on Saturday, when Dartmouth and Colgate grappled in a game that might have decided the more or less mythical championship of the East. As a traditional spectacle, however, it means infinitely more. Harvard will journey to Princeton to tackle the Tigers. The Crimson has not yet been beaten. Princeton has, but to their adherents the result of this game obliterates preceding episodes. The following week Yale and Princeton clash in the Bowl at New Haven. Yale, as well as the Tigers, has been beaten, but this fact will not deter some 70,000 enthusiastic spectators from crowding their way into the gigantic concrete amphitheatre to pay homage to their teams.

On Nov. 22 Harvard and Yale meet at Cambridge. On Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 27, at Philadelphia, those ancient pigskin rivals, Pennsylvania and Cornell, will play. Both elevens have suffered humiliation at the hands of so-called smaller opponents, yet the same cheer-laden, rabidly enthusiastic crowd will tax the capacity of Franklin Field to see the all-important tussle. And on Nov. 29, here in the midst of this hustling, bustling New York, will be staged a game which attracts more widespread and general interest than all others—the contest between the Army and Navy at the Polo Grounds.

Thus, beginning next Saturday and continuing for the remainder of the season, each week will be featured by one of those football fetes without which no season seems complete.

Minor Chords in Baseball.

The Winter season of baseball, that interesting period of player trading, rule making, circuit building, and other off-field activity, is almost here, and there is every indication that it will prove one of the busiest in years. The minors will start the ball rolling at Springfield, Mass., next week and the little fellows of the baseball group have much important work on their hands. With the game back to a stage of pre-war prosperity, the minors are prepared to do the reconstructing which timidity prevented them from doing last Fall.

A real battle in the ranks of the minor leagues is in prospect when the National Association delegates convene at Springfield. Many of the club owners of the association are decisively against a continuation of the system under which the minors have operated for the past year and will fight for a return to the old draft plan in vogue up to a year ago. The smaller minors argue that they have been the real sufferers under the non-draft system which the association decided upon last year, and they further contend that the Class AA leagues have broken faith in that part of the association code against the taking of major league players under an optional agreement.

Predictions are being made that the smaller minor leagues will make their big brothers accept a return to old conditions. This may be accomplished by voting to put the draft system into effect again and in bolting the meeting if the big minors refuse to listen. If the little fellows decide among themselves to make a drafting arrangement with the majors, the big minors must follow, since the Class AA clubs cannot compete with the majors in getting younger talent if the majors have access through the draft route. Indications point to the old order being in force again when the minors close their deliberations.

The major leagues will not have their innings until early in December and these sessions promise to furnish plenty of fireworks. The civil war that has developed in the American League around the Mays case shows no signs of an early settlement, though there has been little activity of late. Reconstruction plans, passed up a year ago because of the uncertainty of conditions, must be made during the next few weeks, and there are hints of reorganizations in the teams which should bring about plenty of trading. A revision of rules is in prospect, but of course the committee will take in only minor points of the playing and scoring rules, since the major part of the code could not be improved upon. From present indications there will be little opposition to the plan to legislate freak deliveries out of the game. All of the club owners who have discussed the subject have been in favor of reform or noncommittal. No real opposition has developed to date.

Great as the 1919 season was from all viewpoints, the feeling prevails that 1920 will be better, and the club owners will proceed on this theory when they get together a month hence. Hence one looks for a busy off season, even though there is no Players' Fraternity or a so-called outlaw major league to take up the attention of the magnates.

The Golf Winter League.

Now that the linksmen have just about decided to call the 1919 golfing season a thing of the past, the good old Winter League throws open its doors and the controversies begin. After all, is Walter Hagen a better player than Jim Barnes? After all, can Davie Herron defeat Bobby Jones on a neutral course? Passing on to the next matter of business before the league, what does the year 1920 offer out of the ordinary? Assuming that Miss Alexa Stirling makes her proposed invasion of England, can she conquer the British women such as Miss Cecil Leitch? Assuming, also, that Mrs. J. H. Hurd of Pittsburgh, the former Miss Dorothy Campbell, enters the British women's championship, can she regain the title which she won a decade ago? How is Bobby Jones going to compare with the leaders of Britain when he enters the amateur title play, as he plans? What is going to happen to the stymie? Will the controversies being waged on all sides concerning a standard ball converge into some definite action by the Rules of Golf Committee from the other side, and, subsequently, by the U. S. G. A.? That's an array of issues mighty enough to give any real golfer sleepless nights.

The linksmen were tricked by the season which is ending throughout the land, and which came to a close in the metropolitan district two days ago. It was heralded last Spring as a short year, a period of reconstruction following the war, and one in which the best golf representative of the past would not be equaled. Perhaps the British golfing season was inferior. At any rate, the London and Edinburgh journals describe it by that term. But here in the United States it succeeded more than the most optimistic linksman dared to prophesy, as he got out his caddy bag and prepared for action last April. All the championships were re-established, even the half-grown pros' series which had been conducted only once before the war. All the leading invitation tourneys, especially those which delight the hearts of New Yorkers who flock to this or to that course for the week-end events, were resumed and new ones launched. The membership of the U. S. G. A. has extended and is still expanding until the number of active and allied clubs is expected to total 500 by the time of the annual meeting, whereas there was a roll of only 458 a year ago and only 335 in 1912. Municipal links are springing up in the middle-sized as well as in the greater cities, affording the opportunity of the grand and glorious game to the salaried man and woman as well as to the magnate who cannot count his millions.

The war is not to be regarded as instrumental in the immense growth of golf. There were no tourneys conducted by the "Y" or the K. of C. at the camps and army posts to give an impetus like that received by boxing, baseball, and football. Golf appeals because it is a great, big, healthy sport. The critic who once upon a time sneered at it, much the same as he did at wrist watches, is probably now pondering how he can improve his mashie shots. He has taken it up, along with the millions of other Americans. It is no longer a game for the rotund, kindly old gentleman who is trying to reduce weight. On the contrary, the amateur champion is getting younger yearly.

Metropolitan stars who know every blade of grass on the district links will find themselves with new fields to conquer next season and in following years. Long Island is getting to resemble a mammoth sieve, with the golf holes being cut into it, and Jersey and Westchester are not lagging behind in the construction of new courses. The season of 1919 satisfied almost everybody, but golf in America has by no means reached its peak of popularity.

Tennis and College Letters.

That both Yale and Harvard have decided against the dignifying of tennis as a major sport must come as a distinct disappointment to those who are sincerely interested in the development of the game in America. There is a glimmer of hope in the suggested organization of an intercollegiate tennis league comprising Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Cornell and Pennsylvania, with the understanding that the members of the winning team each year shall be awarded the 'Varsity letter. Harvard also seems inclined to award the "H" to winners of the intercollegiate doubles as well as the individual title, which has always carried that honor with it. In other words, with this concession added to the new league, there will be a possibility of nine 'Varsity letters every season being awarded for expertness in tennis by the leading educational institutions of the East. It is not much, but it is something.

It is the question of insignia that may, after all, block the proposed league. For some reason, college students who are willing to place their 'Varsity letter on the chest of a man who has been permitted by courtesy to play for a few minutes in the "big" football game strenuously deny a similar honor to the expert of the racquet who has proved himself a leader in a far larger field, merely because his sport is one in which skill and brains count for more than brawn and the ability to stand hard knocks.

Fred Moore, Harvard's graduate manager of athletics, was in favor of making tennis a major sport, but was overruled in the matter by the student council, who were reported "overwhelmingly against it." Captain Helm of Harvard and Captain Garland of Yale are among the strongest supporters of the alternative of a regularly organized league. But such a league will be a possibility only if all the universities concerned agree to award the 'Varsity letter to every member of a champion team. This plan would not in any way affect the regular intercollegiate tournament, which is played every September at the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, and decides the individual singles and doubles for the year.

At Harvard tennis is being treated more seriously than ever before, and there is talk of engaging a professional coach if the proposed league becomes a reality. So far as actual interest is concerned, tennis is at present essentially a major sport at practically all of the more important Eastern colleges. It needs only the official recognition of the athletic governors to give it a technical standing equal to its real place in the hearts of players as well as spectators.

The officials of the United States National Lawn Tennis Association have agreed that the most important factor in the development of the game at present is the encouragement of juniors who exhibit unusual talent. The attitude of the colleges is necessarily reflected in the attitude of the average American youngster toward tennis, and until the collegiate point of view is radically changed its influence will be definitely one of discouragement rather than of progress.

Racing's Added Feature.

One of the most interesting features of the Autumn racing season is the keen, but friendly, rivalry which has developed between Commander J. K. L. Ross and Sam C. Hildreth, who control the two most powerful stables in the country. These two sportsmen are now matching their best racers in the meetings in Maryland in an effort to win the turf supremacy for the year, and also for the honor of having won the greatest amount in purses, and while thus engaged they are adding materially to the success of the sport.

Racing during the Autumn months usually lags because of the fact that many of the best performers are retired at this time of the year and the meetings are left largely to the cheaper horses. But with the presence of Ross and Hildreth, Maryland racegoers are being treated to a brand of sport which is second only to that which was offered at Saratoga when the racing season is generally supposed to reach its high-water mark.

So far, the score in the Maryland campaign is in favor of Commander Ross, who has won victories with his Sir Barton, Billy Kelly, Milkmaid, and Boniface at the expense of his New York rival. Hildreth has scored with Thunderclap and Dominique, and, with the latter, seems to have the two-year-old situation pretty well in hand, but he has met with disappointment with Lucullite. The latter has made both his starts on muddy tracks and has not seemed able to do his best.

The next important meeting of rivals from these stables will bring out Mad Hatter and Sir Barton and this race will probably decide which of the owners has the best three-year-old now in training. Sir Barton holds a victory over Mad Hatter, but the latter has since improved, and their next meeting should provide one of the best contests of the season.

As far as the winnings for the season are concerned, Hildreth now has a lead, owing to the victory of Mad Hatter in the $50,000 Latonia Championship, the richest stake of the year. Up to that time Sir Barton and Billy Kelly had kept the Canadian sportsman at the top of the list. The meeting at Pimlico will probably determine which one will have the honors.

SEGRETTO CAPTURES HARLEM ROAD RACE

Leads Field of Forty-six Harriers Home—Morningside A. C. Takes Team Laurels.

Benjamin Segretto of the Morningside A. C. scored his second road-running victory of the season yesterday when he led home the pack of harriers who competed in the handicap chase of the Harlem Heights Athletic League over the Colonial Lyceum's course of about five and one-half miles. Segretto, starting with a handicap of four minutes in a field of forty-six harriers, showed the way over the major portion of the course and flashed past the officials at the finish with a victorious margin of about ten yards over Irving Lehman, a clubmate. Lehman started with an allowance of 3 minutes 15 seconds. J. Magee, another Morningside harrier, who started with Segretto, occupied third position at the finish. The victor's actual time was 31:55.

The race produced a three-cornered contest between Segretto, Lehman, and Magee. Those three harriers were out in front of the pack after the first mile and a half. They raced almost shoulder to shoulder, the lead alternating occasionally. The changes in the trail-breaking position kept the field moving at a stiff pace, and caused many of the starters to retire as the race progressed. Wilson Prock of the Harbrook Heights A. C., one of the early leaders, dashed out of the pack following Segretto, Lehman, and Magee, at about the second mile in an effort to overhaul the three Morningside harriers. Prock was within ten yards of his rivals when he collided with a passing automobile and was knocked down. The Harbrook Heights harrier quickly picked himself up and continued racing, none the worse for his accident, but he could not regain his stride and failed in his efforts to close the gap separating him from the leaders.

Thereafter the battle for first prize was confined to Segretto, Lehman, and Magee. Up to the final furlong the three tried alternately in mad sprints to shake off their rivals, but without success. Entering the final 220 yards, Segretto went away in a spurt with Lehman hot on his trail. Magee kept up with the pace for a short distance, but gradually weakened and the struggle rested between Segretto and Lehman. The former possessed the greater stamina, and remained in front, closing with a burst of speed which gave him a ten-yard margin of victory.

Clarence Mitchell, St. Christopher Club, was the back-marker, starting off the 45-second mark. He carried off the fast time prize and gave an impressive display of early season form, finishing in thirteenth position in the actual time of 29:58. This was 39 seconds faster than the time of H. Brown, Harbrook Heights A. C., who carried off second fast-time laurels.

The monopoly of Segretto, Lehman, and Magee on the first three positions, gave the Morningside A. C. team the point laurels. This quintet completed the race with the low total of 31 points. A margin of one point separated the Harbrook Heights A. C. and Alpha P. C. C., which finished second and third, respectively.

The order of finish follows:

HERZIG LEADS CLUBMATES.

Wins Brooklyn A. A. Five-Mile Run After Feature Race Is Canceled.

Because of the absence of a representative entry for the scheduled Long Island Athletic League five-mile handicap road race, which was to have been conducted over the Brooklyn A. A. course yesterday, officials of the Brooklyn A. A. declared the league race off and conducted a mixed race for its members. The run was divided into fast and slow groups, which were sent away at intervals of three minutes, the slow runners getting under way first.

Sam Herzig, one of the fast group, captured the race, leading home a field of twenty-two rivals after a hard struggle with William Murray. Herzig crossed the finish line a winner in 28:30, while Murray was second, five seconds behind his clubmate. Frank Ruddy finished third. The leader of the slow group was Louis Goodman, who covered the five miles in 31:50.

KAMMER-GWATHMEY TEAM IS WINNER

A gallery of 400 tramped around the Richmond County Country Club's links yesterday afternoon to watch one of the closest four-ball matches of the year and to see A. F. Kammer of Baltusrol and Gaines Gwathmey of Apawamis defeat Archie McIlwaine of National and A. L. Walker, Jr., of the home club by 1 up. Although none of the quartet came threateningly close to par, the two pairs battled on even terms throughout the first half, and turned for home with the match all square. Kammer, the former perennial Staten Island champion, and Gwathmey won a pair of holes early in the second half, but McIlwaine then won the fifteenth, and the losers carried the match to the home hole by halving the last three.

Kammer, who knows the Richmond County links better than any others of the four, shot the lowest score of the day when he took a 79, against a par of 71. His partner, Gwathmey, was next best with an 80, McIlwaine took 81 and Walker, the Columbia student and intercollegiate champion, had to be satisfied with an 83, although playing on his home course.

The turf was wet and soggy from the rains of Saturday, and only rarely did any of the contestants exhibit brilliant work. On many of the holes the high wind handicapped the players. On the fifth, Gwathmey laid an approach dead to the pin and holed out in a birdie 4. McIlwaine also brought forth applause by dropping a 20-foot putt on the short ninth for a birdie 2.

The best ball scores follow:

ROBINS WIN AT SOCCER.

Eliminate Morse Eleven from National Series by 3 to 2 Decision.

With plenty of scoring in the first half and none in the second, the while the decision hinged upon a penalty kick, the Robins Dry Dock soccer eleven earned a 3-2 victory in the first round of the National Challenge Trophy competition at Todd Field, Brooklyn, yesterday, thereby eliminating Morse Dry Dock from the cup tie series of the United States Football Association.

A long shot by Clarke from near midfield, carried along by a stiff breeze, landed in the Morse net after seven minutes of play. Ten minutes later, Ratican, off a pass by Garside, placed the Robins two up. Next Lynch, star centre on the Morse team, came through with two points in succession, both times outwitting the defense by shifty play. This tied the score. A penalty given against McCann raised a great uproar, but the Robins got their free kick for goal, which Ratican made.

Fine defensive work on the part of the Robins throughout the second period enabled them to hold their lead until the end.

Scoring the only goal within three minutes of the start, the Interborough soccer team scored its initial victory in the cup tie series of the United States Football Association yesterday, defeating the Longfellows of Brooklyn at Lenox Oval. Walker, off a pass by Wilkinson, shot the goal that decided the issue.

The New York Football Club, scheduled to meet Paterson at Lenox Oval on Election Day, eliminated Greenpoint from the U. S. F. A. cup series at McGoldrick Field, in Brooklyn, yesterday, winning by 2 goals to 1. Slade of Greenpoint notched the first point of the game, after ten minutes of play, but Cullahan equalized fifteen minutes later. Near the close of the second half, Sweeney of New York shot the winning goal.

Closely fought from start to finish, the Metropolitan League soccer match between Astoria and White Rose, at Astoria, was won by Astoria by 2 goals to 1 yesterday. Frost scored first from a mixup, four minutes before half time, Astoria leading by 1 to 0. Sherrit of White Rose scored in the second half, but Frost came to the front again with the winning tally.

Pitted against the Geneva Football Club at Woodside, L. I., yesterday, the Rangers had to be content with a 1—1 tie in the Metropolitan League championship. Murray of the Rangers scored in the first half and Hackett equalized for Geneva in the second period. Purdy played a star game for the Rangers.

After establishing a 3—1 lead in the first half, the soccer team representing the Victor A. A. F. C. succumbed to the American A. A. F. C. to the tune of 5 goals to 3 at Clark's Field, in East Newark, yesterday. The game was in the first round of the U. S. F. A. competition.

New Captains for Navy Teams.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 2.—Selections have been made to fill vacancies in the captaincies of two of the Naval Academy teams, caused by resignations of midshipmen. William A. Porter, Jr., of Oklahoma has been named to lead the field and track team in place of Frederick A. Mayberry of the same State, and Charles S. Lamdin of West Virginia will lead the swimmers instead of Harold E. Koch of Wisconsin.

Third Basket Ball Victory.

The Holy Name Big Five basket ball team scored its third straight victory of the season yesterday afternoon at the Manhattan Casino, when it defeated the Bantams of Yonkers, 37 to 19. Acker, Wassner, and Driscoll were the stars for the Holy Name quintet. A game has been arranged for next Sunday between the Macomb's A. C. and the Holy Name five, to take place on the same floor.

Pennant A. C. Road Run.

The Pennant A. C. of the Bronx will usher in its road-running season tomorrow afternoon with a five-mile invitation chase, starting and finishing in front of the clubhouse at 138th Street and Third Avenue. The race is scheduled to start at 3:30 o'clock. A number of prominent distance runners have been invited to compete.

NEW BRANCH FOR A. A. U.

Separate Association to be Formed for Northeastern New York.

Completion of arrangements for the formation of another sectional association of the Amateur Athletic Union was announced yesterday by Herman W. Obertubbesing, Chairman of the A. A. U. Redistricting Committee. The new association, which will take away some of the territory formerly under the supervision of the Metropolitan A. A. U., will be known as the North Eastern New York A. A. U., and will be the third new subsidiary of the A. A. U. to be organized by the Redistricting Committee which was appointed at last year's convention. The others are the Niagara A. A. U. and Indiana A. A. U.

This latest addition to the list of A. A. U. sectional bodies was tentatively organized at a meeting Saturday night in the offices of the Chamber of Commerce at Albany. Announcement of the details of the meeting was deferred until yesterday. The meeting was attended by representatives of forty organizations in the proposed new district, with Lawrence S. Hill, Director of Physical Training in Albany's public schools, and A. A. U. commissioner in the capital district, in the chair. In making their plans for the new association, the officials decided to include the territory north and east of Oswego, Onondaga, Cortland, Tioga, Dutchess, Ulster, and Sullivan Counties.

CHASE FOR EASTERN FOOTBALL HONORS FINDS FIVE LEADING ELEVENS STILL UNDEFEATED

TOPSY-TURVY GAMES AMONG BIG ELEVENS

Fall of Such Favorites as Tigers and Penn Shocks the Gridiron Dopesters.

SEVERAL ELEVENS UNBEATEN

But Uncertainty of This Week's Games May Lessen the Prestige of Dartmouth and W. and J.

Football played true to its 1919 form on Saturday in the matter of upsets and surprises. It has been a hard season for the gridiron dopesters, but an eminently interesting one because of the uncertainty and general topsy-turviness that it has developed. Nearly every prophet of the game in advance of last Saturday had picked the University of Pennsylvania to beat Penn State, and many of them thought Princeton had at least a fair chance to defeat West Virginia. None expected such an overwhelming defeat for the Tiger as 25 to 0. That Lafayette should crush Cornell by such a score as 55 to 2 was also a bit of a shock.

In fact, the only outstanding game among the more important ones of Saturday that did not go contrary to predictions was the Colgate-Dartmouth game, and that was simply because few had the temerity to pick a winner in that case with any amount of assurance. The general opinion seemed to be that the teams were evenly matched, and that the score would be close. That particular game is still in as much in doubt as ever, and the teams are still evenly matched.

Prior to Saturday, the leading undefeated elevens in the East were Harvard, Pennsylvania, Lehigh, the Navy, Dartmouth, Colgate, and Washington and Jefferson. The first November games of the season eliminated Pennsylvania and Lehigh from the list, which seems to leave the problem up to Harvard, the Navy, Dartmouth, Colgate, and Washington and Jefferson. Such teams as Wesleyan and Stevens, both of which also have clean slates for the season, are omitted in view of the fact that they have not encountered teams of calibre to warrant their consideration for championship honors.

Hazy Outlook This Week.

Of the teams among the first flight, Colgate and Dartmouth, having played the most difficult schedules of the five, seem to be in the lead for the time being. But this situation, like the railroad time table, is subject to change without notice. Dartmouth will have to meet Pennsylvania this week, and W. and J. must encounter Glenn Warner's smashing Pittsburgh outfit. Either of those games may change the complexion of the situation materially. And it is always possible in football for a team that has been defeated in mid-season to prove by later performances that it is still to be counted in for final honors.

Harvard, the Navy, and Colgate may be counted upon to preserve their collection of victories intact this week. Harvard, of course, should add considerably to the woes of the downtrodden Tiger, and a result other than a Crimson victory would furnish one of the greatest upsets of a season of upsets.

Harvard continued on the even tenor of its way Saturday with a victory over the Springfield Y. M. C. A. College. The Harvard schedule makers, like those of Yale, saw to it that the games arranged prior to those with Princeton and Yale were not of a calibre seriously to offer the danger of defeat. Yale, in this respect, came a cropper in encountering the Boston College eleven, but in advance Boston College looked like easy picking for the Blue, and, in fact, would probably have lost five games out of six to the New Haven eleven if that many games could have been played this Fall.

Tiger's Schedule Harder.

Whether schedules of that nature are in the best interest of Harvard and Yale is, of course, a matter for Harvard and Yale to decide. But if both were to list at least two games other than those between themselves with teams of first-rate ability and reputation, such as Penn, Penn State, W. and J., Syracuse, Colgate, Dartmouth, Lafayette, et al., it would add greatly to the value of their season's work in the eyes of the general football public. In this connection it is to be noted that Princeton is far from adopting any policy of keeping her gridiron warriors in cotton batting, so to speak, until her games with Harvard and Yale.

There seems to be little doubt of a Harvard victory, of course, though the Tiger, stung by repeated reverses, may afford more opposition than seems likely on the face of the returns already in. If Roper has anything up his sleeve he certainly will unloosen it this week. Princeton may be depended upon to fight every moment of the going with sturdy courage and gameness. She has proved that she will do that even in the face of sure defeat. The Harvard players will have the advantage of experience and condition, however, and these are important matters. In punting Scherer of Princeton showed Saturday that he can hold his own with any of them, but this was about the only department of play that gave the Tigers' supporters ground for encouragement in the West Virginia game. The Tigers seem utterly unable to solve a well-prepared forward passing attack, and Harvard is supposed to have developed its aerial play to a high degree of proficiency.

Dartmouth Favorite Over Penn.

Of special interest to New York followers of football, inasmuch as the game is to be played at the Polo Grounds next Saturday, and of importance in its bearing upon the ultimate standing of the Eastern elevens, is the meeting between the University of Pennsylvania and Dartmouth. In previous years Dartmouth has won most of its games with Penn. In 1913, their first meeting, the Green triumphed 34 to 21, and the following year strengthened the dose with a 41 to 0 score. Dartmouth won, 7 to 3, in 1915, and the game the following Fall was a 7 to 7 tie. Last year, with S. A. T. C. teams in the field, Penn turned the tables and won, 21 to 0. On the performances of the present season Dartmouth is the favorite for next Saturday. The big Green team defeated Penn State, 19 to 13, and Penn State vanquished Penn 10 to 0, but the deceptiveness of comparative scores is an oft-told tale in football.

In the other game of the week which New Yorkers will witness at the Polo Grounds, that between Syracuse and Rutgers on Election day, tomorrow, it will be interesting to note what Sanford has been able to accomplish with his material since Rutgers's defeat at the hands of Lehigh. Syracuse should win, but Rutgers may be able to make it a close contest. Syracuse maintained its excellent showing of the season, marred only by the defeat by Pittsburgh, in its game against Brown, the margin of superiority over the Providence eleven being even greater than the score of 13 to 0 showed. In encountering Brown, Rutgers, and next Saturday Bucknell, all in the space of eight days, Syracuse certainly shows a sportsmanlike willingness to take chances, especially in view of its all-important game with Colgate to follow a week later. Rutgers and Boston College should have an interesting setto later in the week at New Brunswick.

Eli's May Find Trouble.

Yale, which had an easy workout with Maryland State, will find Brown a more active opponent this week-end, but Yale ought to win with a fair amount of emphasis. Cornell will have an opportunity to recuperate from her three successive setbacks, in her game with Carnegie Tech, Lafayette.

Sol Metzger's Union team gave Columbia a shock by holding the local eleven to a scoreless tie. Columbia outrushed and outpunted Union and showed more knowledge of football, but she could not deliver the winning punch. It it hard to analyze the trouble with the Blue and White eleven. It has the potentiality of a strong team, but it never meets its own possibilities. The team plays the unbeaten Stevens engineers, who gave such an admirable account of themselves against Rensselaer on Saturday, this week. Columbia ought to win, but when it encounters Wesleyan the following week a different story is sure to be told, unless Columbia braces astonishingly in the meanwhile.

Judging by her conquest of Penn, Penn State should be able to defeat the strong Lehigh team next Saturday, by a reasonable margin. Warner's Pittsburgh warriors have two hard weeks' work cut out for them, encountering the unbeaten Washington and Jefferson eleven this week in a game that should be worth traveling many parasangs to view, and meeting the University of Pennsylvania eleven the following Saturday. Anybody who can find a soft spot in either of those two games, regarding them from any angle whatever, would be apt to look for sofa cushions in a granite quarry. Washington and Jefferson had a day of idleness Saturday, but it be asserted safely that it will be far from idle this coming week-end. If the Presidents are able to maintain their record unblemished by defeat, they will be riding the top wave of football superiority among the Eastern highfliers.

Notre Dame to Visit Army.

While the Navy is playing Georgetown Saturday, the Army will be running up against Notre Dame in a game that should furnish the season's first East-West comparisons. Notre Dame comes east fresh from a victory over Indiana. The Army Saturday discovered that it could not afford to underrate the plucky Tufts eleven, and obtained the upper hand only by rushing in its regulars in the second half. Both Army and Navy are coming along in a fashion that seems to indicate that their Polo Grounds classic will be one of the most closely contested matches of the year.

For the triangular championship in New England, Wesleyan, unbeaten and with its goal line still uncrossed, has the call over Amherst for next Saturday. Wesleyan's victory over Williams was a decisive affair and, incidentally, uncovered one of the most skillful drop kickers of the year in the full back, Boote.

PLAN SPECIAL RACE FOR TWO-YEAR-OLDS

John P. Grier, On Watch, Blazes, and Others May Meet at Pimlico in an Extra Test.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 2.—If plans which are now maturing are carried out successfully there will be a race during the present meeting at Pimlico which promises to be the best test for juveniles since the running of the Futurity at Belmont Park in September. An effort is being made to bring together about half a dozen of the best two-year-olds now in training for a test at a mile at scale weight, and the prospective candidates are H. P. Whitney's John P. Grier, G W. Loft's On Watch, Captain Raj Parr's Blazes, R. F. Carman's Carmandale, and W. R. Coe's Cleopatra and David Harum.

It is not the intention to make this a championship race because all the owners interested, much as they prize their own racers, are willing to concede that Man o' War can beat anything of his age and is entitled to all the glory that has come to him. However, with the retirement of Man o' War there is considerable doubt as to which of a half dozen other youngsters is the best, and the rivalry among the owners is so keen that plans for this race have come as a natural result.

It was intended to hold this event during the meeting at Laurel, but several things happened to prevent it. Blazes received a slight injury to one of his legs and it kept him out of training for a short period. About the same time G. W. Loft sent On Watch to Kentucky, where he captured two stake events with considerable ease and proved that he was one of the top-notchers of his age. With these two out it was useless to hold a contest which was designed to determine the best of the youngsters left for the season. All of the horses mentioned are now available for a contest.

Later Meeting in Walden Stakes.

In the event that this race, as a special, is not held, these same youngsters will in all probability meet in the Walden Stakes along with a number of others. This will be one of the best events scheduled for the two-year-olds during the meeting, and is especially interesting since it points to the most promising of the coming three-year-olds, the candidates for the rich Preakness and Kentucky Derby, to be run next Spring.

At the present time John P. Grier is generally considered the second best two-year-old in the country, chiefly because of the fine race he ran in the Futurity, when he was second to Man o' War and came through his field from a bad start to gain that position. This is not his only accomplishment by any means, as he has proved his merit in several hard tests, and according to Trainer James Rowe, who recently set a price on the colt of $150,000, John P. Grier is the closest performer to Man o' War this season has produced. Rowe contends that his colt had the champion straightened out at the finish of the Futurity. Though that view is not generally held, it is conceded that the Whitney horse is dangerous for any contender.

The most recent development is On Watch, which is now running to his best form after a long delay earlier in the year. On Watch was not able to get into condition for the numerous rich stakes that were run on the metropolitan tracks, and thus not so much has been heard of him as of the others named. However, Max Hirsch has contended all season that On Watch was the star of his table and when ready would make his mark. His victories in Kentucky made it clear that the son of Colin was not only gifted with speed, but had the qualities which make for a distance horse and a true stake performer.

Blazes Recovers from Injury.

Blazes is again in fine form and has been training at Pimlico for two weeks in preparation for engagements there. His injury is entirely healed, and when right he is one of the fleetest colts in the country. Carmandale has come back into winning form after some disappointments, and Cleopatra and David Harum have been training for the Pimlico events.

The Coe entries will merit serious consideration in any test at a mile, for David Harum has recently displayed a particular liking for the distance. Cleopatra was handicapped all season at five and a half and six furlongs, requiring a greater distance in which to develop her speed. In one test at seven furlongs she showed what she could do when given distance enough to make up for her inability to start quickly.

The meeting at Pimlico has attracted practically all of the important stables in the country with the exception of the one owned by A. K. Macomber, who intends to ship his horses to France. Luculiite, Mad Hatter, and Lord Brighton, from the stable of Sam C. Hildreth; Sir Barton, Billy Kelly, Cudgel, and Milkmaid, from the string owned by Commander J. K. L. Ross; C. M. Garrison's Be Frank and Exterminator, and Sun Briar, owned by W. S. Kilmer will be seen in action several times during the eleven days of racing. Special interest is being manifested in the Pimlico Cup at two miles and a quarter. This is not to be a weight-for-age race as are most cup races, but a handicap. As such it is likely to escape the fate that has befallen most of the weight-for-age races this season. These have been marked for failure through the presence of one great horse that all owners feared to race against. Thus Purchase had a walkover in the new Jockey Club Stakes at Belmont Park.

N. Y. LINEUP IN DOUBT.

What will be the lineup of the New York University football team tomorrow when it faces the Trinity College eleven on Ohio Field in their annual battle on the Bronx institution. The newly acquired associate coach, has made many changes in the Violet team and has tried several players at different positions. The shifting of Captain Cann to tackle has made necessary many other alterations. Cann will undoubtedly strengthen the line to a great extent, but the question of finding the coaches is who will take his place in the backfield. Gargan has tried several combinations of backs to find one which will be as effective as that used against Rensselaer last week, but is having a hard time doing it. Weinheimer is a fixture at right half back, and it looks as though Gibson will start at quarter. Tyne and Alderman are fighting for the other half back place, but neither compares with Cann. The full back position rests between Jackson and Cohen, and the former probably will get the call.

Another question is, who will start at the wings. The two places lie between Parkhurst, Adams, Levin, and Jackson, if the last named is not used in the backfield.

HEFFELFINGER AT YALE.

Great Guard of Early 90s Will Remain Until End of Season.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 2.—William W. Heffelfinger of St. Paul, Minn., today reached here to coach the Eli guards and centres for the remainder of the season. He was formerly Yale's greatest guard, having played on the teams of 1890-91-92. He has two nephews who are now identified with Yale football, Frank as manager and Tytton as half back.

The Yale lineup against Brown next Saturday, and against Princeton and Harvard, will probably be the same as against Maryland yesterday except that Captain Thomas Callahan will lead his men as snap back. In case it is decided not to play him Calvin, whose work yesterday was excellent, will probably get the assignment.

CHANGE IS DESIRED IN HOME-RUN RULE

Batsmen Now Denied Credit Under Certain Conditions—Herrmann Admits Mistake.

Ban Johnson's call for a meeting of the Rules Committee of the two leagues should result in much good. There are many minor points in scoring and playing rules which might be changed, even though the greater part of the baseball code hardly could be improved upon. One rule that should be altered is that referring to a home run. Under the rules now in effect a batsman who hits a ball out of the park in the final inning of a close game sometimes gets only a single for his feat, simply because a base runner occupies third base when the hit is made. He might get a double or a triple, according to conditions which prevail at the time the hit is made, but if there are enough runners on the bases to settle the game without his score he does not get credit for a home run.

This rule, providing that a game should end with the scoring of enough runs to break a tie, might be changed to advantage for the benefit of the home-run hitter. He should be allowed to complete the circuit any time he hits far enough, regardless of the base runners ahead of him or the score at the time. There is no particular reason why a game should not end with the score, 4 to 2, for instance, if a batsman clouts a homer in the ninth with the score tied and a runner on base. His performance is denied part of the credit due to it when he has to accept a single, double, or triple for a ride home run.

When Babe Ruth was closing in on some home-run records of other years during the latter part of the recent campaign this point was brought up. Suppose Ruth, after tying the best mark of previous years, hit a ball into the stands in a close game with a runner ahead of him on base and one run needed to win the game. He could not be credited with a home run under the present system. It might be argued that Williamson, Freeman, Cravath, and other home-run hitters worked under the same handicap. This is true, but that does not prove that the system should continue forever. The home run is the last word in hitting and the player who can hit one should get full credit, regardless of when the hit is made.

There will be no more nine-game world's series. Such is the announcement that comes out from Cincinnati, apparently on the word of Garry Herrmann, the man who urged the idea and won his point despite the opposition of Charley Comiskey, whose club battled Herrmann's in the recent series. The scheme did not work out up to the expectations of Herrmann, but, instead it developed certain features that proved decidedly unsatisfactory. As a result there is little likelihood of it being attempted again.

If the seven-game system had been followed this year the series would have been a big success in every way and the ultimate result would have been the same. It might be added that in nineteen out of twenty cases the club winning in nine games also would win under the seven-game arrangement. The various clubs profited to a considerable extent by the prolongation of the series, the players got close to $1,000 more than they would have received under the former plan, and yet there is no disposition to repeat the performance. Herrmann has declared himself against it, Pat Moran is said to be against it and some of the club owners who favored the plan when it was first announced have changed their ideas. It will be seven games when the champions of 1920 get together next October.

Colonel Jacob Ruppert of the Yankees has many ideas concerning the business side of baseball, but when it comes to the playing end he is satisfied to let Miller Huggins direct the policy of the club. The same goes for his partner, Colonel T. L. Huston. When asked yesterday how they would vote on the question of abolishing the spitball the Yankee owners took the attitude that they would be governed by Huggins's views on the advisability of such action. They have ideas, of course, on the movement to ban the odd deliveries, but they are keen enough businessmen to let Huggins's views determine the vote of the New York club. All of which appears to be the logical attitude for the club owner, until he knows how the manager feels on this particular subject.

There appears to be little chance of the spitball remaining in baseball. Seldom is any reform advocated which finds so many advocates as is the case in this particular agitation, which has been growing for some time, breaking out strongly within the last few weeks. Some opposition will develop when the time arrives for definite action against the spitter and other freak deliveries, as it is not to be expected that a club owner will legislate these deliveries out of the game if such a rule is likely to impair the effectiveness of his own pitching staff. It would be poor policy to weaken one's own club. However, most of the club owners in the two leagues are against these deliveries, and the exponents of the deliveries are scattered to such an extent that the rule should go through at the December meetings. It is not likely to become effective for a year, at least, the delay giving certain pitchers opportunity to change their style.

It might be added that many boxmen who appear to be pitching the spitball or the shine ball steadily do so only on rare occasions. The fact that a pitcher can use the delivery gives him the advantage of using the motion as a threat. By going through the preliminaries used in the freak delivery he can keep the batsmen guessing, and he thereby has an advantage which other pitchers without a spitter or shine ball do not possess. The spitball is used very successfully by a number of pitchers, but nothing like the number of times that the fan imagines as he sees the pitcher go through all the motions.

SIX-DAY RACE LOOMING UP.

Annual Fixture at Garden Will Carry $30,000 in Prizes.

The annual six-day bicycle race will take place at Madison Square Garden during the week of Nov. 30 to Dec. 6 and will be staged under the auspices of the International Six-Day-Race Company, Inc. The promotion of the race will be under new management and it is the intention of the new promoters to spare no expense in getting together the best field of riders available and making the event the greatest in the history of the fixture. The management will consist of Charles E. Hanson of Brooklyn and George H. Young of New York.

The international sprint and match races will be staged the closing day of the football season, Nov. 29, the night before the start of the big race. Arrangements are being made to sign up the foremost sprinters now racing before the public. The promoters will hang up $30,000 in prizes, the largest amount ever raced for in this or any other country.

THE TRUE ISSUE IN THE COAL STRIKE.

The great, the paramount, the vital question at issue in the coal strike ordered by the officers of the United Mine Workers is whether the Government representing all the people of the United States has the right to intervene to protect them from the consequences of a conspiracy to prevent the production of a necessity of existence. Coal is such a necessity, and it was the purpose of Acting President JOHN L. LEWIS and his confederates to close the bituminous mines of the country, practically to seal them up, even if the result should be to stop the transportation of food as well as fuel supplies and cause general suffering from cold and hunger, eventually sickness, starvation, and death in every community.

The averment of these labor leaders that their object was the winning of a new wage and working day schedule must be read in the sinister light of their determination to force that issue no matter what the consequences to the American people might be. They believed that they could wield a power, reinforced by the sympathetic—they hoped it could be made the general—strike, that would compel surrender to them; and they cared little if the cost of victory were widespread distress among the American people. They may have reasoned themselves into the belief that it would not come to this, but they were prepared to go to any lengths to prevail, against the operators, against the courts, against the United States Government itself.

What was the duty of the Government organized under a Constitution whose preamble proclaimed a purpose to "establish justice, insure domestic "tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general "welfare, and secure the blessings of "liberty to ourselves and our posterity"? The people, confronted by the menace of a dearth and failure of the necessities of life, fuel and food, as Winter was beginning, expected the Government to stand between them and the leaders of the great coal strike, to assert all its authority under the Constitution and the laws to keep the mines open and all the agencies of transportation in operation. If the Government should fail, then the United Mine Workers and their sympathizers, although a small minority, would be stronger than the Government, and America would be threatened with the fate of Russia.

Aside from the general power conferred by the Constitution, there is law enough to deal with the arrogant officers of the United Mine Workers. It was set forth in the application in the Federal District Court for a temporary injunction restraining them, to quote Attorney General PALMER, "from doing anything in furtherance of the strike order." "They cannot," he says, "direct the movements of "locals in putting the strike into "effect. It [the injunction as granted] takes away the direction of the "strike from above and leaves the "men to choose whether they will "work or not." The injunction runs not only against officers of the United Mine Workers, but against any persons conspiring to limit the production and transportation of coal. Pending further court proceedings on Nov. 8, the miners must carry on their strike without the leadership of Acting President Lewis and his associates. The time was shrewdly chosen for the order to stop work. All Saints' Day (Saturday last) is a general holiday in the mining regions. Sunday, a rest day, was to follow, and then only one day would intervene before Election Day, another holiday. Therefore, until Wednesday it will not be known how many miners are really out and what effect the vigorous action of the Government has had upon the men who were ordered to strike by their leaders, now charged with conspiracy in a Federal court.

THE CITY BUDGET FOR 1920.

Mayor HYLAN is quoted as saying that the people will not find much fault with next year's budget as finally adopted, although he himself had found fault with the proposed budget. Opinion will sustain him in thinking that $48,520,144 should not have been added to the tentative budget without necessity, and the necessity is disproved by striking out that amount. On the other hand, that reduction leaves the final budget larger than last year's by $25,665,051, or about 10 per cent. The administration which sought and obtained office on a promise of economy presents the city with its maximum budget, and presumably maximum tax rate since the early nineties. Then began the extraordinary increases in valuations which enabled the city to build subways, and which were justified by the still more extraordinary growth of the city's prosperity. It is difficult to imagine New York without the subways, and it is sure that without them the surrounding territory in other counties and States would have profited by the population which the city would have lost. Nevertheless the fact remains that the city's tax rate is now back to where it was just after consolidation into the Greater New York, and is about double its minimum.

No one administration can be held responsible for a tendency through all administrations for fifteen years, but the expected increase next year is likely to be the greatest of all. That is conjecture, and must remain so, for it is not known what the city's general fund will be, nor its share of the State income tax, nor the effect on the reduction of the personal tax, nor the loss of liquor tax through prohibition. Those who think how much the city has escaped will find occasion for rejoicing. Those who make comparison with previous budgets, and election promises, will be disappointed and critical. But even they must concede that the conditions are so unusual that they may fairly be pleaded in extenuation. In no other year would the increase of $23,000,000 for personal services have been either necessary or excusable. This year it accounts for nearly all of the increase which remains after the dropping of items which, it was said in debate, were inserted to be dropped, in order to create an illusion of economy; censure is not justified on that account.

Nothing can be said in extenuation of the levity with which the preparation of the city's bill of costs around $300,000,000 was prepared. It rarely rose above personal repartee and imputation of motives, and descended at times to lower levels. Of the reduction, $37,004,812 was in the Education Board's schedule. The schools will not suffer by the lack of what they never had, and could not have spent if given them. What the schools are suffering from is the lack of a policy such as they had in the former administration, and have lacked since. They have had the usual support in money, and will even have it next year. There are not seats enough, and more buildings are necessary, both in total and to provide for the shifting of population. But $12,500,000 was allowed for 1919 and "only a very small portion" was used. "A very substantial portion" of this sum will remain for use next year. A similar surplus was brought forward this year. Under such conditions something besides lack of money explains the bad state of the school buildings, and nothing justifies swelling the budget by impossible sums.

On this point there was a clash of principle. School buildings are not productive of city revenue, and therefore it is held that they should be carried as a current cost item in the budget raised by annual taxation. But school sites and buildings are permanent investment in city plant, and should be charged to capital account and raised by bond issues. The difficulty about putting them into the budget is that the sums are so large that the taxpayers would be burdened unduly and unjustly. The education law and the pay-as-you-go law both require amendment, the Controller's suggestion being that permanent betterments be financed by serial bonds, payable in annual amounts proportioned to the permanence of the property acquired by the cost. Just what prevents so important a subject from being discussed on the merits when the city's officers meet in public it is difficult to say. Perhaps if the budget were prepared just after election instead of just before it there would be fewer stage plays and more self-restraint.

THE JUDGES.

On the intelligent independent voters of the First Judicial District, Democrats, Republicans, women and men of whatever party or of no party, rests a momentous responsibility and duty, to be fulfilled at the polls tomorrow. Shall a political Boss pluck learned, efficient, upright, honored Judges from the bench and give their posts to others at his will? Shall the courts be kept free of political considerations or shall they become part of the spoils of office? Shall the courts be courts of the people or of the Boss?

Justice NEWBURGER of the Supreme Court and Judge SMITH of the City Court were entitled to renomination by faithful, unblemished, distinguished service and by the sound custom of renomination by both parties of Judges that have so served. What Mr. MURPHY refused, the people should grant. Judge SMITH and Justice NEWBURGER should be re-elected tomorrow. Both are Democrats. Both have been renominated by Republicans. Both should get the votes of all who want the courts kept independent, free, unpartisan.

PHILIP J. McCOOK, the Republican candidate for one of the two Justiceships of the Supreme Court to be filled tomorrow, is eminently fit for the place. His qualifications have been approved by the bar associations. He has been doing for years, when not absent fighting for his country in two wars, important law work. He is doing it now as a Special Master in the United States District Court. Severely wounded on the east bank of the Meuse last November, and cited for "distinguished conduct in action" and for having "displayed devotion to duty of the highest order," he will display on the bench the same devotion to duty; and he should be chosen.

Remember that two Justices of the Supreme Court are to be elected in New York and Bronx Counties. Vote for NEWBURGER and McCOOK.

FOUR AMENDMENTS.

Of the four proposed constitutional amendments to be voted on tomorrow, Number One and Number Two ought to be voted down. Number Three and Number Four ought to be approved.

Amendment Number One declares the use of property for the drainage of swamp and agricultural lands "a public use," and provides that the compensation for lands taken for drainage purposes and "the cost of "such drainage may be assessed, "wholly or partly, against any "property benefited thereby." Observe the doubtful, the suspicious phraseology. Instead of compulsory assessment of the property benefited and of none other, a permissive assessment is provided. Of right the whole assessment should be compulsory on the property benefited. Instead, the assessment may be laid wholly or partly on "any property benefited." The Legislature might make the State pay the whole drainage bill. It looks very much like a snare set against the taxpayer. At any rate, it is uncertain. It should be beaten.

Amendment Number Two authorizes the Legislature to provide for the voting and the canvassing of the votes of qualified voters unavoidably absent from their residences on Election Day. The number of such voters is unimportant. There is no reason why the State should hunt up absentee voters, set up an expensive apparatus for their special use, and invite fraud. Amendment Number Two is superfluous. It should be beaten.

Number Three raises the salaries of members of the Legislature. They now get $1,500 a year. The amendment gives Assemblymen $3,000, Senators $3,500. Can't we attract abler men to the Legislature by raising the pay of our legislators? Honesty, of course, has no relation to salary; talent has a close relation. Anyway, the experiment is worth trying. Amendment Number Three should be approved.

So, and with even more reason, should Amendment Number Four, which increases the salaries of the Judges of the Court of Appeals to not "less than the highest compensation "allowed by law to any other judicial "officer in the State," that is to $17,500 a year. The Judges of our highest State court should be adequately paid. Amendment Number Four should be added to the Constitution.

IN THE BOARD OF ESTIMATE.

Last week the people of this city saw the Board of Estimate, that finally laid upon it a budget of nearly $275,000,000, wrangling, quarreling, impotent, a board worthy of Gilbert-Sullivania, but a derision, a scandal, and a shame to a civilized community.

Is this comic opera finance to run unchecked, or shall we put some supervisors, some serious and able men, into this Tammany committee? Intelligence can at least show, if it can't block, follies and extravagances. In the Board of Estimate and Apportionment the President of the Board of Aldermen has three votes, as many as the Mayor, as the Controller. The Republican candidate is Major LA GUARDIA, that gallant aviator, that ardent American patriot, that Representative in Congress who has displayed so alert and admirable a talent for affairs and such keen, intelligent interest in economy and reduction of taxation. Everybody knows who he is and what he is. Put him on guard to protect the people's money in the Board of Estimate.

The President of the Borough of Manhattan has two votes in the Board of Estimate. City Magistrate CURRAN, Republican candidate for that Presidency, should be the candidate of all citizens who want the city to have the highest ability, the best experience, the best character in the Board of Estimate. A member of the Board of Aldermen, Chairman of the Finance Committee, member of the Sinking Fund Commission, Chairman of the Curran committee, reformer of the Police Department, majority leader of the Board of Aldermen, acting President of that board, acting Mayor, he has had a fruitful experience and service. He has acquired a knowledge of municipal affairs and finances almost unrivalled. He, too, was a fine soldier, Major of Field Artillery, then commander of the Motor Battalion, he sealed the dangers and glories of the Seventy-seventh Division on the Vesle and in the Forest of Argonne. Put him on guard of the people's money in the Board of Estimate!

FOR SURROGATE: JAMES A. FOLEY

The office of Surrogate is essentially judicial. Therefore partisanship should be left out of account in considering candidates for Surrogate. Mr. JAMES A. FOLEY happens to be the Tammany candidate. In the opinion of THE TIMES, which will not be suspected of undue tenderness for the East Fourteenth Street concern, Mr. FOLEY is fitter to be Surrogate than his Republican opponent, Mr. O'MALLEY. Excellent as are the merits of the latter, Mr. FOLEY's public services, his professional qualifications and experience, his learning, his record of achievement, are much superior. We have watched him in the Legislature for a dozen years, and in the Constitutional Convention of 1915. The Judiciary Committee of the Bar Association gives him noble and deserved praise for his "exceptional familiarity "with our State governmental sys-"tem and laws," his "thorough "knowledge of legal and constitu-"tional principles," his "legal scholarship," his "considerable and varied "professional work in the trial and "argument of cases and office mat-"ters," his "capacity" for judicial services" shown in his conduct as referee of complicated cases.

In short, Mr. FOLEY is fit to be Surrogate of this county. Without regard to Tammany or any other politics or partisanship, he should be elected.

THE SCHOOL SURVEY.

The modern educational survey is a praiseworthy device for the promotion of efficiency and responsiveness in a field of public service which is especially prone to suffer from stagnation. So potent has been the force of inertia that, in retrospect, the great educators of the ages have been distinctively known as reformers. The survey is a scientific method of finding out what is wrong with a school system instead of leaving it to the fanaticism of an inspired but impractical Pestalozzi or to the limited influence of a magnetic Mark Hopkins.

However, like the direct primary or representative government itself, it fails to function when it falls into incompetent hands or is used as a mask for other than legitimate purposes. The pending survey of the New York City schools grew out of a jurisdictional squabble between the Mayor and the City Superintendent instead of being the product of a legitimate need, and this at a time when it has been forcibly brought home to the people of the city that by far the largest item in the running expenses of their municipal household is that of education. Moreover, the differences of opinion as to the proper manner of conducting it have led to a tenacious between the Board of Education and the City Superintendent such as can only tend to nullify the benefits to be derived from a well-directed survey.

When the attempt of Mayor HYLAN to obtain control of the professional administration of the school system was balked in the courts the survey arose, it may be supposed, from the disappointments of defeat. Now that the survey has been a matter of debate for six months and the Directing Investigator has been at work for two months, President PALMER, who is the Chairman of the committee in charge and has been the moving spirit throughout the controversy, announces, simply: "I will now say "that this committee does not know "what it has in mind along the lines "of this investigation, and Dr. Er-"rington does not know, or does any-"body else know, if the committee "does not know." The investigator has never had professional training to qualify him as a teacher or school administrator. He has been an unsuccessful candidate for two high-salaried positions in the department. He began work on the survey (without yet having reported progress) two months before he was formally appointed by the Board of Education. The legality of that appointment is not questioned, but the special appropriation of $35,000 has not been passed upon, and, according to the Directing Investigator himself, will probably be buried in the Board of Aldermen.

These circumstances, in conjunction with the fact that within the last six years nine official surveys have been conducted in the New York schools at great expense and with meagre results, indicate some justification for the City Superintendent's statement to the State Commissioner of Education that the present survey "appears to wear a sinister aspect." Its purpose is admittedly unknown, it is not being scientifically conducted by an expert, and the manner of its beginning has given rise to suspicion and ill feeling where only harmony of purpose and whole-souled co-operation can effect results beneficial to the 800,000 children of the city. The board has already suspended the survey pending the decision of the State Commissioner upon its validity. The wise course for the board would be to abandon the questionable enterprise entirely, and at the same time to request $25,000 for the revivification of its own Bureau of Reference and Research, the Assistant Director of which has been working efficiently under severe limitations for four years, and thus to regain the confidence of the professional staff and of the people whose children's future is involved.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Hysteria Wisely Rebuked.

If feminine intelligence and common sense needed vindication, they would have needed it very appreciably less after the decisive vote by which the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs laid on the table—in other words, rejected and committed to permanent oblivion—a particularly absurd and obnoxious resolution which certain misguided members of the Federation had presented for adoption.

Except for its futility and superfluity, the beginning of the resolution could have escaped criticism, for it simply proclaimed that "we, the women of New York, will do all in our power to dress modestly." That is certainly their right and privilege, and the vast majority of them are exercising the one and enjoying the other by selecting and wearing garments which in the eyes of the aesthete are beautiful, in the eyes of the hygienist are conducive to health and protective of it, and in the eyes of moralists, as distinguished from prudes more or less prurient, are entirely seemly.

As compared with the styles of other days, and particularly with the styles of the Victorian era, those of this and several recent years are almost infinitely more commendable from all three of the points of view just mentioned. That these styles can be and are abused and exaggerated into indecency by the indecent is no reason at all for condemning them—no more than the fact that carving knives can be and are used for the commission of murder is a reason for demanding the abolition of these innocent and useful instruments. The abuses and the exaggerations, however, do not concern "the women of New York," except as by all improprieties of taste and all violations of morality, and they are about the poorest of imaginable excuses for declaring a situation, on the whole satisfactory, in desperate need of reformation.

Reformers Who Need Reformation.

After beginning well, or at least not ill, the resolution so emphatically and deservedly tabled by the metropolitan clubwomen proceeded to assume the reality of a widespread evil that does not exist, and vehemently to exhort action that would have been necessary only if a great majority, instead of a minute minority, of New York women had allowed themselves to be led by the designers of their clothing into dressing reprehensibly. That was nonsense, and worse.

That the designers of feminine fashions are not without fault is true, but the revolt against them should be because of the ugliness and stupidity of skirts too narrow for safe and graceful walking, not because of a sensible brevity that reveals—to nobody's real surprise—that women, too, are bipeds.

The people who are so shocked by the glimpse of a stocking or the sight of a white throat and a bit more might well be sufficiently alarmed by their condition at once to consult a good psychiatrist. They will find him perfectly familiar with states like theirs and competent to cure all except the worst and most firmly established of these unfortunate aberrations.

Extradition of the Kaiser.

Evidently the President of the Dutch Bar Association thinks in German, though he uses the Dutch language. That is shown by a recent speech of his, protesting with vehemence against yielding to the Allies if they should demand the extradition of the former Kaiser.

The question, curiously enough, seems to excite more interest in Holland than it does in Germany, and, still more curiously, the Dutch friends of the Kaiser are using arguments of which the Germans of today are far less fond than they were while the war was in progress and soon after the armistice was signed.

The head of the Dutch bar could find nothing better to say against the extradition of the Kaiser than that the demand for it was a manifestation of hatred and the lust for revenge. He quite forgot the possibility that what he called hatred might be a righteous anger, and that, instead of lusting for revenge, the Allies might simply be desirous of bringing to justice a great criminal.

His attitude of mind is truly Teutonic, but it is a little out of date, as for some time all except a few of the most junkerish Germans have tired of having their attention called to the inconsistency of denouncing hate as criminal, when they themselves for months and months preached it from their pulpits as a virtue. As a matter of fact, the Allies show no great eagerness to get the Kaiser into their hands, and no real certainty as to what they would do with him if they did.

If half of the current stories about him are true, his old illusions already have turned into out-and-out madness—a fate worse than his bitterest foes would inflict if at liberty to do with him what they chose.

Ending and Winning Are Unlike.

Several members of the Senate and House Committees on Military Affairs, in questioning General PERSHING, revealed that they, too, believe that American soldiers, after only a few months of instruction, went into the war and won it in spite of all that Germany's army could do after its endless preparation.

With that notion the General expressed disagreement as strong as he deemed judicious to make it. "Why," asked Senator MCKELLAR, "was it that we whipped the trained army of Germany with our citizen soldiery?" The reply was adroit: "Our allies held the lines while we trained. If we had had a trained army to go into the war in 1917, we might have ended the war that year."

It is to be noted that the General said "might have ended," not "might have won." The difference is more than considerable. Important, also, was his denial that officers could be or were made in three months, and his assertion that had we been better prepared when we entered the war our casualties would have been less numerous.

FROM A FRIEND OF LABOR.

Recent Excesses Harmful to Interests of Responsible Unions.

From The St. Louis Republic.

The Republic has been and is today a strong and sincere friend of organized labor. We have thrown open the columns of the paper daily to its activities and its arguments, we have helped fight many of its just battles against oppression, our publication plant is unionized throughout—in fact, we have gone so far in our loyalty to the worker that some employers have been offended at our attitude.

As a friend of organized labor we have the privilege that goes with true friendship—the right of kindly and constructive criticism. . . . We have talked with a number of intelligent union men and they are just as sick at heart as we are over the contract violations, the unauthorized strikes, and in some cases excessive hour and wage demands that are being made in the name of organized labor and that are rapidly turning public esteem into public distrust.

No doubt the longshoremen, the pressmen, and the coal miners have some grievances that are just, but the American people will never believe that their woes are so burdensome as to justify broken pledges, ruination of industry, and rioting.

We believe that most members of organized labor are high-minded men who have respect for their word and carry out their every obligation as honest men should. But the American Federation must remember that excesses are being committed under its banners, and unless it definitely repudiates all contract breakers, fomenters of violence, and foes of law and order, it will be held responsible for them in the minds of the people.

We have spoken in the interests of labor. It is because we believe that a strong, responsible American Federation of Labor is essential to our industrial development that we have said what we have.

Senator Williams and the Irish.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Michael J. O'Brien seems to have become very much excited over the speech of Senator Williams of Mississippi, in which he criticised some of the ridiculous claims that have been so frequently made in recent years by that class of exploiters of the Irish-Americans who make a business of being Irishmen.

Senator O'Gorman in a speech in the United States Senate, on losing his temper, made the rash statement that the Irish fought the Revolution and won American independence, while the English element of the colonists were all Tories. This highly pleased these professional Irishmen, and they have repeated it so often that now they really believe it themselves.

Mr. O'Brien is mistaken in thinking that Senator Williams made any attack on the fighting qualities or patriotism of the Irish in America at the time of the Revolution. He simply stated the fact, known to any one at all acquainted with history, that the Irish did not give any material aid to the revolutionary cause, for the reason that they were not here.

At the time of the Revolution the population of the American colonies was about three millions, while the Catholic population was only thirty thousand, just 1 per cent. Of this thirty thousand a majority were English Catholics, so that scarcely one-half of 1 per cent were Irish Catholics, and therefore could not possibly have composed or even been an important factor in the Continental Army, and it is no reflection on them to say that America owes nothing to them in gaining her independence, for they simply were not here and consequently could not have whipped the British army.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In answer to Michael J. O'Brien's statement in your issue of yesterday, please allow me to state briefly that there never has been any question as to the fact that the Irish in the Revolutionary army were the "most serious antagonists of the British"; but which Irish were they? They certainly were not the South of Ireland (Roman Catholic) Irish, for the Province of Quebec Roman Catholics were regarded by our Revolutionary fathers as a dangerous threat to the political welfare of the Thirteen Colonies—see Article XX. of the Declaration of Independence. But the liberty-loving Scotch-Irish, the English-Irish, and the French (Huguenot) Irish were Britain's "most serious antagonists."

Furthermore, it should not be forgotten that an Irishman named O'Hara delivered Lord Cornwallis's sword to an American at Yorktown.

CORNELIUS B. HITE.
Washington, Oct. 31, 1919.

STAND FAST, AMERICANS!

And who now dares to say that peace has come.
When, in this aftermath of war, we find
Nowhere a peaceful spirit in our land,
But, in its stead, class hatred, racial mobs,
Unnumbered violent crimes, and fevered hosts
Busy aligning for industrial strife?
What matters peace abroad with none at home!

There are too many voices boasting here
Of lawless creeds and sinister designs;
Too many hands that beckon us to tread
Strange paths that lead nowhither, or, more like,
To dire catastrophe. And most of these
Are foreign voices—aye, and alien hands,
Whose owners found full welcome in the past,
With safe asylum—yes, and such a chance
For betterment as they had never dreamed.
These, like the nourished viper in the tale,
Would now requite us with their poisoned fang.

There was a man among us—such a man!
Not oft has time we deem, beheld his like.
Would that his clarion voice might now be heard
In rallying patriot call—the voice
That never summoned to unworthy cause,
Nor ever called in vain.
No more, alas,
Will it be heard! But by Long Island's shore
There is a grave that to our souls will be Forever eloquent—to which, henceforth,
In times of public stress, as to a shrine,
Men's thoughts will pilgrimage, to seek and gain
Fresh inspiration and a new resolve.

Stand fast, Americans, upon the rock
Of this man's sturdy faith and loyalty,
Received against too easy bartering
Of that high place we fought two wars to hold;
Against all patience with red anarchy—
Aye, and those subtle doctrines that would seek
To change our purpose and to sap our force;
Against the dominance of any class,
Whether it be of labor, wealth, or creed;
Against all privilege to selfish greed.

FREDERIC B. BARD.

DR. JOHN KELMAN ARRIVES.

New Pastor of Fifth Av. Presbyterian Church Attends Communion.

The Rev. John Kelman, D. D., the newly appointed minister of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, to fill the place of the Rev. John Henry Jowett, D. D., who resigned and returned to England, arrived yesterday on the Anchor liner Columbia. Dr. Kelman was to have preached at the church yesterday morning, but the ship was delayed by storms for 24 hours and he notified the committee by wireless that he would be at the 4 o'clock service in the afternoon instead. George B. Agnew, head of the welcoming committee, who met him at the pier, informed him that the Rev. J. S. Ritchie, D. D., of Princeton University, had delivered the sermon in the morning.

Several hundred members of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church at Fifty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue, who attended communion services yesterday afternoon, met their new pastor. Dr. Kelman occupied a seat on the altar with the Rev. Drs. James Palmer and George Alexander, both of whom officiated at the services.

After the serving of the Lord's supper the new pastor offered up a prayer of thanks to God. He gave thanks for the unity of the nations and predicted that misunderstanding and hatred would be things of the past.

It was announced that Dr. Kelman would conduct his first official services next Wednesday night at the mid-week prayer meeting.

Dr. Kelman said yesterday that this was his fifth visit to America. He was here when the United States entered the war in April, 1917, and was with the American soldiers at the front, where he was acting as liaison clergyman between the British and American chaplains. The labor situation was bad everywhere, including America, he said, but he believed that it would come out all right in the end.

ASKS JOBS FOR WOUNDED.

Re-employment Chief Wants Work for All by Armistice Day.

An appeal for positions for wounded, gassed and shell-shocked men, many of whom have just been discharged from military hospitals and who must find work at once was issued last night by Alfred L. Smith, executive secretary of the Re-Employment Committee for Soldiers, Sailors and Marines.

"Jobs are wanted for men who are able to do only light bench work, and for gassed men who must work outside," he said.

"We have 100 disabled heroes who must have employment immediately. It will be one of the saddest things in the world if every injured soldier is not working by Armistice DAY. For that matter, every ex-service man ought to be in a civilian position by Nov. 11. I hope the New York public will 'finish the job' by placing the lads who were responsible for the signing of that paper."

Positions are wanted for pipefitters, drill press operators, laborers, helpers, handy men, all trades, bookkeepers, accountants, file clerks, stenographers, typists, office clerks, professional and technical men, office managers, college graduates, secretaries, correspondents, motor truck drivers, teamsters, drivers, salesmen on salary and commission basis, junior salesmen, cooks, bakers, apprentices and beginners, and advertising men.

APPEAL FOR WAR ORPHANS.

Italian Relief Committee Asks Dolls and Clothing for Children.

Dolls for Italian children have begun to be received at the office of the New York committee of the Italian War Relief Fund, at 347 Madison Avenue, as the result of the publication of a poem entitled "The Only Doll in the Valley," written by Robert Underwood Johnson, President of the committee. The poem records the fact that in the Valley de Ledro in Northern Italy there is only one doll, the property of a little girl "with the tinkling name of Ottilia," whose photograph has led the committee to start the work of providing Christmas cheer for girls all over Italy.

It is not only dolls that are wanted, but with them some article of children's clothing. The committee, by the courtesy of Admiral Cons, is sending on the Italian dreadnought Conte di Cavour, which sails from Norfolk today, along with a first consignment of dolls, $4,000 worth of children's shoes, stockings, and underclothing, chiefly for war orphans of the Italian Navy.

The committee's fund has reached $156,000, nearly all of which has been cabled to Italy for the relief of orphans.

GIRL SCOUTS RAISE $35,000.

Mrs. V. Everit Macy Expects to Have $100,000 by Armistice Day.

Mrs. V. Everit Macy, who is Chairman of both the City and National Campaign Committees, announced last night that more than $1,100 had been contributed by school children at Girl Scout Headquarters, 189 Lexington Avenue, in pennies, nickels and dimes, during Friday and Saturday.

With the addition of the $1,100 reported from the children's contributions, the total for the city to date is $34,000. This is far below the quota of $100,000 and 100,000 associate members set for Manhattan, but Mrs. Macy is confident that the goal for the city will be reached before Armistice Day, Nov. 11, to which date the drive has been continued.

Several hundred policemen have contributed $1 and received a button indicating associate membership.

The Rev. Henry F. Xavier, from St. Mary's Church, Newburgh, to be pastor of St. Athanasius's Church, the Bronx.

LEAGUE DENOUNCES HEARST

College Men and Women Discuss Local Politics.

A meeting of 800 men and women of the Collegiate Non-Partisan league was held yesterday at the Hotel Ansonia, when the topic, "Hearst or Murphy," was discussed by members of delegations from several colleges.

The speakers endeavored to rip "the mass of camouflage which covers local issues," and the league went on record in denunciation of William Randolph Hearst and his followers, and in approbation of the Democratic Party candidates in tomorrow's election.

Arrangements for thirty-minute meetings throughout the city today under the direction of the League were made. The League will enlist its members as watchers at the polls.

RED CROSS DRIVE BEGUN BY CHURCHES

5,000 WORKERS MOBILIZED

Will Commence House-to-House Canvass Throughout City Today—Cardinal Mercier Praised Work.

An army of Red Cross workers, 50,000 strong, has been mobilized for the Third Red Cross Roll Call, which started yesterday with appeals in many of the churches. This morning the workers will begin a house-to-house canvass in homes, in factories, in business offices, in schools, lodges, clubs, social organizations, and everywhere in industrial, mercantile, and social circles. The campaign will continue until Armistice Day, Nov. 11.

The city has been divided into five districts, with headquarters for each. In addition there will be special campaigns in the factories and stores, the hotels, moving picture theatres, railway stations, and settlement houses.

The workers who went overseas with the A. E. F. have been organized for duty during the campaign as office assistants, messengers, speakers, and representatives on special missions. They have again donned their uniforms for the duration of the campaign. The Motor Corps of the New York County Chapter also has been called again into active service.

Red Cross Sunday—as yesterday was designated by President Wilson—started the campaign in the churches. The ministers of the Roman Catholic and Protestant Episcopal churches of local dioceses read pastoral letters from such dignitaries as Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes, Bishop Charles E. O'Connell of Brooklyn, and the Right Rev. Charles Sumner Burch, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of New York.

Bishop Daniel L. Tuttle of the Methodist Episcopal Church, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, and many other clergymen have joined in the campaign. Secretary of War Baker and Secretary of the Navy Daniels wrote letters which were read at yesterday's services.

Cardinal Mercier in a message yesterday to Brig. Gen. George R. Dyer, Chairman of the Metropolitan Committee, referred to the American Red Cross as "magnificent" and the work of its membership as "marvelous."

"Of course, without such support from the whole American people," he added, "it would have been obviously impossible to accomplish the wonderful things your Red Cross did during the war. Such a national inspiration should be captured and held for the benefit of society."

"During four sorrowful years of war among a people who had much to suffer," continued the Cardinal, "I learned the full importance of your work—what you did for the wounded, and not only for them, but for those who were sick and for their families. I know that your membership has grown from 400,000 to almost 500,000,000. This is a splendid progress in a splendid movement.

"Still, there is one thing which I appreciate more than quantity—it is quality. Quantity is one thing you have. But for the quality of your hearts and your charity for mankind—for all these I offer you my expression of admiration. And when I shall go back home I shall tell my people of not only what you were during the war, but what you are already coming to be—our permanent institution for charity toward mankind."

Mrs. George R. Dyer is Chairman of the District Membership Committee, and Mrs. Edward Hardy Clark will be Assistant Chairman, with Miss Alice Lavinia Day as Director. Each district is under the direction of a captain who will appoint her own lieutenants. Major Forbes Morgan is Chairman of the industrial campaign, and Colonel Michael Friedsam of the mercantile campaign.

Women are to predominate in the list of speakers chosen for the campaign. These women have been chosen from overseas workers, and they will all appear in uniform. All speeches are to be limited to three minutes.

The American League is co-operating in the campaign, both through individuals and chapters, and from its ranks will be drawn many of the speakers. The Knights of Columbus also have offered their services.

HARVARD FUND GROWING.

Although there was no canvassing yesterday for the Harvard Endowment Fund campaign for $15,250,000, reports from the West and South, coming into headquarters at 165 Broadway by wire and special delivery yesterday, increased the fund total by $45,000 and set the grand total for the country at $8,888,881. Boston's figure at $3,566,423 and New York's total of $3,240,583 remained stationary, but the mark for the outside cities was put up to $2,076,695.

Questioned as to the coming week's work of the Women's Committee in the New York drive, Mrs. James F. Curtis, joint secretary with Mrs. George F. Baker, Jr., said that the women would meet Wednesday at Mrs. Baker's home, 200 Madison Avenue, to arrange for a big reception in the interest of the fund. The committee starts today to canvass among men as well as women in order to get their goal of $1,000,000.

Elliot Wadsworth, Chairman of the fund, and former Vice Chairman of the American Red Cross, stated that the campaign would be continued until Charles F. Adams, treasurer of Harvard University, has the $15,250,000 in his hands.

Donors of $500 or more to the fund were Gilbert G. Browne, New York, $5,000; William Mitchell Kendall, New York, $2,000; John Howes Burton, New York, $1,000; E. E. Norman, Rogers Park, Ill., $1,000; D. Crosby Greene, Boston, $500, and $500 from Howland S. Davis of New York.

RABBI WISE AIDS DRIVE.

Contributes to Cornell Fund, Saying Professors Are Grossly Underpaid.

In a letter to Jacob Gould Schurman, President of Cornell University, made public at the headquarters of the New York Campaign Committee, 511 Fifth Avenue, Rabbi Stephen S. Wise indorses the endowment campaigns of Cornell and other universities and says that the salaries now paid university professors are "grossly and criminally" low.

In his letter Rabbi Wise says:

"I know that my gift can be nothing more than an expression of my profound faith, in the first place, in the wisdom of the course which has moved you and others among the leaders in university life to see to it that professors in colleges and universities shall not be grossly, and I am almost tempted to say criminally, underpaid.

"I send the gift to you because of my deep appreciation of the service of Cornell to America under the leadership of your predecessor and yourself."

The first half of the $18,000,000 fund which Cornell is seeking of its alumni and the general public will be used exclusively to increase the salaries of the instruction staff.

PLEA TO DANIELS TO DISCIPLINE SIMS

DEMANDS A RETRACTION

What the Admiral Wrote About Pro-German Activities in Cork and Treatment of Our Sailors There.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—Alleging that an article in the November "World's Work" written by Admiral William S. Sims embodies "an open insult to millions of American citizens," the Irish National Bureau, through Daniel O'Connell, its Director, has written a letter to Secretary Daniels protesting against statements in the article. Admiral Sims, he says, wrote that the Sinn Fein movement was openly disloyal and pro-German and that Sinn Feiners, as the result of pro-Germanism, attacked American sailors in the streets of Cork. The protest is based on these alleged assertions. The letter says:

"The Irish National Bureau, speaking for millions of citizens of the United States, who are of Irish blood and who are solidly behind the Irish Republic, wishes to enter an emphatic protest against an officer of the United States Navy making use of his name and official position to give credence and dignity to oft-repeated statements which are either wholly false or bald misinterpretations of facts.

"It is essential that the unfounded charges against Sinn Fein, which Admiral Sims makes, must be corrected, or withdrawn in justice to millions of Admiral Sims's fellow citizens in America, and for the honor of the United States Navy, whose officers have never knowingly lent their names to any campaign of misrepresentation.

"That part of the article in which Admiral Sims asserts that Sinn Fein was pro-German contains no substantiation of the charge, save that some American sailors were attacked in the streets of Cork. Admiral Sims lays all the trouble at the feet of Sinn Fein, and points an indicting finger directly at a delegation claiming to represent the Irish Republic headed by President de Valera, which now is touring the United States.

"Certainly, if the conduct of every man in the American Navy was always above criticism, or, if it were never necessary to check excesses of the spirit which tradition and song tell us is the life of the sailor, it would have been unnecessary to have maintained heavy naval police patrols in New York, Boston, and elsewhere in America, where large numbers of sailors were assembled. This is not criticism of the American Navy. It is a mere statement of facts. And who will say that our boys, away from the restraining influences of home, and of native country, did not—some of them—indulge in the same excesses as in home ports?

"President Eamonn de Valera has stated plainly that the attacks at Cork on American sailors were in part the result a determination of the Irish manhood to protect Irish women. President de Valera went further and said that with the same situation confronting them today the men of Cork would inflict the same punishment as before.

"If it is the intention of Admiral Sims to permit to be published in book form or otherwise the same writings herein complained of, the Irish National Bureau requests that you, as his superior, direct that such changes be made as will accord justice, and only justice, to the people of Ireland, and which will free millions of American citizens from the imputation of giving moral and financial support to America's enemies; and that Admiral Sims be told that he needlessly leaves the paths of the historian to say unkind words of a people who supplied to the American Navy some of its best officers and men."

What Admiral Sims Wrote.

In the article complained of Admiral Sims described the incidents that caused Cork to be made "out of bounds" for the American fleet. He wrote of these incidents, he said, because a delegation claiming to represent the "Irish Republic" was touring the United States asking for American aid and "attempting to stir up hatred in this country against our allies in the war."

"The people of Queenstown and Cork received our men with genuine Irish cordiality," he wrote. "Yet in a few weeks evidence of hostility in certain quarters became apparent. The fact is that the part of Ireland in which the Americans were stationed was a headquarters of the Sinn Fein. The members of this organization were not only openly disloyal; they were openly pro-German. They were not even neutral—they were working day and night for a German victory; in their misguided minds a German victory signified an Irish Republic. It was no secret that the Sinn Feiners were sending information to Germany and constantly laying plots to interfere with the British and American Navies."

After saying that the Sinn Feiners had expected the American sailors and officers of Irish extraction to champion their cause, and instead found them disgusted, at the large numbers of able-bodied men they say on the streets not in uniform, Admiral Sims continued:

"The behavior of the American sailors was good; but the mere fact that they did not openly manifest a hatred of Great Britain and a love of Germany infuriated the Sinn Feiners. And the eternal woman question also played its part. Our men had much more money than the native Irish boys and could entertain the girls more lavishly at the movies and ice cream stands. The men of our fleet and the Irish girls became excellent friends; the association, from our point of view, was a very wholesome one, for the moral character of the Irish girls of Queenstown and Cork—as, indeed, of Irish girls everywhere—is very high and their companionship added greatly to the well-being and contentment of our sailors, not a few of whom, indeed, found wives among these young women. But when the Sinn Fein elements saw their sweethearts deserting them for the American boys, their hitherto suppressed anger took the form of overt acts.

Admiral Sims then told of American sailors being beaten by angry Sinn Feiners, some being stoned and demonstrations being made against others at moving picture houses and theatres. "Attacks were even made on Irish girls who were escorted by American sailors, he said.

"These chivalrous pro-German agitators would rush up and attempt to tear the girls away from our young men," he continued. "They would pull down their hair, slap them, and even kick them. Naturally American sailors were hardly the type to tolerate behavior of this kind and some bloody battles took place."

One regrettable incident of this sort, he said, occurred when an infuriated Sinn Feiner rushed up to his former sweetheart, began to abuse her in vile language, and attempted to lay hands on her. Her American companion knocked him down and his head hit the curb. He died, but a jury composed entirely of Irishmen acquitted the American.

"The action of this jury itself indicated that there was no sympathy among the decent Irish element—which constituted the great majority—for this sort of tactics, but naturally it did not improve relations between our men and the Sinn Fein."

Admiral Sims described another incident which took place at the Cathedral, where a priest denounced the American sailors as "vandals and betrayers of Irish womanhood," but the Roman Catholics themselves were enraged at this, and a number of their officers left the Church in a body. The Catholic Bishop apologized for the incident and the offending priest was transferred.

The article closes with this statement:

"But the Sinn Feiners interfered with us in more serious ways than this. They were doing everything in their power to help Germany. With their assistance German agents and German spies were landed in Ireland. At one time the situation became so dangerous that I had to take experienced officers whose services could ill be spared from our destroyers and assign them to our outlying air stations in Ireland. This, of course, proportionately weakened our fleet and did its part in prolonging the war."

DEFACE ROYAL ARMS.

Sinn Feiners Paint Skull Over Them in Irish Police Court.

BELFAST, Nov. 2.—The Magistrates of the Police Court at Belturbet County Cavan, on entering the court yesterday found the royal arms over the bench disfigured and the outline of a skull drawn over them, together with the inscription: "R. I. P." (Requiescat in pace.)

A large Sinn Fein flag was painted on the wall, with the flag of the Irish Republic beneath. The Republican flag is also floating over the Town Hall, the City Council ignoring a request for its removal.

LEWIS RETRACTS CHARGE.

Ex-Attorney General Says He Was Unjust to Julius Forstmann.

Ex-State Attorney General Merton E. Lewis has written a letter to Julius Henry Cohen, counsel for Julius Forstmann, in which he acknowledges signing hastily an official report containing reflections on the loyalty of Mr. Forstmann, which he now believes to be unjust. In the letter he says he condemned Forstmann without making himself familiar with the man's defense.

The report was made by Assistant Attorney General Alfred L. Becker. When Mr. Lewis's letter repudiating his official action was read to Mr. Becker, he declined to make a statement.

Mr. Lewis's letter may have an important bearing on suits pending. Mr. Forstmann has brought action for damages amounting to $850,000 against Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian Francis P. Garvan, the Curtis Publishing Company, publishers of The Saturday Evening Post; the Frank A. Munsey Company, publishing Munsey's Magazine, and The New York Tribune. The suits are based on alleged reflections on his loyalty.

He also has sued to recover interests formerly held by him in woolen plants which were taken over by the Alien Property Custodian.

In a general way, the charges were that Forstmann was a pawn of the German woolen industry, who was used to conceal German operations in this country during the war, and to supply Germany with wool. This Mr. Forstmann has denied. In his letter Mr. Lewis wrote:

"While there were circumstances tending to create suspicion, Mr. Forstmann's explanation seems to me satisfactory, and I think make the reflections cast upon him unfair and unjust.

"Any public officer may make a mistake in war times, when quick action is required. But where it appears that an innocent man has suffered with the guilty, I feel it my duty to say so and express my regret."

The Forstmann & Huffmann Company was one of the largest woolen firms in New Jersey. One of the pieces of evidence presented against the firm at its hearing was a letter alleged to have been sent by the German Foreign Office to Ambassador Bernstorff June 28, 1916, saying:

"Interested parties have repeatedly made representation for preferential treatment of the firm of Forstmann & Huffmann in Passaic, N. J., in connection with the shipment of coal tar dyes to the United States of America, since this pure German firm, as is well known on your side, undertook last year the wool supply for Germany, and therefore claims it has been especially badly treated by England."

Mr. Forstmann said he had no knowledge of this letter, and that the statements in it were not justified.

Mrs. Whitney Shows War Sculpture

An exhibition of war sculpture, beginning this week, is to be held by Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney at her studio at 8 West Eighth Street, which will be open to the public daily hereafter from 10 to 5 and Sundays from 3 to 5. Mrs. Whitney saw France and Belgium under the first shock of German invasion, and the work she is to exhibit is the result of impressions formed at that time. The smaller bronzes will be shown in the studio itself, while several groups of heroic size will be placed in Macdougal Alley, which is in the rear of the Whitney studio, and which, during the exhibition, will be decorated in a manner reminiscent of the famous Alley Fiesta two years ago.

To Give "Pied Piper" for Children.

Some 500 children and 200 adults under the direction of the New York Community Service of 15 West Fortieth Street, are rehearsing in a musical extravaganza, "The Pied Piper," to be produced at the Thanksgiving season. The first public performance will take place on Saturday morning, Nov. 22, before an audience of children from the large orphan asylums. For small fees, the public will be admitted to a second performance on Friday afternoon, Nov. 28.

Miss Gatti to Aid Italians.

Miss Bella Gatti, a debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Gatti, will make her appearance in concert this evening at the Manhattan Casino, with E. A. Roxas and others, for the benefit of Italians mutilated in the war. Miss Gatti's grandmother sang in opera, and her mother is also a musician, still remembered as the pianist Carmela Cosenza.

THE SCREEN

The big new Capitol Theatre offered its second picture program yesterday afternoon, retaining from last week Ned Wayburn's Demi Tasse Revue and Fryer's Band in a variety of selections. The featured film this week is "The Brat," with Mme. Nazimova in the leading role, which had been withheld from New York, though shown elsewhere, to await the Capitol's opening.

If it were not for the performances of Nazimova and Charles Bryant, and the lucid moving pictures for which Herbert Blanché, the Director, must receive credit, "The Brat" would be a conventional "movie" with the prescribed emphasis of comedy, melodrama and sentimentality. The many, however, over whom Mme. Nazimova has histronic influence, especially when she is on the screen, will feel that her work, combined with that of Mr. Blanché and Mr. Bryant, has made "The Brat" something more than an ordinary motion picture.

For the Nazimova enthusiasts, let it be said that the brat so-called is a shabby little chorus girl who is rescued from night court by an industrious novelist looking for some one of her type to study. The author takes her into his home, where a horrified mother, a snobbish fiancée, a comedy bishop, and a worthless brother do not make her welcome. She remains, however, and pleases the novelist greatly, and, after a series of humorous and heroic experiences, puts pure love into the hearts of all the members of the family, especially the novelist. The brat, therefore, is a stock figure, but as impersonated by Nazimova she is frequently entertaining and sometimes humanly appealing, and the novelist, though also a ready-made character, is not always recognized as such in the genial and genuine person of Charles Bryant. The other rôles are well played according to the rule-book.

Admitting the good things in "The Brat," more than a few persons will undoubtedly regret that those responsible for it spread the melodrama and sentimentality on so thick and labeled the characters so conspicuously.

The photoplay, as many know by this time, was derived from the play of the same name by Maude Fulton.

"Turning the Tables," at the Rialto this week, is the most unrestrained and cheerfully impossible farce in which Dorothy Gish has appeared. It is slapstick and burlesque from start to finish. But, principally because of Miss Gish's comic tricks, it is merry in many places. In others it becomes tedious. Cut to two reels it could be continuously hilarious.

The picture is neither handicapped nor helped by any real story. Its supposed scene of action is an undiscriminating sanitarium which receives all kinds of patients. Doris Pennington (Dorothy Gish) is sent there as an insane person by an aunt desiring to seize her property, but upon arriving Doris succeeds in convincing the attendants that the nurse accompanying her is the patient and she the nurse. She then proceeds to make every one else in the place more or less insane. George Fawcett, as Professor Freno Palmer, who deals in spirits for pay, makes most of his scenes amusing.

"Sunshine and Shadows," a Paramount-Post nature picture, lures spectators from city streets and reveals crowds to refreshing woods and rivers, waterfalls and mountains. Some of the pictures have been enhanced by tinting.

"Bonds of Love," by Louis Sherwin, directed by Reginald Barker, brings two competent players to the screen of the Strand this week, Pauline Frederick and little Frankie Lee, whose performance as the cripple boy in "The Miracle Man" made him one of the few really noteworthy child actors. In his present part he has many opportunities, and misses none of them. Miss Frederick is invariably equal to any scene she attempts, and in "Bonds of Love" plays with a quiet restraint and simple sincerity that are charming. The others in the cast are all satisfactory, Kate Lester being especially convincing. Mr. Barker has made some excellent scenes and given the photoplay realistic touches. One of his best pictures is a scene in which a little boy runs away in a speed boat and is pursued and rescued by his governess in another.

The story of "Bonds of Love" is that of Pinero's "His House in Order," with variations. A man who worships his dead wife engages a governess for his little son. The dead wife's relatives are deliberately unfriendly to the newcomer, but cannot prevent her marriage to her employer. They make things unpleasant for her, however, until the fact that the love of the first wife was not for her husband is revealed.

"She Went to See in a Rickshaw," a Chester travel picture, shows interesting scenes of Japan, and the Strand program also includes an analysis-of-motion picture of girls diving which discloses their skill and grace.

DELICACY
By DR. BERTHOLD A. BAER.

I do not know Webster's definition of "Delicacy;" but I take it that "Delicacy" means: the handling of a particularly sensitive subject in a way which leaves only a pleasing memory devoid of every stigma of offense.

"You are handling a most difficult subject in a most delicate way," wrote a friend to me the other day.

Little credit is due me; I stick strictly to the relating of facts and "Delicacy" is one of the contributory causes.

"We handle the remains of the departed in a most delicate way," said Frank E. Campbell, founder-proprietor of The Funeral Church, Broadway at 66th St.

"As far as I know, ours is the only institution in New York, if not in the country, regularly employing both men and women embalmers. A woman is in charge of departed women and children only, and men in charge of men. Every respect due a woman in life is paid to her by us in death. We are most particular in this."

The man to whom Mr. Campbell spoke was surely surprised. A flash of appreciation flashed in his eyes, which I shall not soon forget.

"I am so glad to hear that," he said, and the first smile appeared upon his pale lips.

And I pondered how easily it is to write upon a subject which is handled with such delicacy by the man who gave to the people of New York The Funeral Church, that perfect institution for burials and cremations.

POLITICAL BOOMS DUE AFTER TUESDAY

FIRST DELEGATES TO WOOD

No Is Likely to Win These in South Dakota Dec. 9—Lowden Men Are Active.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—The elections Tuesday in six States, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Maryland, Kentucky, Ohio and Mississippi, are somewhat complicated by national issues and the secondary issues of labor and the defection of the Irish race, according to leaders who have studied reports coming to Washington, and observers say that the outcome is in doubt.

Senator Penrose predicted today that New Jersey and Massachusetts would elect the Republican ticket, while in Maryland there would be a reduced Democratic majority, with chances that Kentucky would elect Edwin P. Morrow, the Republican candidate for Governor.

The result of the State elections will not, it is felt here, show the attitude of voters in general in respect to the coming Presidential election.

With treaty ratification near, Republican and Democratic leaders are turning their attention toward Presidential possibilities.

Republican leaders say they are assured of victory next year, although there is no crystallization of sentiment as yet upon any candidate. At the present time the candidacy of General Wood commands the most definite attention, yet it cannot be said that his candidacy is absorbing. Still, he has active workers zealous in his behalf. His candidacy, they say, is remarkable in the fact that he has not participated in public affairs to any extent. He has no record or vote which can compromise him or require explanation or defense.

General Wood's friends say that he is free from criticism on account of prohibition, woman suffrage or any of the acute questions that have been up for solution in recent years. In this respect, some leaders say, he has a negative advantage possessed by few public men. It is also recalled that instead of injury to himself as some expected in the conduct of military affairs at Omaha and Gary, he was hailed by both sides of the controversy as fair and just.

The first primary for the choice of Presidential delegates will be held in South Dakota December 9. The only person who has an organization to support him on the Republican side seems to be General Wood, who is expected to win the few delegates.

General Wood has already captured Republican sentiment in Kansas, Nebraska, Missouri, and North Carolina, and is expected to command the undivided support of the Roosevelt faction. It is expected that General Wood may retire from the Army early next year if he allows his friends to work as zealously in his political interests as now.

While there are several Republican "favorite sons," such as Governor Sproul of Pennsylvania, Senator Johnson of California, Senator Harding of Ohio, Governor Goodrich of Indiana, and Senator Poindexter of Washington, their candidacies have not extended much beyond the State boundaries.

The next candidacy approaching in strength that of Wood is that of Governor Lowden of Illinois. This is due, too, to the work of a good organization. His candidacy seems strong among business men in New York and elsewhere. Republican leaders say that there is a reaction against radicalism, and both Wood and Lowden, representing conservative, progressive thought, are strong by reason of this drift.

The strong attitude of the administration on the coal strike, some say, will weaken the chances of some aspirants. Attorney General Palmer, who is directing the administration's policy against the strikers and means to uphold law and order and prevent industrial paralysis, if possible, may be one of those affected, and this might help Vice President Marshall, ex-Speaker Clark and Governor Cox of Ohio. By a victory in his action in the industrial crisis, however, Mr. Palmer might be greatly strengthened before the country.

When Is First Cost Absorbed?

It is usual to charge 20% a year depreciation against a $6,000 truck—$1200.

Now for a common problem: A contractor needs truck transportation for three years. If he buys a six thousand dollar truck those three years will show a total depreciation of $3,600.00. The three-year depreciation on his $6,000 truck is greater than the cost of a new 3½-ton Bethlehem.

Bethlehem Motor Trucks are neither underbuilt to meet a price nor overbuilt to justify a price. In them, Price and Quality combine to make greatest value. They are willing to be judged as motor trucks should be judged—on their ability to transport and the cost per ton mile of that transportation. Buy your Motor Truck on Facts.

YUDENITCH FORCES NEAR KRONSTADT

FINNISH OUTPOSTS FIGHTING

MANNERHEIM URGES WAR

General and Ex-Premier Appeals to Finland to Join in Campaign Against Petrograd.

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 2.—The town of Krasnaia Gorka, the strong Bolshevist position on the Gulf of Finland just to the west of the island on which the fortress of Kronstadt stands, has capitulated to the forces of General Yudenitch, according to a dispatch received here from Reval today.

(Krasnaia Gorka was reported to have fallen early in General Yudenitch's campaign for Petrograd, but the reports proved untrue. Continued possession of it by the Bolsheviki had been one of their main sources of strength in defending Petrograd.)

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 2, (Associated Press.)—The latest reports from the army of General Yudenitch declare that he is steadily advancing on the entire front before Petrograd and to the south, his right flank being fully protected as the result of the progress made by the Esthonians.

The British fleet yesterday continued its bombardment of all the islands between the Finnish coast and Krasnaia Gorka, encouraged by General Yudenitch's improved position.

Considerable outpost fighting is in progress along the Finnish frontier. The Finns, according to reports, are refusing to take prisoners, wiping out yesterday a reconnoitering party of fifty Bolsheviki.

General Justus Mannerheim, the former Finnish Premier, has sent an open letter to President Stahlberg of Finland demanding Finnish intervention in the campaign for Petrograd. The intervention should be immediate, General Mannerheim declares, adding that "the whole world is urging it."

Negotiations regarding intervention are proceeding with representatives of the Northwestern Russian Government—the Premier and the Minister of Trade and General Gulevitch, personal representative of General Yudenitch.

There is much speculation whether a special session of the Diet, which does not meet again in regular session until Nov. 7, will be called to consider General Mannerheim's appeal. General Gulevitch and General Etievant of the French Army delivered addresses to the leading Helsingfors journalists last evening. General Gulevitch made a strong plea for intervention by Finland, declaring that General Yudenitch's forces were in a good position and could not be defeated, but were not strong enough to advance. Representatives of the Swedish and Conservative Finnish press spoke in favor of intervention. The editor of the Sangmat, the Government organ, remained silent.

The Swedish language newspapers here are urging the Finnish Government to modify the conditions upon which it has indicated it would consider intervening. They suggest that Finland drop her territorial claims and demand only that the Allies stand the cost of the military operations. (Finland's territorial desires have been set forth as the annexation of the Petchenga district, near the base of the Kola Peninsula and the guaranteeing of self-determination to the Finnish tribes in Kanelia.)

DOUBT BLOCKADE REPORT.

Our Envoys in Paris Have No Information of Plan to Test It.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The American peace delegation has no information about the plan reported from America of a firm of shippers testing the allied blockade of Soviet Russia by despatching an American ship from a Scandinavian port to Petrograd with a cargo of canned goods. The London and Paris press has been giving this story great prominence for the last two days.

However, the Americans regard it as one of two things—either a great blunder or else a piece of skillful Bolshevist propaganda. It is pointed out that the American Government is giving no clearance to ships bound for Soviet Russia, and that, therefore, this ship could not get cleared from Scandinavian ports by the American Consuls there. Furthermore, sea approach to Petrograd is practically impossible because the approach is mined. Were an American ship to attempt the trip and be stopped by French and British ships there would, of course, arise the question of the freedom of the seas, which it is thought is just what the Bolsheviki would like to have happen.

While America is taking no part with the Allies in the blockade of Soviet ports, it has recognized the existence of that blockade, which was ordered by the Supreme Council, of which an American representative is a member, and the American Government would find it difficult to protest against the stopping of an American ship after it had assured England and France that it would avoid that issue by refusing clearance to ships bound to Soviet Russia.

Asserts Denikin Is Retreating.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 1.—A telegram from Kamenets-Podolska to the Ukrainian Press Bureau here, under Friday's date, claims that General Denikin's army is retreating along the whole Ukrainian front under the pressure of General Petlura's offensive. The Ukrainians, the message says, have captured the railway junction of Kodyma.

Report 40,000 Dead in Petrograd Famine

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 2.—A dispatch to The Tidning from Helsingfors says the famine in Petrograd is assuming terrible proportions. Forty thousand persons have died from starvation within a month, it is declared.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 2.—Petrograd has been without bread for two weeks, thousands of persons dying daily, according to information brought to Helsingfors yesterday by a Finn who escaped from a prison camp at Moscow on Oct. 12.

The population of Petrograd had fallen below 400,000, he said. The schools were closed owing to lack of fuel, while the prices of foodstuffs now available were so dear as to be entirely out of reach of the poor. Herrings were bringing 200 rubles each and potatoes 110 rubles the pound. Milk was 80 rubles the pint and meat was unobtainable.

Conditions in Moscow, the returning Finn reported, were not much better.

SNOW AND FROST SPUR RUSSIANS ON

GAP IN ARMIES IS CLOSED

By ARTHUR E. COPPING.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

NARVA, Nov. 1.—Military fortunes have ebbed and flowed during the last few days. The Russians have recovered much recently lost ground and taken 2,000 prisoners.

Happily the Esthonians and Russians, who previously acted independently with no effective communications across the lamentable gap dividing their flanks, are now closely co-operating. Gatchina was not retaken by the Bolsheviki, but a temporary retirement was obligatory.

I regret that my intrepid brother journalist, Richard Little, of The Chicago Tribune, received serious injuries while withdrawing.

Snow and frosts have begun here, intensifying the impatience to relieve Petrograd's sorely tried population, who, owing to the inaction of labor under Bolshevism, are experiencing an acute fuel famine on top of their other miseries.

Tsarskoe Selo refugees who constantly ran into Petrograd tell me that the food famine is less acute at the former place, thanks to rural supplies collected along the railway to the south, than at the latter. On the other hand, several famished folk at Gatchina expressed opinion that conditions in their town had been worse than conditions in the city because for days together food could not be obtained at Gatchina at any price, whereas in the market at Petrograd there were always some sort of eatables available for those able and willing to pay the enormous sums demanded for them.

The American Food Commissioner has for several days been feeding hungry children at Gatchina. Visiting one centre of distribution, a large school, I found Mrs. Gahan, teacher of languages, supervising women workers in weighing portions of corned beef and bacon, which, with local cabbages and mangels, went into a large copper. Later long queues of white-faced children assembled with jugs and basins.

Mrs. Gahan said I must not suppose that Bolshevism was nothing but a system of murder and robbery. Behind the bloodshed and terrorizing was much idealism, many leaders being honestly set on improving society. I asked how she had been affected by the new order.

"My working hours at school," she said, "are from 9 o'clock in the morning to 6:30 in the evening. I used to go home to cooked meals and tidy rooms. But under the communal system unfortunately you cannot find anybody to do your housework, so now after a long day at school I have to get my own food, cook it, then tidy my room and make my bed, besides finding time some days to do my needlework and laundry. It is out of the question to employ a washerwoman, because you have to pay them so much.

"As it is, I get deeper and deeper into debt. It seems ridiculous, but whereas I could save when my salary was only 50 rubles a month, now I cannot pay my way with a salary of 5,000 rubles a month. On the day I get it I pay it all away to those who let me have food on credit. But it is hard work teaching hour after hour, and one must eat. Luckily I am well known, so I have credit."

Greatly as she rejoices over the nourishment now provided for her pupils, the coming of the Whites has involved much personal anxiety. Until a fortnight ago she constantly saw her son, who is a clerk in Petrograd. Now she is cut off from all knowledge of him.

General Haking arrived here yesterday.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—With a lacerated head and a broken leg, "Dick" Little, wounded with the Russian White Army near Petrograd, and getting only such medical assistance as is to be found in a wretched field hospital, where there is neither anaesthetic nor bandages, gave his first thought to getting another reporter on the job and then to making appeal to generous America for medical supplies for those more seriously wounded than he.

"Gibbons: My injuries not serious, only my left leg must be kept in cast. Doc says skull not broken. Send Mann or somebody to my station. Must stay in hospital. Cable Tribune Russian hospitals need immediate help from America. Have no cotton, no chloroform, no castor oil, no alcohol, no lint, no bandages, no bed linen. Doctors and nurses most heroic. LITTLE."

To these messages dated via Reval, Oct. 31, is added a paragraph by Captain Miller of the American Relief, who stated a telephone message had informed him that Little had been removed to Jamburg, and that he, (Captain Miller,) had sent an ambulance and two men to bring him to Reval.

FIGHT OVER TREATY NEARING THE CLIMAX

Democrats Oppose Lodge's Offer of a Vote on Nov. 12 as a Sharp Manoeuvre.

WANT A LIMIT ON DEBATE

This, Senator Hitchcock Declares, Would Bring the Final Vote at About the Same Time.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—With the Administration forces in the Senate fight on the ratification of the Versailles treaty ready to combat the privilege of Senator Lodge, the majority leader, to fix Nov. 12 as the time to vote on the ratifying resolution, the treaty battle is this week expected to run into its last phase, with assured prospects of a bitter struggle before the week is over.

Senator Hitchcock, the minority leader, said tonight that he would not be surprised to find the situation advanced before the end of the week, so that a final vote on the resolution of ratification would be had around the time suggested by Mr. Lodge. But the Administration forces, he said, were not going to be hurried, or, as he put it, "tricked," into any move that would deliberately play into the hands of the majority.

The Administration forces, Mr. Hitchcock said, would oppose the Lodge proposal because it might give the majority opportunity to run the debate up to voting time on Nov. 12, thus shutting off any move the Democrats might have under way to force a vote on their interpretative reservations, as a substitute for the majority program.

Senator Hitchcock suggested that, under the Lodge agreement, if entered into, the majority leaders might so manoeuvre the situation as to keep the pending La Follette amendment, to strike the labor section from the treaty, before the Senate until Nov. 12, and then rush the vote on the entire reservation program.

"We are opposed to the Lodge proposal because it might prove a barrier against combatting the determined effort of the majority to force their program through," said Mr. Hitchcock.

"While the majority insist that they have the votes—and I am not disputing it—still I do not feel that the Democrats ought to help them in foisting their program on the Senate."

The Nebraska Senator believed, he said, that the Senate easily could agree to a time to vote on the reservations, but that, until they were out of the way, it was futile to talk of fixing a definite time for a vote on the ratifying resolution. He felt certain, he said, that if the Senate agreed to limit debate on the reservations, as he proposed in the agreement offered in the Senate on last Friday, the time for a final vote on the treaty would be advanced.

"If we limit debate, I believe the Senate will come to final vote on the ratifying resolution within a week or so," said Mr. Hitchcock. "The Senate is 'bout talked out on the treaty. If the majority really wants to expedite final action, all it has to do is to agree to put a time limit on the debate."

Senator Hitchcock declined to discuss any countermove the administration forces might make, in the event the Republican majority put through their reservations, beyond an effort to obtain reconsideration of the vote on the latter, after the Democrats defeat the ratifying resolution. The Democrats, he said, took issue with Senator Lodge in his insistence that the ratifying resolution itself would be before the Senate again, upon a motion to reconsider, and that the reservations would remain unaffected. The motion to reconsider, he contends, would involve the reservations as well as the ratifying resolution, and the Senate would be in a position then to vote on substitute reservations offered by the minority.

The administration forces expect a ruling upon this point by Vice President Marshall in their favor. The Republicans are equally confident that the ruling will sustain their contention that any motion to reconsider a vote defeating the ratifying resolution with the reservations embraced in it would involve the entire program of reservations.

The Republicans believe they could repeat their vote on reservations confidently expecting that the entire forty-nine Republicans and some six Democrats would stick to the end. If this situation developed it would mean that the Democrats would again have to defeat the ratifying resolution to save the reservations from being accepted as a part of it.

To circumvent this procedure, the administration forces hope to gain a ruling of the chair and substitute their own reservations, which they believe the middle ground Senators might support, if opportunity were given to vote for them, thus saving the treaty from defeat.

Senator Hitchcock is eager, he said tonight, to have the point at issue concerning the vote on the resolution of ratifying with the majority reservations embraced as a part of it, settled before the week is over.

If the Democrats, in the end, find that they cannot win their point over the Republican majority, he said, they will have no alternative but to vote against the ratifying resolution, so long as it contains the committee reservations.

JAPANESE CRITICAL OF THE PEACE TERMS

TOKIO, Oct. 27, (Associated Press.)—During the recent consideration of the German Peace Treaty by the Privy Council some of the members criticised the Government and the Japanese delegates to the Paris Conference, charging that there had been insufficient preparation for the task the Japanese representatives had before them at the Conference, and that they had not been sufficiently active or displayed enough initiative in that body, the Asahi says it is reported from a source believed to be well informed. Inferentially, according to this account, the delegates were blamed for accepting without protest the waiver of indemnity by Japan for the maintenance of prisoners of war. It is pointed out that Japan, unlike her allies, had no prisoners of war in Germany to counterbalance the large expense to which she was put in caring for enemy prisoners in Japan.

Some of the members of the Council are credited by the newspaper with advising that the action of the United States on the treaty be awaited before Japan approved it, but the Council as a whole was said to hold the belief that the rejection of the Shantung amendment by the United States Senate removed any objections to the immediate adoption of the convention by Japan.

"It was urged by the Government, and the Council agreed unreservedly," says the newspaper's reports, "that the treaty be approved without waiting for America, the thought being thus to demonstrate the sincerity of Japan and to follow the example of England, France and Italy."

The correspondent learns that the report of the special committee of the Council, headed by Viscount Kiyoura, dwelt particularly on the view that the ratification by the Emperor being tantamount to imperial assent to the League of Nations, the League would not encroach upon the prerogatives of the Emperor. This satisfied the critics, who had feared that the League wo[uld] hopelessly fetter the future of Ja[pan]. The report pointed out that the provisions of the League covenant permitted the withdrawal of Japan under stated conditions.

America Went to War to Save England, Former Austrian Ambassador Here Said.

BERLIN, Nov. 1.—The fear that Great Britain would lose the war, when the unrestricted submarine campaign became menacing, was the cause of America's entry into the war, Count Adam Tarnowski von Tarnow is quoted as having declared on his return from the United States in the Spring of 1917. The quotation appears in a statement made by Prince Botho von Wedel, former German Ambassador at Vienna, who saw Count Tarnowski on his return to Vienna after he had been sent to the United States early in 1917 as Austro-Hungarian Ambassador, but was not received by the Washington Government and was sent home when relations with Austria were broken off.

"Count Tarnowski told me upon his return to Vienna," said Prince von Wedel in his statement, "that the Americans at first were inclined to smile at the unrestricted U-boat warfare. They generally ridiculed the German Navy which hoped to conquer the British fleet by such methods. As the number of vessels sunk increased, however, the mockers grew silent and Americans generally became restless.

"Gradually the conviction became firmer that the United States would be forced actively to enter the war in order to rescue England. It was not the fact that the U-boat war was a success, but the fear that England would lose the war because of it, that prompted the American declaration of war."

Prince von Wedel adds his opinion that in view of Count von Tarnowski's statements the mediation of the United States for peace would most probably have taken on a pro-English, anti-German aspect.

That Frederick Courtland Penfield, former American Ambassador to Austria-Hungary, was violently anti-German after the outbreak of the world war in 1914 was common knowledge in Vienna, according to another statement made by Prince von Wedel.

Knowledge of the American Ambassador's anti-German sentiments, says von Wedel, became known because of the Ambassador's candor. Mr. Penfield is reported by von Wedel constantly to have said:

"We have nothing against Austria-Hungary, but Germany must be crushed."

Baron de Weizsaecker, former Minister-President of Württemberg, in his recollections which are appearing in a German review declares he prevented the passage in the session of the Bundesrat Commission on Jan. 16, 1917, of a resolution approving unrestricted submarine warfare. On Feb. 12, after the break in relations with the United States, he says, he addressed a communication to Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg on the subject, and the Chancellor replied:

"The success of the U-boat campaign thus far exceeds expectations. My confidence in it is increasing. We could not have done differently."

The Chancellor concluded his reply by declaring:

"At this stage of things the advantages of the U-boat campaign are already greater than its drawbacks."

ALLIES MARK TIME AS SENATE DEBATES

Suggest That America's Deposit of Ratification Might Be Made by Cable.

HOPE FOR HUNGARIAN PEACE

Delegates Believe That Early Evacuation by Rumania Will Hasten It.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—The Allies are still waiting for the American Senate to ratify the treaty, and if that takes place within the time limit confidentially communicated to the American delegation and not kept very secret, America will be able to deposit her ratification at the same time as England, France, and Italy—and perhaps Japan, for the Japanese ratification is expected in Paris by the first of December.

The Supreme Council has formally announced five times that on a certain day it would fix a date for the coming of official peace, and five times it has failed to do so. While European diplomats are scoffing at the idea of Europe waiting for America, they are discussing with Americans whether the American deposit of ratification can be made by cable, and what effect upon that procedure the adoption of reservations would have. Americans here are inclined to believe that the official document of ratification would have to be presented in Paris, but that affirmative action by the Senate would sweep away the clouds that now hover over the situation, and that the American members of the Council of the League of Nations and the various treaty commissions could be named, and the official document could easily be awaited.

It appears that Washington has advised the American delegation that the treaty will probably be ratified Nov. 10. This has just become known, and it probably accounts for the fact that five days ago the diplomats of England, France, and Italy agree to deposit ratifications Nov. 11, and it was announced that the date would be formally fixed yesterday. Yesterday there came a report that the Senate might not reach a vote before Nov. 17, and so the word was passed around that there were so many details to be arranged that the deposits could not be made before the 20th. If the Senate does ratify on the 17th, the day for depositing the ratifications may be fixed between the 20th and 25th.

A note was dispatched to Germany today inviting her to send a delegation to attend the ratification ceremony and deposit Germany's agreement to the treaty. This same delegation must sign a protocol assuming, on behalf of the Berlin Government, responsibility for the nonfulfillment of certain terms of the armistice, and also agreeing to make good the loss entailed by the sinking of the German fleet at Scapa Flow. Germany will be called upon to surrender 400,000 tons of floating docks, tugs, and other naval equipment, in addition to paying the balance the Allied Commission may adjudge due for the loss of the warships. This amount will not be fixed until after the allied maritime experts have passed on the value of this tonnage.

The fact that the protocol makes no mention of the allied plan to have the Germans participate in the blockade of Soviet Russia might indicate that the Allies doubted their ability to put through their plan, despite the announcement two weeks ago that it would surely be executed. Several neutrals, notably Sweden and Switzerland, have not agreed to take part, and Germany has refused. After the formal ratification of the treaty the Allies will lose most of the weapons they might have used to persuade Germany to accede to their request.

The Bulgarians have received the Council's final reply, and have a period of ten days from today in which to accept the treaty offered them. The signing of this treaty will leave the Hungarian treaty to be disposed of. This has been ready for seven weeks, awaiting the arrival of a delegation from a Budapest Government which the Allies can regard as representative.

It is the belief in allied circles that as soon as the Rumanians get out of Hungary such a representative Government can be formed. Hope exists that the Rumanians can be persuaded to evacuate Hungary within ten days. No public statement is made as to the basis of this hope. By her refusal to sign the Austrian treaty, her continued keeping of troops in Hungary against the orders of the Peace Conference and her willful annexation of Bessarabia, Rumania has become the Supreme Council's greatest problem.

In discussing the possibility of the Peace Conference winding up its work, one must remark that there is always the Fiume question to be considered. But no public statements are being made these days on the subject of the Adriatic city.

TWO BOYS KILLED BY AUTOS

Both Struck While Crossing Street—Another, Hurt Friday, Dies.

Louis Joskowitz, 12 years old, of 275 Seventh Street, while crossing Avenue B at Seventh Street yesterday afternoon, was knocked down by an automobile owned and operated by Edward Waltz of 230 Avenue B. An ambulance took the boy to Bellevue Hospital, where he died. Patrolman Joseph McCormick of the Fifth Street Station placed Waltz under arrest, charging him with homicide.

While crossing the street with his mother in front of 422 Knickerbocker Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday, Joseph Terdi, 3 years old, of 751 Hart Street, was struck by an automobile owned and driven by Charles Gillard, 183 Logan Street. Gillard picked the child up and drove him to the Wyckoff Heights Hospital, where the lad died from a fracture of the skull. The accident was reported to have been unavoidable.

August Scolcki, 6 years old, died in Christ Hospital, Jersey City, yesterday from injuries received last Friday, when he was knocked down by the automobile of William H. Binder of 611 Hudson Street, Hoboken. Binder, who is 40 years old, was arrested on a charge of manslaughter made by the dead boy's father, August Scolcki of 59 Hutton Street, Jersey City. Binder was paroled to appear in the First Criminal Court today.

DOLLAR LINE TO RUN FROM HERE TO CHINA

WILL USE PANAMA CANAL

Plan Calls for Six Vessels in Direct Passenger and Freight Service to Shanghai.

Robert Dollar, the Pacific Coast steamship man, last night bought fourteen and a half acres at Hunts Point, through Joseph P. Day, from the Bronx Terminal Company, for use as the New York terminal of a New York to Shanghai direct freight and passenger service through the Panama Canal.

The Robert Dollar Steamship Company, of which Mr. Dollar is the President, at present has seventeen ships plying between Pacific Coast ports and the Orient. It was said that he would put six ships in the first direct New York to Shanghai line.

Mr. Dollar paid $356,250 for the fourteen and a half acres with a frontage of 700 feet. The water at this point is 21 feet deep at low tide. It was stated that work would be commenced shortly on terminal buildings costing $1,000,000.

The property was advertised to be sold at auction on Tuesday, but Mr. Day explained that it had been sold for cash at a private sale last night because Mr. Dollar had to leave immediately for the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Dollar is a director of the American International Corporation and of the Asia Banking Corporation in this city. He is the largest steamship owner of the Pacific Coast. In 1915 he sold out all his steamers, asserting that shipping under the American flag was impossible on the Pacific under the La Follette act, and the American flag disappeared completely from the trade routes of the Pacific Ocean. With the revival of the American mercantile marine during the war, he went back into the steamship business and built up a new fleet.

Mr. Dollar has been one of the leading advocates of the sale of Government owned ships to private individuals, holding that the future of American shipping depended on the Government's attitude on this question. Although he recently launched a 14,000-ton ship, the Matilda Dollar, on the Pacific Coast, and has been rapidly expanding his shipping operations, he has asserted repeatedly that American commerce can only be established for the future by men owning their own ships and that Government operation, or Government ownership and leasing of ships, would be ruinous if persisted in.

CROWN PRINCE BUSY ON BOOK AND POLITICS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Nov. 1.—From all reports reaching me, politics and the conclusion of a book are occupying the ex-Crown Prince more than anything else these rainy days and all visitors to his island are immediately plunged into long political discussions. Speaking of the German revolution and its effect on peace conditions which Germany was obliged to accept the ex-Crown Prince recently expressed his ideas to a friend, saying:

"It was certainly due to the revolution that Germany was obliged to sign such an ignoble peace, but if the German revolutionists had been as patriotic as the French revolutionists in 1871, who made the revolution in order to continue a people's war, Germany would have obtained a better peace, even if she had only resisted another six weeks. The present Government, however, has shown great statesmanship in welding the German Empire financially, fiscally, and economically."

"If it hadn't been for the influence of the American peace delegates the dent in the eastern and western frontiers of Germany would have been much deeper."

I learn that the book which is now being concluded on the island will contain interesting comment on Bismarck. The new edition of Captain Anker's "German Crown Prince," just published, contains an appendix in the form of a letter from the ex-Crown Prince in which he announces his return to the Fatherland in an appeal to the people and thanking Anker, who is one of his most active friends in Germany.

Allied Time Limit for Bulgaria.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The answer of the Allies to Bulgaria's representations regarding the Peace Treaty with that nation will probably be presented tomorrow. The Supreme Council is expected to grant the Bulgarians ten days within which to submit their final answer.

RAINING WHEN CRASH CAME

Members of Club Were on Their Way to Fishing Resort on Truck Hit by Train.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—Twelve men and two women are dead and fourteen other persons are in New Jersey hospitals seriously injured as a result of the collision of a motor truck and a passenger train at the Salem Pike crossing of the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad Saturday night.

The dead:

BOOTH, EMILY, 2704 North Hancock St.
CONNELL, THOMAS, 3512 North Second St.
DEWITT, WILLIAM, address unknown.
FAGAN, JOSEPH, 2736 North Sixth St.
FRIEND, AUGUST, 3409 North Third St.

SANDOW, JOHN, 3518 North Seventh St.
WEBER, WILLIAM, 2d and Wishart Sts.
WEIZELL, HARRY, 3522 N. Randolph St.

DONNELLY, E. A., 3500 North American St.
BOOTH, ELIZABETH, 2704 North Hancock St.
ANDERSON, RUTH, Franklin and Dauphin Sts.
HENNIBECKER, BENJAMIN, 1970 East Medary Av.
BROWN, THOMAS, 3077 Orkney St.
HIRSCH, HENRY, 3329 North Seventh St.
BUSKIN, WILLIAM H., (or BURIAN,) 3441 North Third St.
HENRY, FRANK, Westmoreland St., near Fifth.
HARTUNG, WILLIAM, 511 West Glenwood Av.
ANDERSON, ARTHUR, Bristol Pike.
BREHMYER, AUGUST, 263 North Clarion St.
McCREADY, ELMER, 2602 North Sixth St.
BASWSKI, STEPHEN, 2422 South Seventh St.
WERMIS, FRANK, 248 West Glenwood Av.

All the dead and injured were members of the Glen Social Club of this city, and were on their way to a midnight masquerade party at Billingsport, a fishing resort on the Delaware River.

Into an unprotected crossing half a mile north of the Clarksboro station the motor truck rushed at high speed at 11:20 o'clock Saturday night. The Salem local to Camden, running also at high speed to make up lost time, hit the truck when the driver of the latter tried to turn aside.

Twenty-eight men and four women were on the truck at the time. Four of the men jumped and escaped with cuts and bruises. The others were thrown out on both sides of the track as the train rushed ahead for fully 100 yards, carrying the truck on the cowcatcher.

Sixteen kegs of beer, which had been utilized by the masked merrymakers as seats, also were strewn along the railroad. The beer, with flasks of liquor found in the clothing of the dead men, was seized yesterday by local officials and revenue agents.

According to the stories of the injured, a heavy rain was falling at the time of the accident. When the party to Billingsport was first organized twenty-two women were to go. They remained home because of the rain, making plans to join the party on Sunday morning.

After the accident women passengers from the train knelt in the mud in the pouring rain and prayed beside the dying. Two of the women, Miss Emily Booth and Mrs. McAdams, died within a few minutes. Frank Henry lost so much blood that his life was prolonged only by a transfusion operation yesterday, but physicians say he will die.

The crossing where the accident happened has no warning bell, no gate, no watchman, not even a special light. According to the injured, the engineer did not blow his whistle. It is possible that if he did it was drowned out by the pouring rain and the noise of the speeding motor truck. Persons who saw the party further up the road say they were singing boisterously, but the survivors deny this.

EGYPTIAN RIOTING BREAKS OUT AGAIN

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 31 (Associated Press).—There was further rioting and looting in Alexandria today.

A mob, unhindered, plundered various houses for an hour and escaped with the booty.

A number of the leading citizens of Alexandria had prevailed on the Governor to withdraw the police and troops, undertaking that there would be neither demonstrations nor disorder.

Nevertheless, a procession of striking cartmen, accompanied by several thousand natives, marched at noon to the European quarter, uttering Nationalist cries.

There was no disorder until suddenly an army ambulance dashed into the procession, killing one person and injuring five. Thereupon demonstrators broke loose and plundered, unhindered, for an hour and fled with their booty. Eventually order was restored by the citizens who had guaranteed peace appealing to the mob. The troops and police did not interfere.

There were disorders in other parts of the town which were accompanied by shooting.

LONDON, Monday, Nov. 3.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Cairo says the rioters at Alexandria were dispersed by the use of machine guns and that there were many casualties.

LIQUOR IN JUNKIN CARS.

Chicago Agents Search Automobiles Shipped to Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—Two agents of the Federal Government discovered on Saturday in the tonneaus of two automobiles, both consigned to Washington, D. C., and locked in a box car, ten gallons of liquor. There were jugs of Bourbon, bottles of brandy and old Scotch. The liquor was contained in two shining, brass-studded boxes labeled: "Music records for No. 1 and No. 2 Victrolas. Handle with care."

Shipping tags showed that the automobiles had been consigned to himself at Washington by Francis T. A. Junkin of 2,541 South Michigan Avenue, and Lake Geneva. Mr. Junkin, whose marriage to Mrs. Emily Hutchison Crane, widow of Richard T. Crane, was one of the brilliant social events in Paris in 1912, was appointed a month ago a member of the Contract Adjustment Board in Washington with the rank of Lieutenant Colonel in the Regular Army. Inquiries disclosed the fact that Mr. and Mrs. Junkin left here for Washington on Friday.

The liquor seized from the motor cars was taken to the United States Marshal's office, where it was locked up as evidence, and the possibility discussed of obtaining warrants for the arrest of both Mr. Junkin and his chauffeur on charges of violating the rules of the Interstate Commerce Commission concerning the proper labeling of commodities as well as for violation of the Reed amendment regarding the transportation of liquor from or into dry territory.

Later, Frank Burke of the United States Department of Investigation reported that Ross Butler, chauffeur for Junkin, had departed from the Junkin residence at Lake Geneva, accompanied by his wife. He had three trunks and several suit cases. It was planned to search Butler's baggage at Washington.

Belgian Crown Prince, of Age Today, Can Be a Senator

BRUSSELS, Nov. 1.—Crown Prince Leopold, on reaching his majority (18 years) Monday, will be entitled to occupy a seat as a Senator.

A residence will be established for him in the palace formerly occupied by his father as heir to the throne.

Belgian Princes of the reigning branch of the royal family are by right Senators at the age of 18, but have no voice in the deliberations until they reach the age of 25 years.

SELLS A. E. F. STORES TO FRENCH CIVILIANS

EFFORT TO CUT LIVING COST

Public Is Invited to Buy at Sales Opening Today in Paris and Other Cities.

PARIS, Nov. 2.—The French Government's sale of military stocks purchased from the United States will be opened to the public here tomorrow. This is one feature of the campaign against the high cost of living. Similar sales, in a dozen other centres of France, will be started tomorrow, or as soon as the arrangements for placing the goods before the public are completed. Two thousand items were listed at the outset, but the stocks have been depleted by sales during the last two weeks to hospitals, charitable and co-operative organizations, and to retail merchants.

The prices for the various commodities have been fixed at a maximum of half the current retail prices, with many articles which are not much used by the French workers offered at a smaller fraction of their original cost. Heavy drafts on most of the necessary things, such as shoes and clothing, have been made by the Government, but vast quantities of army goods are still available.

At the present rate of exchange, with the dollar quoted at between 8 and 9 francs, the American equivalent of some of the prices placed on the goods is as follows:

Cocoa, 33 cents a pound; bacon, 18 cents a pound; canned teas, 10 cents a pound; dried navy beans, 4½ cents a pound; tapioca, 8½ cents; American cheese, 20 cents; sweet chocolate, 25 cents; dried apples, 27 cents; Malaga raisins, 17 cents; rice flour, 4½ cents.

No sugar or wheat flour is on sale here, but it is expected that sugar will be sold in some districts at prices fixed locally. Clothing is also offered, principally from the used stocks of enlisted men's garments, suitable for workmen. No shoes are available in Paris, but elsewhere army shoes are to be sold at $2.80 and repaired shoes at $1.10. Used overcoats are priced at from $1.35 to $1.75, olive drab trousers, $3.40; khaki trousers, 68 cents; sheepskin-lined canvas overcoats, $10.20; wool drawers, 68 cents; wool socks, 45 cents; cotton drawers, 25 cents; wool-lined leather vests, $4.50, &c.

In goods by the yard, officer's olive melton, 60-inch width, is to be sold at $1.22 a yard, with lower prices for lower quality goods.

ROME PRESS APPROVES AMBASSADOR'S VIEWS

ROME, Nov. 1.—All the Rome newspapers reproduce today the interview given The Associated Press by Baron Romano Avezzana, the new Ambassador to the United States, just prior to his departure from this city. Commenting on the interview, in which the Ambassador expressed the hope that the questions of Fiume and the eastern frontier of Italy would soon be settled according to national aspirations and declared his policy would be to promote an intimate knowledge of each other by the two peoples, the Tempo today says:

"Baron Romano rightly emphasized the moral, political, and cultural reasons which, despite the sadness of this hour, cause the American and Italian peoples to appreciate each other. The Ambassador's statement is perfectly in keeping with the gravity of the present moment. His words mean plainly that the Adriatic problems cannot be solved without regard to the rights and sentiments of Italy."

The Tempo declares President Wilson's attitude is endangering Italo-American relations, which should not be jeopardized, but points out that his occupation of the Presidency is only for a definite term, which will expire in due course.

President Wilson's rejection of the project of Foreign Minister Tittoni for the solution of the Fiume and Dalmatian questions is a cause for thankfulness, the Giornale d'Italia declares, as it "saved us from the painful renunciation of two centres of undoubted Italianity." President Wilson, the newspaper asserts, "outraged nature and good sense when he proposed to separate the island of Cherso from that of Lussin, assigning the former to the State of Fiume and the latter to Italy."

"Both islands," it continues, "have the same geographical configuration, the same geological formation, the same history, and the same administrative system, and were originally united by an isthmus, which the Romans cut, making a small canal. They are united today by a revolving bridge, over which passes a highroad, uniting the two principal villages of these islands.

"The two islands have the same structure and the same traditions—those of Istria, to which they are united historically, racially, and economically. Istria must possess these two islands."

EXPORTS TO RUSSIA GROW.

Increase of 800 Per Cent. Due to Denikin's Fight on Bolsheviki.

According to a statement issued yesterday by the American-Russian Chamber of Commerce, there has been an 800 per cent. increase in exports from this country to Russia in the eight months ended Aug. 1, 1919. The great increase was attributed to the operations of General Denikin against the Bolsheviki.

"In addition to General Denikin's elimination of the Bolsheviki from the Caucasus," the statement read, "the great industrial districts of Russia in the Donatz basin and around Kieff, have added greatly to the stability of his Government and have opened the way for the possibility of the renewal of trading relationships on a favorable basis. Direct steamship facilities are now available for the movement of cargo between American ports and ports in the Black Sea, and as it is known that there is considerable accumulation of raw materials in Southern Russia it should be possible to work out arrangements whereby considerable exchange of raw materials could take place."

URGES US TO TAKE TURKISH MANDATE

DEPLORES SPLIT IN SENATE

Feels That France Has Some Right to Address Friends in America.

CHANCE TO SAVE HUMANITY

Not Troops, He Says, but Hoovers and Davisons Are Needed for the Task.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—Stephane Lauzanne in the Matin today makes a strong appeal to the United States to accept a mandate for Constantinople. He terms it the request of all Europe to the one nation in a position to solve the Turkish problem. He says that American opponents to the acceptance of the mandate place an entirely wrong construction upon the situation. He sees it as a call to duty for America.

"In a few days," says the French publicist, "the Senate at Washington will have to decide upon the gravest of all the questions of the Peace Treaty—upon that which is the heaviest in consequences for Europe. Will America accept or not the mandate which is offered her for Constantinople and Armenia? We know today that President Wilson and his principal counselors, Robert Lansing, Colonel House, and Henry Morgenthau, after some hesitation, are for the acceptance of the mandate. The Republicans are opposed to it. The Republican opposition is always against anything when the President is for it. As for the Senate, it is split in two, and it is by a small margin that the decision will be taken. Perhaps in the debate we have some right to raise our voice and across the ocean address to our American friends a request.

"In the offer of a mandate to her America should see more than the selfish desire of Europe to involve her in European affairs. It is true she fears to be the centre of intrigues and difficulties. She fears distant complications. However, the question is nobler and higher than that. America is an admirable reservoir of energy. She holds the secret of that which is best in our modern life—to build largely and to build quickly. She has youth; she has power; she has wealth; she has that which she calls efficiency. We in Europe are old, poor, enfeebled, divided. It would be prodigiously interesting if America, after she has given us of her power, of her money and her material, should give us also an example.

"And what an example it would be if America were to accept the mandate for Constantinople! Here is a city which is one of the marvels of Europe and of the world, which is the jewel of the Orient, and which after twenty centuries of European civilization remains the home of wickedness and corruption. Every one disputes possession of its hills and harbors, and no one tries to make of it a great modern city which, rid of international intrigues and rid of politics, would be the shining pole of Europe. Only America can transform Constantinople; only America can establish herself there without suspicion of bad faith and without jealousy; only America can civilize the capital of Islam.

"To do that America has no need of regiments of soldiers or of cannon. She has need only of her workers and her constructors. A Hoover or a Davison would be enough. And America is full of Hoovers and Davisons.

"If America accepts, then she can declare that she has rendered an incomparable service to humanity, and that she has played a great rôle in the world. She, the youngest democracy of the world, will have given a lesson to the old nations of Europe. She will have shown that she knows not only how to fight, but how to build. She will have furnished the most magnificent example of disinterestedness in history. She will have given of her intellectual superiority and material superiority the most shining example and the most conclusive proof. She will have put her imprint upon Europe for generations to come.

"Among the stories told to children in America there is one of Napoleon arriving in Egypt and saying to his soldiers: 'Remember that from the heights of the Pyramids forty centuries look down up you!' And so, many more centuries will look down from on high upon America if she makes of Constantinople a moled city, or of the Armenians a free people.

"To establish among men beauty, goodness, and liberty where reign ugliness, wickedness and tyranny is higher and better than to heap stones without souls one upon another. So we say to our friends of America: 'If you hesitate, turn toward the tomb at Mount Vernon and ask the hero who sleeps his last sleep. If George Washington could speak he would not hesitate. Far removed from easy-going egotists, he would show the path of duty. He would tell you to serve humanity, even if it is far away, and if it is not easy.'"

'BULL' AND 'BEAR' IN FIGHT

Rival Cotton Dealers Come to Blows and One Is Arrested.

The "ring" of the American Cotton and Grain Exchange at 70 Wall Street was the scene Saturday morning of a fist fight between one of the "bulls" in the cotton market and one of the "bears" dealing in the same commodity. In the Tombs Police Court yesterday Chief Magistrate William McAdoo adjourned a settlement of the differences between the two rival dealers until Wednesday afternoon. This was at the request of the defendant, seconded by Bernard H. Sandler of 261 Broadway, attorney for the exchange.

According to the complaint signed by David Blair of 600 West 150th Street, who was "bulling" the market, he had an argument with Eugene R. Clark of Albany, Ga., who was on the "bear" side. According to Blair, when the argument started, the representatives of the "bull" and "bear" sides began to fight. Patrolman Early of the Old Slip Station was summoned and accompanied Clark to the station after he had been placed under arrest by Blair on a charge of assault. At the Police Court the charge was changed to one of disorderly conduct.

In asking for an adjournment Attorney Sandler requested the court to direct Clark not to indulge in any further exhibitions of temper, as, according to the attorney, threats had been made that hostilities might be resumed on Monday. Magistrate McAdoo warned Clark, and on his promise to abstain from hostilities until the case was heard the adjournment was granted.

MUSIC

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

Reinald Werrenrath's Recital.

Reinald Werrenrath, who has established his name as one of the best of American baritone singers, and whose reputation has been steadily advanced by his artistic achievements, rather than by the arts of publicity, or even by his admission into the company of the Metropolitan Opera House, gave a recital yesterday afternoon for which he chose the auditorium of Carnegie Hall. The temptation to an artist with a large constituency is no doubt great to present himself in the larger hall; but it is not always fortunate when the art is fine and the enjoyment of it intensified in more intimate surroundings. Such a choice has been deplored before now.

Of course Mr. Werrenrath's voice is quite capable of filling Carnegie Hall, and did so yesterday afternoon. He gave a program with numerous interesting features, beginning with the air, Aprite un po' quegl' Occhi," from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," with its preceding recitative, which he sang in excellent style, though in the recitative not quite as one to the manner born. His voice had the excellent quality that is well remembered, not perhaps of the highest beauty and color, but employed with admirable skill to make it tell to the utmost, and in the matters of phrasing, of the use of head tones, and of diction, again admirable. And these technical qualities are employed with the intelligence of an artist to produce an interpretation of characteristic expression.

Mr. Werrenrath did not seem yesterday to have quite the full command of his voice in the production of sustained tone, as was to be observed in Caldara's "Come Raggio di Sol," though his singing of it had much poise and dignity, and in the "Invocazione di Orfeo," from Jacopo Peri's "Euridice," one of the very earliest products of the Florentine inventors of the "new music" that turned out to be the beginnings of all opera. The piece was deeply interesting, not only because of its historical significance, but as well because of its poignant expressiveness as music, its eloquence in declamation, and Mr. Werrenrath did not allow these qualities to escape him.

These were associated with other old Italian music: Legrenzi's "Che Fiero Costume," and what is frequently also old Italian, Falconieri's "Occhietti Amati," and Mr. Werrenrath added to them as an encore Giordano's "Caro mio ben." In his group of modern French songs Ravel's "Sainte" seemed hardly to sustain the composer's repute. Of Duparc's "Le Manoir de Rosamonde" Mr. Werrenrath gave a sincerely felt interpretation. He closed with two groups of songs by Americans and Englishmen.

Mme. de Hovarth's Recital.

Mme. Cecile de Hovarth, at one time known as Cecile Ayres, pianist, appeared in New York yesterday afternoon in the Princess Theatre for the first time. She played Scriabine's "Sonata Phantasy," Chopin's B minor sonata, a group of arrangements of old pieces of modern masters, together with one of Couperin's seventeenth century bits, Liszt's arrangement of "Hark, Hark, the Lark," and his "Mephisto" waltz, a somewhat large percentage of arrangements. Mme. de Hovarth's charming personality does not quite carry over into her playing. She is well equipped with technique, but her touch is a little heavy and unimaginative, and she is perhaps a little unduly anxious to impress every one of her points of expression and style on her listeners, even the most inattentive. She played Chopin's sonata with intelligence, with some individual touches but without sounding quite all the poetical content of the work. No doubt there was allowance to be made for nervousness at her first New York appearance.

Mme. Galli-Curci Sings.

Last night's concert in the Sunday series at the Hippodrome was a song recital by Mme. Galli-Curci, heard by an enormous audience that quite filled the auditorium and as well all the seats that could be placed on the stage, which were many. There was enthusiasm indiscriminately for the good and the less good in Mme. Galli-Curci's singing, for it was not all of her best. The upper range of her voice showed in its quality the signs of excessive work. There was also at times a tendency to sing flat in the higher tones, a phenomenon that has been observed before. There was much to enjoy, however, in the great beauty of her medium tones.

Mme. Galli-Curci is undoubtedly not at her best in song recitals; she is more at home in the opera. She has too little power of distinguishing moods and of varying the emotional significance of music that has emotional significance to sustain the interest of a song recital unflaggingly. She was at her best in such operatic excerpts as "Come per me sereno," from "La Sonnambula," and Bishop's florid "Lo, the gentle lark," with flute obbligato, and in Edward German's "Daffodils a-blowing" she sang with charming spirit, as she did the voluble Spanish song "Clavelitos." But she quite misconceived the spirit of George Monro's "My Lovely Celia," which needs a less sophisticated delivery than she gave it, as does "Drink to me only with thine eyes," which she sang as an encore. Nor did she succeed in making as interesting as he might have Hahn's "L'Heure Exquise" or Liszt's "Breathe gently, my song." A group of English songs by Scott, La Forge, and Homer Samuels, her skillful accompanist, was followed by the mad scene from Thomas's opera of "Hamlet," with the flute obligato, and Mr. Berenguer, the flautist, played with Mr. Samuels a fantaisie for flute and piano by Hue.

Cohan Theatre Change Denied.

The lessees of the George M. Cohan Theatre yesterday denied the published report that that playhouse had been leased to Max Spiegel. The present lessees, who are Marc Klaw, A. L. Erlanger, George M. Cohan, Sam H. Harris, and Frank Tate, will continue to operate the theatre until May, 1922.

ITALO MONTEMEZZI HERE.

Italo Montemezzi, the composer of the opera "La Nave," which is to be produced here later by the Chicago Grand Opera Company, arrived yesterday from Genoa on the Italian liner Duca degli Abruzzi, and will go at once to Chicago to superintend rehearsals for the presentation of his work there on Nov. 10.

He was met by friends at the pier at the foot of West Fifty-fifth Street. To interviewers he said that the libretto of the opera was written by Gabriele d'Annunzio, the scene being laid in Venice in the Middle Ages, when that city was called "Queen of the Seas." The final scene depicts the launching of a ship. "La Nave" was first produced a year ago at La Scala, Milan, and is the third of four operas Mr. Montemezzi has composed, the most famous being "The Love of the Three Kings."

Carlo Galeffi, baritone of the Chicago Opera, arrived with him on the liner, and will accompany Mr. Montemezzi to Chicago today after they have received their baggage.

Volpe Audience Asks Encores.

Those who have sought to "carry on" at the Hippodrome a good work begun in Summer concerts at the Stadium were encouraged yesterday, when the second of Arnold Volpe's matinees drew an audience larger by hundreds than that which heard the first one, while the crowd also showed a growing interest, demanding encores and making the orchestra stand up after Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Caprice Espagnole." Jacques Malkin, the first violin, who had a solo in that number, has just returned from four years' service in Belgium and France. He was warmly applauded, as was the pianist, John Powell, earlier in Liszt's "Hungarian Fantasy." Cantor Bernard Woolf sang with the orchestra the tenor air from "Pagliacci," and was recalled until he gave as encores, with piano, both the airs from "Tosca," which had been omitted for lack of orchestra parts, and the old favorite, "Di Quella Pira," from "Il Trovatore."

Fidelity Asters to be Guests.

The Society of Arts and Sciences, formerly the Twilight Club, will give a dinner to the members of the Actors' Fidelity League at the Hotel Biltmore next Sunday night. James W. Gerard will be toastmaster, and many prominent players are expected to attend.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION.

Coal Strike Lends Force to Study of Outlook for Corporation Earnings.

From the financial point of view the coal strike is to be measured primarily in respect to its effect upon earnings of industrial and transportation companies and in its result in dividends for many weeks after the strike is ended. Taking the steel industry, the tie-up of fuel production supplements the strike of steel mill workers, which is rapidly deteriorating but holds the chance of having as complete an influence upon production as the strike leaders hoped for, provided that the coal mine strike lasts for any length of time. It is estimated that steel works' activity, reduced to 40 per cent. of capacity in the first week of the strike, has now risen to between 65 and 70 per cent. of the pre-strike scale. Most of the mills, presumably, have a fair stock of coal on hand, yet with the threat of a greatly reduced output of soft coal it is reasonable to assume that mill managers will shortly, if not immediately, seek to conserve fuel, and this perforce will mean a decline of output. Numerous railroads have issued orders cutting down train service, which means lower earnings. The Government authorities have revamped the wartime system of priority deliveries of coal from stocks, forecasting meagre supplies for all sorts of manufacturing. Harassed by a great variety of strikes in the last six months, the country's producers of manufactured goods now have looming over them a basic strike which threatens to intensify many fold the scattered handicaps of the earlier labor difficulties. The solidarity of the nation's business promises to be emphasized in the next few days or weeks as it never was before, not even during the war period, when all united in a single purpose. When the need was present for joining resources of labor and machinery in the task of beating Germany, the constructive forces reached a pitch of production which had not been dreamed possible prior to the entrance of the country into the war. Now, through strikes, and through the coal strike primarily, the reverse side of the picture is held out, giving a view of the possible result of the destructive elimination from the business structure of one of the strongest supports, which is fuel. The Administration has labeled the coal strike as disastrous if carried to the full extent which the labor leaders suggest, and has acted to prevent a calamity. The Government is not acting with the thought to maintain individual corporation earnings, nor to promote speculation in stocks, but to the end that unemployment may not be furthered through lack of coal and for the purpose of maintaining the normal comfort of the people. And in this there is no question but that the Government has the full support of the public. Whether or not the injunction obtained by the Federal authorities, tying the hands of the labor leaders and impounding the union funds, is effective in weakening the strike from the start, the promise has been made that whatever measures are necessary will be used to keep the coal coming from the mines. That is what caused many business men to view the beginning of the strike with calm minds last week. While they felt that even a temporary curtailment of bituminous output must be felt in reduced factory operations, they reasoned that the opportunity would merely be deferred for expanding manufacturing activities with markets made all the more keen for goods by the delay.

Speculation in stocks during the week was made rather erratic by considerations of the coal strike and by evidences of none too free a supply of credit. Still, it could not be said that the strike developments had more than passing influence on trading. In fact, the broad aspects of the market contained little which showed that speculators were moved by anything of a real economic import, being led by the vision of profits held before them by the extraordinary advances of certain industrial stocks. Call money covered a range extending from 4½ to 20 per cent. The stiffest rates ruled at the end of the week, considering Friday as the last day for general borrowing. The hardening process was cumulative, a result of heavy payments on Nov. 1, when several large security issues matured, and because of the special pressure on bank credit at the beginning of the month speculators probably were not as much impressed by the call rates as they would have been at another time. There was, however, one element in the money situation worthy of serious consideration in relation to the stock market. The Federal Reserve Bank of New York, in the monthly statement of the Reserve Agent, reported that while there had been a letup in borrowings of the member banks in September, this reduction was transient, and by Oct. 17 the "mounting credit demands of the season and of speculation in securities, real estate, and other forms of property, together with the withdrawal of $166,000,000 of Government deposits," had carried the bank's loans upward to $974,400,000. The high record for borrowings to that time—indicated in the item of the bank's weekly statement as "total earning assets"—was $984,900,000 on July 11. The bank's comment on the loan situation drew attention to the stock market credit outlook, which was increased on Saturday when the weekly report of the bank disclosed an expansion which brought the total of loans up to $994,394,000. A deduction from the figures would be that recent high call money rates have been reflective of an extended loan account that might receive correction in a manner to disturb speculative calculations. The July high record of Federal Reserve Bank loans, it will be recalled, occurred a few days before stocks reached the maximum average price for the Spring and Summer movement.

Foreign dispatches of late have presented confusing comment on the progress made by the recently belligerent countries in restoring industrial operations. While some British economists seem to feel that German producers will soon be underselling producers of the British Isles in the latters' own markets, others hold that the German trade menace is remote.

"Two most formidable barriers—the cost of imported raw material and the shortage of coal—stand between them [German manufacturers] and the world's export trade," says the Economist of London. "Not able at present to climb these walls or push them down, they are busily drilling all sorts of little holes through which a thin trickle of trade may flow. For our part we do not grudge them any success which they may achieve. On the contrary, we find it in our hearts to wish our late enemies a happy issue out of all their tribulations. Our sympathy has its roots in self-interest. For until Germany recovers Europe cannot recover, and until Europe recovers Great Britain will lack much which it would wish to buy and seek vainly for markets in which it would wish to sell. Our people are gradually learning the hardest of lessons—that a rich Germany is much better for us than a poor Germany, and that a Germany which buys from or sells to us is conferring not an injury but a benefit."

USE JUDGMENT IN SELECTING YOUR INVESTMENTS

EXPERTS are of the opinion that bonds of real intrinsic merit purchased around present prices are practically certain to sell considerably higher within the next few years. The question, therefore, is not so much whether you should buy now, as it is that you use the proper amount of judgment in making selections. Should you wish us to submit to you a list of diversified investments, we would be glad to do so, following out your ideas as to type and geographical location as closely as possible.

FEAR CRIPPLING OF STEEL INDUSTRY

STEEL WORKERS RETURNING

And Operation Is on Increase, but Developments This Week Probably Will Offset This.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 1.—The steel industry, decidedly an "essential industry" during the hostilities, becomes a relatively unessential industry from the viewpoint of coal distribution when there is a shortage of coal. If the coal strike seriously decreases the supply of coal the operation of steel mills will no doubt be crippled.

Before the Government announced that it would take strong measures to protect the miners who desired to work there were expectations that a general strike would extend into the Connellsville coke region, which was formerly exclusively a coke region, but has of late shipped about as much coal as it has converted into coke in its ovens. In the last few days, however, it has been considered certain that the Connellsville region would operate, regardless of the strike.

Late last week there were sharp advances in Connellsville coke, due partly to anticipations of the strike and partly to there being a burst in the export demand. Furnace coke went up to $6 equal to the Government control price, while in the first few days of the steel strike coke had sold at $3.50. Foundry coke has been in good demand and has sold at $8 as the top figure, some sales having been made early in the week at $7.

In the last few days the iron and steel strike has yielded, in point of interest, to the impending coal strike. The steel strike has been losing ground at a more rapid rate in the last week, the sixth of the struggle, than in the earlier weeks. Production, in actual tonnage, is well in excess of 60 per cent. of the rate just before the strike, which was the heaviest rate since early in the year. Many men have returned to work recently at plants where working forces are being aligned for efficient operation. In some cases men who have returned to work are kept on repair jobs temporarily.

Outside the Chicago district the strike situation is clearly defined at all plants, which are either operating at nearly if not quite 100 per cent., or are closed as to actual tonnage production or very nearly so. The Eastern Pennsylvania mills are all running practically full, as are the Southern mills. The Western Pennsylvania plants are nearly all operating substantially full, except for one or two spots where the strike still hangs on.

The shortage in steel that was expected by the strike leaders, and perhaps also by the manufacturers, does not seem to have developed. Manufacturing consumers are not plentifully supplied, but they seem to have enough steel to maintain their operations fairly well.

While no official or formal statement has been made, it has been the understanding in the steel trade for two or three weeks past that the United States Steel Corporation managers are unanimously of the opinion that finished steel prices should be held at their present level, and it is assumed that leading independent interests are of the same opinion. Prompt deliveries may, however, bring premiums over the basic prices, which has happened before.

The undertone of the scrap market continues to gain in strength, and from one viewpoint higher values might be quoted on general grades, in that round tonnages could not be bought at the levels recently quoted as representing the market, but, on the other hand, if such scrap were forced on the market it would hardly bring prices lately quoted as nominally representing values, as it would have to go to dealers who carry it. On the whole, mills are taking somewhat more scrap than formerly, but the tonnage is quite small, taking the district as a whole.

Nothing definite has been announced as to tin plate prices for the first half of next year, but the indications are that the $7 price of March 21 will stand. Some of the manufacturers want an advance, but a large majority do not, and the minority cannot control or affect the market. So far as can be learned no contracts have been made for either the first quarter or the first half of the year, but customers who have regular mill connections are sure to get their tin plate, even if it be in the form of allotments if there is a shortage.

A shortage is not improbable, as the iron and steel strike has curtailed production a great deal.

Production of merchant iron in the Buffalo district was greatly restricted by the strike, and remains restricted, so that iron is scarce in Buffalo, and there is no possibility of it being offered here or in intermediate territory for a long time to come.

TO FOSTER CREDITS ABROAD

Committee of Bankers Is Named to Study Foreign Investments.

John McHugh, Vice President of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank, New York City, who is Chairman of the Committee on Commerce and Marine of the American Bankers Association, announced yesterday the appointment of a subcommittee of the Commerce and Marine Committee to consider the matter of foreign credits.

This subcommittee is named with the approval of the President of the American Bankers Association. Its appointment follows the definite stand on foreign credits taken by the Committee on Commerce and Marine of the association and emphasized in a report made by the committee to the American Bankers Association at the association's convention in St. Louis on Oct. 2.

The report states that such an organization should have ample capital, and be sufficiently resourceful to extend credits running into the largest figures that can be required for the purchase of American products, "and its efforts should most certainly be supplemented by the maximum of production here, in order not only that our people be kept well and profitably employed, but that they be not subjected to the payment of excessive prices for their own needs." The report also declares the committee's belief that the creation of American credits abroad constitutes "an essential basis for the maintenance and extension of our foreign trade, and that this basis can be secured to a markedly important, if not wholly necessary, degree by wisely-made American investment in foreign securities, not only Government issues, but also municipal and industrial, if properly guaranteed."

Those named on the subcommittee are: William A. Law, President First National Bank, Philadelphia, Chairman; Fred I. Kent, Vice President Bankers Trust Company, New York City; Richard S. Hawes, Vice President First National Bank, St. Louis, Mo.; Waldo Newcomer, President National Exchange Bank, Baltimore, Md., and Thomas B. McAdams, Vice President Merchants National Bank, Baltimore, Md. Mr. McHugh is a member of the committee ex-officio.

$4,952,582,110 HELD IN N. Y. STATE BANKS

ALBANY, Nov. 2.—The resources reported by the 100 trust companies, 214 State banks of deposit and discount and the ninety-two private bankers under the supervision of the State Superintendent of Banks on Sept. 12, 1919, aggregated $4,952,582,110. Of this amount the total resources of the trust companies were $3,585,134,412; the total resources of the State banks of deposit and discount were $1,342,205,720; and the banking resources of the private bankers amounted to $35,241,948. The increase in the total resources reported by the three classes of institutions from June 30, 1919, the date of the last previous call, to Sept. 12, 1919, was $2,999,239.

Reports filed with Superintendent Skinner on Sept. 12, 1919, show that from June 30, 1919, the total resources of the State banks increased from $1,270,298,064 to $1,342,205,750, a gain for the period of $71,907,686. During the same period the total deposits as reported increased from $1,050,991,991 to $1,122,871,133, or $71,879,222. The banking resources of the private bankers under supervision increased from $34,857,697 on June 30, 1919, to $35,241,948 on Sept. 12, 1919, a gain of $384,251. While deposits during the same period show a falling off of $708,815, the total on Sept. 12, 1919, being $17,451,352, there was an increase in the surplus carried by these private bankers of $1,302,718.

During the same period the reported resources of the trust companies of the State decreased from $3,654,927,090 to $3,585,134,412, an apparent loss of $69,792,678, and their deposits decreased during the same period from $2,911,942,330 to $2,865,475,794, or $46,457,436.

The greater part of this decrease, both in resources and in deposits, is accounted for, however, by the fact that during the period referred to the resources of the Scandinavian Trust Company of New York were taken over by the Liberty National Bank and the City Trust Company of Buffalo was merged with the Bank of Buffalo.

Notwithstanding the apparent decrease in totals, it is evident from the figures that the trust companies of the State made very great progress during the period, for while there was a decrease in deposits secured by pledge of assets, presumably Government deposits, of $103,000,000, there was an increase in the amount due depositors, not preferred, of $76,000,000. During the same period their bills payable were reduced approximately $18,000,000 and their rediscounts nearly $14,000,000. During the same period the deposits of the State banks secured by pledge of assets decreased more than $6,000,000, while their deposits not preferred increased over $98,000,000.

Doorway of the MERCHANTS' BANK BUILDING 1840 to 1883

THE STORY of the erection of this building is interesting as illustrating the sound judgment characteristic of the Bank's management. For thirty-five years the Merchants' Bank remained in its original building. By 1838 it became plain that the quarters were too cramped for economical handling of the Bank's growing business. This building was therefore determined on—planned expressly for the needs of the Bank and built throughout of granite at a cost of $40,000. In this building, on June 17, 1865, were executed the Articles of Association and Certificate of Organization under which the Merchants' Bank became the Merchants' National Bank of the City of New York.

SUGGESTS WALKOUT OF ROADS' INVESTORS

Pierpont V. Davis Points Danger That They Will Liquidate Their Holdings.

ANALYZES RAIL SITUATION

Banker Says a Policy of Niggardly Dealing with the Owners Will Result in Nationalization.

Unless the investor in railroad securities receives better treatment and more consideration than he has been receiving for the last few years, there is danger that he will liquidate his holdings and necessitate the taking over of the roads by the Government, according to Pierpont V. Davis, Vice President of the National City Company and one of the leading experts on railroad securities in this country.

"Strikes are a popular amusement nowadays," says the banker, "but the reason why the railroad investor has been threatening to walk out is because he has not had fair treatment and proper encouragement."

Speaking of the rights of the "forgotten partner" in the railroad business—the man whose savings are invested in railroad securities—Mr. Davis says:

"We cannot afford to ignore or forget this man, for the state of his mind gauges the condition of railway credit. In this country the forgotten partner in the railway business has become dissatisfied and there are indications that he is considering withdrawing from the firm. His already partial withdrawal constitutes the principal part of what is commonly called the railroad problem.

"There is one all important difference between the ordinary business venture and a public service enterprise. The one may shut up shop and go out of business and the other may not, no matter how trying the situation. Therefore, if the partner in the railroad business, whom we have been prone to neglect in this country, decides to withdraw, his place must be taken promptly by some one else, and when private initiative fails the Government must step in.

"Those of us who have had the opportunity to know what the investor has been thinking have not had many doubts about the true state of railroad credit. Down in Washington, however, there has been endless controversy over the question whether railroad credit is good or bad. Representatives of shippers' organizations have contended that railroad credit was all right. Elaborate statistical tables have been produced to prove that the decline in the price of railroad bonds was no greater than that of Government or industrial securities. However, the railroad bonds listed are generally underlying gilt-edge issues under closed mortgages which are no longer available for raising funds.

"The issuance of new securities affords us a method of measuring the public's taste in investments. During the first nine months of this year $2,000,000,000 of new securities have been brought out. Of these $1,700,000,000 were industrial issues and about $400,000,000 rails. Not a dollar of new railroad securities was in the form of stock, against more than $1,000,000,000 in industrial stocks. Most of the industrial financing has been for the purpose of enlarging plant capacity and for new business. Most of the railroad financing has been for refunding purposes and has not brought any new facilities into existence.

"The Railroad Administration has spent substantial sums for additions and betterments, but this money was chiefly raised on Government credit and must some day be repaid. Furthermore, we have Mr. Hines's word for it that the war and general financial conditions have prevented a proper expansion of railway facilities so that there is still pressing need for a great deal of fresh money.

"I analyzed the sales on the Stock Exchange recently. Out of 6,600,000 shares sold less than 500,000 shares were railroad, and of these 200,000 shares were of Southern Pacific, and in the Street that is now regarded as an all stock. If this indicated a healthy state of affairs I would not protest, for the investment banker does not like to see railroad stocks made a speculative football. But the figures indicate the judgment of thousands of shrewd men that railroad securities are not now attractive. They seem to possess no chance for speculative profit and do not offer at the present time true investment stability. I hope, as a result of impending legislation, that railroad securities may be definitely assigned to the investment classification.

"Railroads are the largest consumers of steel in the country, yet it is something of an anomaly that when only six railroad stocks sell over par and 7 per cent. dividend payers like Great Northern are at a discount of 15 per cent., Crucible Steel should sell at 250 and Baldwin Locomotive at 150.

"The investor is not disguaded from buying railroad securities because railway Presidents tell hard-luck stories to the Interstate Commerce Commission, as some people think. He is influenced by facts which impress themselves rudely on his mind. His dividends, for example, are cut or passed; his coupons returned from the bank unpaid; he cannot collect the principal of his bond or note at maturity. Experiences of that sort make a deep impression and hardly a happy one. Strikes are a popular amusement nowadays, but the reason the railroad investor has been threatening to walk out is because he has not had fair treatment and proper encouragement.

To Change to Fuel Oil

Preliminary arrangements for the use of oil as locomotive fuel on its lines in Texas, and on some of its Oklahoma lines, have been practically completed by the management of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railroad.

Contracts for fuel oil supply for the Katy lines in Texas and on the W. F. & N. W. have been concluded. Work on the conversion of engines on the W. F. & N. W. to oil burners, it is expected, will be completed by January 1, and that on the Texas lines some time later in the summer of 1920.

When plans now under way have been carried out, the Katy's annual consumption of oil for locomotive fuel will be approximately 3,500,000 bbls.

DEALERS MAY ASK BUILDERS TO STRIKE

Say Temporary Checking of Demand Would Stop New Material Price Boosts.

BRICK $22.75 IN BRONX

With almost every Eastern building material dealer aligned with the consumer against further increases in the cost of construction commodities and the manufacturers of at least several items entering into general building construction already beginning to feel the stampede for supplies that has been expected since the armistice was signed, the Eastern building material market presented the most paradoxical situation in its history on Saturday.

The situation reached its climax when common brick attained a price of $18 a thousand, wholesale. The usual charges for cartage, handling and 15 per cent. brought the cost to the consumer of Hudson common brick delivered at his building operation in the Bronx to $22.75 a thousand. There is no alternative but to pay this price, according to the dealers, because every New Jersey manufacturer is sold up on contract as well as the Long Island and Connecticut firms that normally are looked to in an emergency of this kind.

When on Tuesday the price moved from $16, where the more conservative brick manufacturers had succeeded in holding it for some time, despite heavy pressure from up-river producers, to $17 a thousand, wholesale, certain consumers made overtures to North River manufacturers for the brick they had loaded on docks preparatory to shipment into this market for Winter requirements. The manufacturers, facing closing of navigation from points above Haverstraw within a few weeks, succumbed to the $18 price offer at dock, New York, and sold.

This marked the beginning of the stampede that now threatens to take up all the available supply of common brick that formed a late Winter and Spring reserve, and with increasing difficulty of getting coal the chances for Winter burning of the "green" brick now lying in racks for baking are increasingly slim.

This condition has prompted big building interests to take up and bring to this market all the brick the manufacturers will sell them. The manufacturers say that even at the $18 level they are not making an abnormal profit, because the brick sold now is carrying the losses that have been piling up for the last three years. Haverstraw is the only source of brick supply left for this market during the Winter, and the drain upon this supply is already above normal, with no hindrance whatever for the price of this commodity to reach even higher wholesale price levels.

Dealers in building materials on Saturday frankly admitted that they would welcome a strike among the builders of New York in protest against such price levels, or some other such remedial measure that would help restore sanity in price quotations, says The Dow Service Daily Building Reports today. An actual famine in common brick next Spring is not beyond the pale of reason, they say. It has even reached a point with them where it has been necessary for the dealers to agree to send only a specified number of trucks to the one boatload of brick at Fordham, for instance, so as to avoid conditions of unequal distribution of the scanty supply available.

It was said that the best thing that could happen was for big building contractors to close down their jobs for a week or two to check the scramble for brick, but the manufacturers said that the difficulty was not at the source of supply or at distributing sources in New York, but in the fact that building construction was getting under way and that the possibilities of a brick famine, because of inability to get coal to burn the green brick now in yards, had resulted in a wild scramble upon the part of those who expect to use large quantities of common brick this Winter and next Spring to get it within short hauling distance from job at the earliest possible moment and almost at any price.

Current building material price lists show more actual changes in building material quotations than have featured the weekly compilation for more than a year. The only week that compares with it was in the Spring of 1916. New quotations on hollow tile intimated in this column last week were not issued until Friday.

They show a new classification for fireproofing material, one for volumes under 3,000 square feet, and the other for volumes over that figure. From the following quotations a discount is given of 5 per cent. for cash in fifteen days, and the delivery zone is extended from south of Seventy-second Street to 125th St., Manhattan.

For prices in Brooklyn, Bronx, and Queens additional charges over these quotations may be expected. Single truckloads of amounts under 3,000 square feet, per thousand square feet: 2-inch split furring, $87.40; 3-inch partition, $131; 4-inch partition, $139.80; 6-inch partition, $192.20; 8-inch partition, 262.10, and 8-inch exposure wall tile, including header backer for backing brick walls, $336.24.

For quantities over 3,000 square feet, 2-inch split furring, $76.90; 3-inch partition, $115.40; 4-inch partition, $123; 6-inch partition, $169.10; 8-inch partition, $230.60; 8-inch exposure wall tile, including header backer for backing brick walls, $295.50.

Inside information in the building material market on Saturday indicated that price advances were scheduled to develop at any time in lime, both common and finishing. In limestone there has been some stiffening in prices, generally about 10 cents a foot, but other building stone holds steady at present excepting granite, which is now selling on a scale from 85 cents to $6.60, which price was paid last week for good granite in the rough.

The derrick men, who formerly received $6 a day, struck for $7, and went back to work at $6.50. Price advances are expected in the steel market, according to some authorities. There are important price changes upward expected in the lumber market.

ADVERTISING IS AN INVESTMENT

There Is No "T Square" For Advertising

Some advertisers have succeeded with the use of only one medium. Many others have succeeded with the use of many media. We do not believe there is any "T-Square" that will measure the needs of all advertisers.

The Federal method is to analyze every business and product, of, for and by itself. We may advise the broad circulation of magazines, the concentrated appeal of newspapers, the bold display of bill posting, painted signs, street car cards, or—all of them. Or, our advice may be not to advertise—and why.

When you bring your merchandising and advertising problems to Federal you have a personal counsel of the widest experience, supported by an organization of specialists in every branch of service that contributes to the success of advertising.

Put it up to men who know your market.

WHY GAMBLE?

The great law of Action and Reaction governs both speculative and investment markets. While it is impossible for any one to anticipate day to day "ripples"—the great major movements are regular as the tides themselves.

Babson's Reports, based on fundamental statistics, forecast these major movements for you with remarkable accuracy. They get you in on the real "buys" at low tide—out as your holdings reach the peak—then in at the bottom again. You make more than there is any probability of making in day to day trading and avoid the worry, loss of time and risk involved in ordinary speculation.

Full details of this Babson Method of Investment and "200% Profit—A recital of facts" will be sent to interested investors GRATIS.

Trade with Mexico Is Growing.

An increase in the trade between the United States and Mexico is indicated in statistics taken from the Customs House at Vera Cruz, the principal Mexican port on the Gulf of Mexico. According to these, the declared exports to this country through Vera Cruz in the six months ended June 30 were valued at $4,780,922, as compared with $2,036,380 in the corresponding period of 1918. The principal item was coffee, of which a quantity valued at $2,131,815 was shipped in 1919, as against shipments of $1,200,640 in 1918. Shipments of chicle increased from 435,575 pounds, valued at $246,459, in the first six months of 1918, to 1 605,509 pounds, worth $1,296,604, in 1919.

Swiss Cloth Exports Increase.

BERNE, Nov. 2.—The Swiss embroidery and cotton cloth exportation to America in October increased to 5,800,000 francs. In October, 1918, these exports aggregated under 500,000 francs.

ITALY NEEDS LEATHER.

Trade Agent Sees Opportunity for American Manufacturers.

Opportunity for American manufacturers of certain kinds of leather is seen in Italy by H. C. McLean, Trade Commissioner of the Department of Commerce at Rome, according to a report which he has just sent to Washington.

Before the war Italy was a large importer of leather, and purchased approximately half its supplies from Germany. According to the best information now obtainable, Germany for a long time to come will not be able to renew its export trade in anything like the quantity of pre-war times. This being the case, Mr. McLean argues, there is no reason why the United States should not gain permanently a large share of the Italian import trade.

In 1913 Italy imported 31,460 quintals of tanned hides, of which 17,472 were from Germany, 7,894 from France, and only 653 from this country. When modification of Italian import restrictions were under consideration recently the Government realized the country's needs in leather and authorized its importation without restriction. It also forbade leather exportation.

It is estimated that 30 per cent. of leather producing animals in Italy were slaughtered during the war, and that there is a consequent reduction in the supply of raw material available.

During the war the manufacture of shoes in Italy was nearly doubled. It is estimated that in 1913 about 45,000 pairs were manufactured daily, but that this production will be increased to 75,000 or 80,000 pairs a day when machinery which has been ordered is put into operation. Italy's consumption is about 110,000 pairs of shoes a day, and not more than half the population wears leather shoes. The Italian shoes are chiefly of the cheap and medium grades.

Italy also is a large consumer of upholstery leather, especially in the automobile industry, which is said to use 20,000 tanned skins a year.

LOOK TO THE FUTURE.

A wonderful future stretches before this great city of New York; more and more commerce will centre here, more and larger ships will enter our harbors; more and swifter trains will rush in and out of our stations; more business, involving bigger affairs than ever before, will be transacted in our buildings.

By its very nature, the telephone business must increase as the city develops; as industry grows and expands, its demands for telephone service grow larger and more exacting; it is the duty and privilege of the Telephone Company to anticipate and meet these demands.

There are wonderful opportunities right now in telephone operating; girls and young women are needed to handle the present enormous telephone traffic; these young women will rise to higher positions with greater responsibility and higher salary as the increasing demand for telephone service creates new opportunities in the telephone business; the junior operator of today is the supervisor, assistant Chief Operator and Chief Operator of tomorrow.

Girls 16 to 23 are wanted for Day Telephone Operating.

Young women, 21 to 35, for Night Telephone Operating.

READ THIS!
If you are a successful salesman you can be successful with us. We want three clean-cut men to distribute the securities of industrial corporations we have helped to finance.
You may have a clientele—you may prefer leads—you may be better adapted to cold calls. The system we teach you includes all three methods.
You will be offering dividend-paying stocks in going companies—no promotions—no oil or mining schemes. The basis is strictly commission—are you interested? If you want a permanent connection that will pay you well call and talk it over.

34TH ST. LOOP WINS EXPERTS' APPROVAL

COST PLACED AT $1,500,000

See In the Idea Great Advantage for Theatrical and Shopping Centre of City.

A subway loop, to circle the great shopping, hotel and theatrical district between Times Square and Thirty-fourth Street, suggested by the Thirty-fourth Street Board of Trade, has received the indorsement of such transit experts as Travis H. Whitney, former Chairman of the Public Service Commission; Milo R. Maltbie, public service consultant, and the Transportation Committee of the Forty-second Street Property Owners and Merchants' Association. It is to be submitted to the Public Service Commission, and is already under consideration by the New York Board of Trade and Transportation. It is said that many civic associations in the city are interested in the plan.

In brief, the idea is to have a central subway loop connecting the local northbound track of the Seventh Avenue subway with the southerly shuttle track in Forty-second Street, and thence connecting with the southbound local track in Fourth Avenue with a connecting link in Thirtieth or Thirty-first Street between Fourth and Seventh Avenues.

Similar plans in the past have not met with favor, because all of them failed to take into consideration that they would interfere with through service on both trunk lines. The present plan is subject to the same objection, but it is argued that the proposed loop would serve such a valuable purpose that the slight interference with through service would be richly repaid in increased convenience to the public and the increased value of realty in the loop district.

Another objection was the heavy cost, but the promoters of the present plan say on the authority of Mr. Maltbie that the cost would not exceed $1,500,000. It is also explained that the improvement is designed to connect existing trunk lines with a view to overcoming the Forty-second Street shuttle difficulties and giving continuous service to connect all points in the great retail, hotel, and transit terminal section of the metropolis. The east and west side subways, the Hudson tubes and the Broadway subway would be linked together.

Discussing the general features of the plan, Mr. Whitney said:

"I have studied the plan and I believe it is entirely practicable and feasible from an engineering point of view. Such a connecting link would aid greatly in providing better local distribution for passengers from all sections of the city and afford added convenience to that extent.

"I think it might be well to go even further than is proposed and work out in connection with the loop a subway plan to tap the Thirty-fourth Street district and extend into Brooklyn. Such an extension might be operated in connection with the loop scheme by extending to Eighth or Ninth Avenue a connection with the Queensboro or the Fourteenth Street subway."

Mr. Maltbie explained that when the shuttle service through Forty-second Street was planned there was no intention that the present plant should be permanent. He said that of all the various suggestions offered to improve the present condition the loop idea was the best and the most practical.

Mr. Maltbie also explained that passengers from the upper west side could reach any part of the Thirty-fourth Street district by making one change at Times Square, whence they could also, by a single change, reach the east side at Thirty-third Street and Fourth Avenue.

Ole Hanson to Speak Tonight.

Ole Hanson, ex-Mayor of Seattle, will speak tonight in Carnegie Hall on Bolshevism and Its Antidote, Americanism." His talk will be under the auspices of the Civic Forum. In addition to discussing radicalism, Mr. Hanson will speak on the railroads and how they have fared under Government control. He recently completed a five weeks' trip through the South and West and declared yesterday that the railroads were in bad shape.

56c Dollars!

Why increased costs demand increased care of willed money

YOU are planning to leave all you can to insure the comfort of your wife; the education of your children. Whether the amount is $5,000, $500,000, or $5,000,000, its future administration now deserves more thought than ever.

Foresight, more cautious now than ever, says,—"Take no chances. The income from the money you leave must do double duty. For, as a well-known economist points out:—

"After making a countrywide study, making investigations in 90 cities, we find that since 1914 the cost of living, which includes not food and clothing alone, but all the items of the household and business budget, has increased 80%. One dollar is now worth exactly 56 cents."

Costs have climbed. Taxes have trebled. Your dollars have shrunk. Your family's future income must stretch farther than you had planned. Perhaps you cannot increase greatly the amount you leave. But you can increase greatly the care with which it will be handled. We feel we can make it worth your while to discuss with you for safeguarding the money you leave

The plan is as follows: It can, if you wish, be made operative during your life.

1. A Columbia Trust Fund is simply money set aside under the protection of the Columbia Trust Company and invested to provide periodical income for definite objects.
2. All investments of Columbia Trust Funds are made under the supervision of the permanent Investment Committee appointed by our Board of Directors.
3. Life insurance or any other money may be used to form the Trust Fund. We are bound by a written agreement to carry out your wishes definitely and absolutely.
4. We will make investments of the Trust Fund for you in such securities as are lawful for trustees, or, if you prefer, you can give us definite instructions to follow.
5. Income from the Trust Fund will be paid in installments to whom you wish and when you wish in the amount you wish.

The following officers will welcome the opportunity to give you further details—without obligation, of course. At our downtown office, Mr. Warren, Vice-President, or Mr. Judd, Trust Officer. At our Fifth Avenue office, Mr. Dunn, Vice-President.

THIS is the beginning of a new month. Much can be gained by looking back over the past month's operations, and weighing carefully each step that was taken, determining which policies were profitable and which were not.

BOTH SIDES PREDICT ELECTION VICTORY; EXPECT HEAVY VOTE

Republicans and Democrats Declare Confidence, but Make No Estimates.

CHIEF FIGHT ON JUDGESHIPS

Secretary of War Baker Refuses to Make Public Untermyer Draft Questionnaire.

ONE CITY-WIDE CONTEST

TODAY'S ELECTION.
Polls open at 6 A. M. and close at 9 P. M.
Weather — Increasing cloudiness and warmer; rain at night.

Predictions of victory from both the Tammany and anti-Tammany camp marked the closing of the campaign at midnight. Neither Tammany Leader Charles F. Murphy nor Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the Republican County Committee, showed a willingness to translate their election expectations into estimates of pluralities. The Tammany men, if anything, seemed the more confident, while the Republicans expressed a lively hope. Anti-election betting favored Tammany's candidates.

A record vote for an off year is expected. In some quarters, it is believed, the vote will exceed that of last year, when a Governor was elected, but when the influenza epidemic kept many voters at home on Election Day. Although the election is of purely local interest, the registration is the largest in the history of the city. The Board of Elections has prepared for the balloting by supplying 1,831,000 ballots.

The polls will open at 6 o'clock this morning and remain open until 6 at night. The Election Board has urged voters to be on hand as early as possible, to avoid crowding, delay, and a possible loss of their ballot during the closing hours of the day.

Although this is a political off year, one office, that of President of the Aldermanic Board, will be filled by city-wide vote. This office became vacant through the resignation of Alfred E. Smith after he had been elected Governor. Another office not generally filled in an off year, that of President of the Borough of Manhattan, will be voted for. This vacancy arose through the death of Frank L. Dowling, who was elected in 1917 and had two more years to serve.

Chief Contest Over Judgeships.

The contest that has aroused the most interest is that to fill two vacancies on the Supreme Court bench in the First Judicial District, including the Boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx, because it embodies the perennial anti-Tammany issue. There are four candidates, representing the two leading parties, whose names appear on the ballot, and each elector has the privilege of voting for two.

The lively controversy in connection with the candidacy of Irwin Untermyer, one of the Tammany nominees for Supreme Court Justice, was brought to an end yesterday when, in answer to persons who had questioned his draft record, the candidate made public a statement to show that his representatives had been laboring with Secretary of War Baker at Washington Saturday in a futile effort to obtain for publication Mr. Untermyer's draft questionnaire, and thus set at rest rumors that he had attempted to evade military duty by seeking a deferred classification.

The anti-Tammany issue is involved also in the contest for three vacancies on the City Court bench, to be filled by the voters in Manhattan and the Bronx. Justice Richard H. Smith of the City Court, like Justice Joseph E. Newburger of the Supreme Court, is a candidate for re-election. Justice Newburger and Justice Smith were turned down for renomination by Tammany Hall, although both were Democrats and both had records of faithful service on the bench.

Other offices to be filled are those of Surrogate, in Manhattan, Bronx and Brooklyn; Justices of the Municipal Court in all boroughs except the Bronx; a full county ticket in Brooklyn, several county offices in Bronx, Queens, and Richmond; Assemblymen and Aldermen in every district throughout the city, and State Senatorships in the Second District (Queens) and the Sixteenth District (Manhattan.)

Four Amendments Up for Vote.

The voters also will have submitted to them on a referendum four proposed amendments to the Constitution. Amendment Number One, which gives the State powers of eminent domain in acquiring lands for drainage purposes, has been pronounced an unsafe measure by eminent jurists, as has Amendment Number Two, empowering the Legislature to enact a law to provide a system for absentee voting.

The two other amendments provide salary increases for members of the Legislature and Judges of the Court of Appeals. These have been generally

Wilson Able to Work a Little; Hitchcock to Confer with Him

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—During the day today the President transacted some minor executive business, signing bills and pardon warrants.

Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, the Administration leader in the Peace Treaty fight, desires to discuss reservations with the President, and an engagement for him may be made within the next day or two.

Dr. Grayson said tonight that his patient was progressing nicely and regaining his strength as rapidly as could be expected. It would be some time, however, Dr. Grayson said, before the President would be able to take a motor ride.

BAY STATE CONTEST HAS WARM FINISH

Coolidge Manager Says the Governor Will Have a "Tremendous" Lead.

LONG BANKING ON BOSTON

Will Roll Up a Plurality of 48,000 in City, Party Leader Asserts.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 3.—The Massachusetts campaign closed tonight with a final burst of activity on both sides.

Governor Coolidge made his last speech at Faneuil Hall at noon and left at once for Northampton, his home. Richard H. Long, Democratic candidate for Governor, spoke in Worcester in the afternoon and made a whirlwind tour of Boston, Cambridge, and Chelsea tonight.

The campaign managers on both sides expressed confidence of the outcome of tomorrow's balloting. Frank B. Hall, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, although declining to give figures, said:

"Governor Coolidge's plurality will be so tremendous as to settle once and for all the question of law and order in Massachusetts. The Old Bay State always rings true."

Martin Hall, Chairman of the Long Campaign Committee, predicted the election of the Democratic candidate by a plurality of 60,000 or more.

Long's supporters are banking on a large plurality in Boston, where they expect to roll up a lead of 48,000, according to Mr. Hall. The latter estimates a total vote in Boston of 92,000.

Chairman Hormel of the Republican City Committee figures that Boston will be carried by Long by 15,000 or less.

Last year Boston gave Long 46,659 and Coolidge 26,750, a plurality for Long of 19,909.

The vote of the State in 1918 was: Coolidge, 214,863; Long, 197,828. The total vote, including candidates of minor parties, reached 415,361. Both parties expect that the total vote tomorrow will far exceed that ever before reached in the State.

It is on this expected heavy vote that the Republican leaders are counting to make certain the re-election of Governor Coolidge. They have given greater attention during the past two weeks to stirring the local city and town committees to get out the vote than ever before. Not since in 1915, when McCall defeated Walsh for re-election, have the Republican managers thoroughly canvassed the State with the idea of getting the voters to the polls.

Another factor on which the Coolidge men rely to bring victory to the Governor is the bolt of Democrats because of Mr. Long's utterances on the police crisis in Boston and the refusal of the Democrats in convention to support President Wilson in his fight for the League covenant. Evidence of the bolt is seen in all parts of the State.

The defection started a few days after the State Convention, when Joseph B. Ely, Chairman of the Resolutions Committee of the State Convention, announced that he could not support Long and other candidates on the ticket unless they repudiated the platform on the League covenant and the Boston police matter.

Since then well known Democrats, like Henry B. Endicott, Frank H. Pope, Henry M. Whitney, Mayor Charles S. Ashley of New Bedford, and William F. Fitzgerald have announced their intention to vote for Governor Coolidge because of his stand on the police strike.

Despite Hall's prediction that Long will carry Boston by 48,000, he and his associates are much worried over the desertion of their candidate by Boston Democrats. A fleet of auto trucks was sent out by the Long campaigners tonight, with red fire, megaphone orators, and other devices, in the hope of bolstering up their cause in this city.

So far as indicated by the betting, the pendulum has swung further in favor of Coolidge than it did Saturday night, when several wagers were laid at $200 on the Governor to $100 on Long. One man in a downtown hotel tonight offered $1,000 on Coolidge to $400 on Long. He found no takers. Later he succeeded in getting a few small bets at $100 to $30.

In view of the peculiar situation in Boston, where State Guardsmen are still on duty as a result of the police strike, drastic regulations have been promulgated for the voting tomorrow. Guardsmen and members of the new police force will be assigned in large numbers to all voting places, and loitering and congregating in groups will be prevented.

LADY ASTOR JOKES WITH FISHERMEN, OPENING CAMPAIGN

ADVOCATES SOCIAL REFORM

HER UNIONIST RIVAL QUITS

Labor and Liberal Opponents Will Make Issues of Her Wealth, Sex, and American Birth.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 3.—Lady Astor opened her election campaign here today, and if she is successful, as she probably will be, a new and interesting personality will enrich British public life, for she has views of her own and will not fear to express them, however they fit party exigencies at Westminster. Lady Astor can never be ignored, and she has her own way of overcoming opposition.

"She's a lively one; that she is," one of the Astor tenants at Cliveden said admiringly, and Plymouth thinks the same.

She drove this morning to the Barbican, one of the poorest districts of her constituency. Her carriage was marked only by a red, white and blue bow which her stout old coachman sported on his whip; but every one knew her, and as she waved to them they waved back and gazed long after her. The fish market was in progress at the Barbican, and in a moment Lady Astor's slim figure was surrounded by a crowd of blue-jerseyed fishermen, hatless women and ragged children. She made no speech, but joked and chaffed with all of them. Some were against her and said so, but that did not worry her.

"If you don't want me, I don't want to be here," she cried. "Only don't go yelling and yapping about brotherly love unless you've got it in your hearts. The State can't make angels of you."

But there was something like a wink in her eye as she said it. A girl in some kind of distress pressed close to her, and she listened even as she exchanged repartee with the Socialists.

The photographers induced her to board the trawler Good Friend to have her picture taken with the skipper.

"Why, he won't vote for me; I won't pose with him," she laughed; but she did it.

Amid all her vivacious chaff, Lady Astor touched on one point that in the belief of her friends has already assured her election. "I want for your children what I want for my children," she said; and the Barbican folk know she spoke the truth. Close by was the Batter Street Club for boys and girls, which she founded and keeps going, and every one here is acquainted with the Cecil Street Crèche and the Doustand Home for Invalid Children, which she has established.

"Lady Astor will be elected for what she has done already, and not for what she will do," one of her supporters said to THE NEW YORK TIMES representative; and her opponents fear that this is so. A labor spellbinder attacked her last night for her very generosity.

"Plymouth doesn't want blankets or coals," he shouted. "It doesn't intend to be sold for foreign gold. It will resist the glamour of American millions." But in a constituency where poor women are the majority of the voters Lady Astor's true kindliness will assuredly be her greatest strength.

It cannot be denied, however, that her American birth is telling against her. Thoroughly as she has identified herself with England for years, certain sections here cannot help feeling a little hurt that the first woman likely to take a seat in Parliament is of American birth, and a particularly charming and determined one, at that. A lady of the American clubwoman type is about to be projected into British politics, and some of the Old Guard are rather worried as to what she will do to them.

So Lady Astor is trying in her formal interviews to allay their fears and to show that she thinks mainly of the woman's side of life. She advocates better houses, maternity services, and educational facilities. She stands for quite sound, practical national housekeeping. She is "out on no joy ride," she insists, and, above all, would never force prohibition down the British workingman's throat. The good of Plymouth and of all classes of its population is the principal plank of her platform; but Plymouth seems to think that the real reason of her election will be that she's Lady Astor.

The Visit to the Fish Market.

PLYMOUTH, Nov. 3, (Associated Press.)—The truce arranged by the political parties of the Sutton division of Plymouth for the period of the municipal elections having expired, the statesmen of the three dominant political camps are prepared for the most novel and vigorously fought parliamentary battle in Plymouth's history.

Lady Astor, or, rather, Nancy Astor—for that is the name by which she is most widely known—will be the central figure, and apparently is most eager for the tile. She lost no time in firing the opening guns of the campaign, and early this afternoon drove into the Wharfside Fish Market in an open carriage drawn by a team of beautiful horses with bridles decorated with red, white, and blue rosettes.

A battery of press photographers, a swarm of children from the adjacent slum district and a miscellany of dock laborers and market workers immediately massed about the carriage. Approach-

New Irish Home Rule Plan To be Proposed by Government

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The British Government will announce the present week a new scheme of Irish government, according to a strongly supported report in Parliamentary circles today.

Under this plan said to be in prospect there would be a grant of home rule to Ireland, with power for counties to vote themselves out and form a governing body for the areas which might be thus excluded from the general scheme.

A supreme body, however, presided over by the Lord Lieutenant, would have authority over both the other bodies.

TREATY DEADLOCK SEEMS IMMINENT

Lodge and Hitchcock Defeat Each Other's Plans to Take a Final Vote.

RESERVATIONS THE ISSUE

Hitchcock Demands Vote on Minority Proposal After That on Majority Resolution.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—After vain attempts by the majority and minority forces of the Senate today to obtain unanimous agreement for a final vote on the Versailles treaty, the general impression grew at the Capitol that the treaty was gradually approaching the stage of deadlock with slight chance of ratification before the recess of Congress late in this month.

For the majority Senator Lodge pressed his proposal, offered last week, for a final vote on Nov. 12 on the committee reservations as a part of the resolution of ratification. This was blocked by Senator Hitchcock, leader of the minority forces, who offered a counter-proposal by which the final vote on the majority resolution would be taken on Thursday of this week, after which, if it were defeated, minority reservations would be considered, with a final vote on a resolution embodying them by Saturday.

Senator Hitchcock's proposal, which he urged as a means of allowing the minority an opportunity to effect a compromise on reservations, was opposed by Senator Lodge, who contended that the minority had all the chance it needed to obtain a vote on substitute reservations before the final vote was taken on the resolution of ratification.

The minority leader denounced Senator Lodge's proposal as intended to block any effort to reach a compromise. The majority, he said, appeared to have the votes necessary to "jam" their reservations through and, furthermore, appeared bound to prevent the minority from obtaining a vote on milder reservations if the latter felt impelled to vote against the drastic ones projected by the Foreign Relations Committee majority.

In the course of the debate on Senator Hitchcock's proposal Senator McCumber of North Dakota, a leader of the middle-ground reservationists, urged upon the Nebraskan the futility of attempting to obtain agreement upon it. Mr. McCumber clearly indicated that the middle-ground Senators were going to support the bulk of the committee reservations. As for himself, Mr. McCumber said he would vote against the preamble offered by the committee and against a few of the fifteen reservations promulgated by it.

Senator McCumber promised Mr. Hitchcock that if the ratifying resolution with the majority reservations were defeated he would move to reconsider the vote so as to obtain one on compromise reservation, such as Mr. Hitchcock had in mind. But he gave Mr. Hitchcock plainly to understand that the majority stood solidly at this time for nearly the entire committee program.

Later in the day Senator Hitchcock said he might renew his effort for unanimous agreement in a day or so. Whatever agreement he proposed, however, he said, would embrace a clear stipulation to allow the minority reservations to come up for vote after the defeat of the original ratifying reservation.

Senator Hitchcock repeated a threat conveyed by him in the Senate that,

UNION LOOKS TO WASHINGTON

Indianapolis Headquarters Expects Call for a Conference Soon.

Leaders, It Is Said, Would Drop 30-Hour Week and Accept 25 Per Cent. Rise in Wages.

LEWIS IS STILL SILENT

Counsel for Mine Workers Confer on Plans to Fight the Injunction Saturday.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 3.—John L. Lewis, Acting President of the United Mine Workers of America, returned to Indianapolis this afternoon from Springfield, Ill., where he spent Sunday at home. He refused to commit himself when asked whether he had received a telegram from Samuel Gompers suggesting a plan for the settlement of the bituminous coal miners' strike.

As to the report that he had received a message within a few hours from Secretary of Labor Wilson reminding him that the offer of President Wilson to appoint a tribunal to investigate and arbitrate still stood, Mr. Lewis said: "There is nothing to it," meaning that no such message had been received.

At the Mine Workers' headquarters it was reported that John L. Lewis, Acting President of the organization, and William Green, its Secretary-Treasurer, would be called to Washington before the end of the week to confer with representatives of the operators, Fuel Administrator Garfield, and possibly Secretary Wilson.

It is expected here that if a conference is held at Washington and is not antagonistic to the miners' previous attitude and is entered without reservations on the operators' part substantial concessions will be made by Lewis and his associates.

The six-hour day and the five-day week, it is said, will be waived and a demand probably for a forty-four-hour week substituted. The stand for a 60 per cent. increase in pay also may be modified to 25 per cent. if the operators are willing to compensate the men for time that they are now obliged to spend in traveling from the pit mouth to the working face at which coal is broken down. In some instances, where the tunnels are long and the cages for dropping the men to the mines' depths are small, more than two hours daily are occupied in this manner and no allowance in pay is made.

The principal reason pointed out to show why the Government's program of thirty injunction suits will not serve to break the strike is that the procedure of the courts is too slow. Assuming Judge Anderson on Saturday grants all the Government's requests and issues an order directing that the strike be called off, an appeal may be taken first to the Circuit Court of Appeals, which sits in Chicago, and then to the Supreme Court of the United States. Even if the utmost expedition were used officials of the United Mine Workers believe the procedure would extend to a sufficient time to produce a coal crisis.

Unofficial counts of the miners on strike today totaled 411,000. Saturday the number was 394,000.

From Terre Haute today came a report that Edward Stewart, President of the Eleventh District of the Mine Workers, which embraces the entire bituminous field of Indiana, has been approached by operators there with a program of settlement.

Stewart, it is said, has been invited to go to Washington with these operators to present to President Wilson and Secretary Wilson a program to

More West Virginia Unionists Refuse to Quit; Colorado Men Would Work if Protection Was Given

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Nov. 3.—According to a report issued tonight by the State Coal Association, the first definite break in the ranks of striking coal miners came today, when fifteen union mines in the northern fields resumed operations.

W. H. Cunningham, Secretary of the association, said that the operators were encouraged by the outlook, and announced that employers from the districts affected by the strike would meet in Charleston tomorrow, when a public invitation would be extended to the striking miners to return to work.

Coal production in West Virginia today was "well over 50 per cent," Mr. Cunningham said, and he added that indications pointed to a quick return to normal conditions.

DENVER, Col., Nov. 3.—Two hundred and seventy-six coal miners of the Walsenburg district today telegraphed to Attorney General Palmer at Washington that they were willing to return to work, but feared violence unless troops were sent.

Early reports to the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company indicated that its properties at Primero, Frederick, and Berwind, in the Southern Colorado coal field, were operating today with reduced forces. These properties were kept closed on Saturday, pending arrival of troops.

The Black Diamond, a mine in Boulder County employing fifty men, resumed work at full capacity this afternoon when operators and mine union officials agreed upon a settlement whereby operators will give such wage increases as are later made effective in Eastern fields.

CUT IN WORKDAY RETARDS GERMANY

RETURNING TO OVERTIME

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, (via Copenhagen,) Nov. 3.—"Our laborers have the eight-hour day, and some even shorter hours. Our country, our goods, and our estates are on the verge of bankruptcy. In these circumstances utter ruin would seem inevitable," said Director General Fritz Neuhaus of the great Borsig Locomotive and Machine Works to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, "if Germany alone, of all countries, found herself in such a situation. But in England all the principal trades have followed Germany's example in introducing the eight-hour day and America and many other countries are, or will soon be, compelled to do the same. Once the eight-hour day is universally accepted by all industrial countries Germany will not find it difficult to compete again in the world's markets, even if she has the worst of it in many other ways."

"Then the eight-hour day will suffice for the requirements of industry?" asked the correspondent.

"It will at least not kill industry. Some industries, it is true, may suffer more by it than the iron and steel trades, but the men employed in those industries already are beginning to see the danger and have reintroduced piecework and overtime in many cases, with the consent of their unions."

THE TIMES correspondent referred to the great metal workers' strike, which, through its various phases, already has lasted nearly six weeks and has extended to many of the iron and steel branch industries throughout Germany.

"Were not Borsigs themselves hit very hard by the demands for higher wages?" was the next inquiry.

"Borsigs, and nearly all similar establishments, granted these demands weeks ago. All our workmen," explained Director Neuhaus, "are divided into three classes and receive pay accordingly. First, the skilled laborers; second, the machine hands, and third, the unskilled workers. After we granted increased wages proportionately to these classes certain categories of the third class demanded rank with the second class, and certain second-class men claimed rank in the first class. Even these difficulties were finally regulated, but now the labor organizations have insisted that the so-called Betriebsraete, or factory councils, should have a voice in regard to all employments and dismissals. This is what hundreds of thousands of men are still contending for in the present strike.

"Doubtless we shall agree with our men somehow," said Neuhaus confidently, "but then the strike leaders will find some other reason for prolonging the strike because they have but one aim, namely, to bring about the downfall of the Government and put a Communist or Spartacus dictatorship in its place. But I am convinced that they will fail this time, because the workmen have grown impatient, even rebellious, against their leaders. They are tired of enforced leisure, and their families are starving because there is no strike pay nor do they get the daily allowance granted to the unemployed by the Government."

"Then you expect a regular rising of the masses of workmen against their leaders?"

Director Neuhaus would not answer directly. Instead, he replied:

"We expect the men back to work within a few days. We have a credible number of orders and could work day and night with much increased staffs.

SPAIN'S LABOR WAR BEGUN IN EARNEST

All Factories Closed in Barcelona When Employers Enforce Lockout Threat.

HOPE OF QUICK SETTLEMENT

Otherwise a Decisive Struggle Is Feared with Syndicalists Throughout the Country.

BARCELONA, Nov. 3.—The threatened lockout by the employers went into effect here today. It was fairly general in scope. Practically all the factories are closed, the few remaining in operation being insignificant in number compared with the idle establishments. A few troops are patrolling the streets, which are crowded, but mostly with curious spectators, no disorders having been reported. The stores closed two hours this afternoon in sympathy with the employers.

The lockout has not extended beyond Barcelona.

MADRID, Nov. 3, (Associated Press.)—The lockout which commenced in Barcelona today was the starting of a fight to the finish between the employers and the workmen of Spain, according to statements made today by leaders on both sides of the controversy.

Each side is well organized and determined, but the workmen are considered to be better organized than the employers, who have in their organization numbers of members who are lukewarm in support of the lockout. The workmen, or syndicalists, as they are called here, who include professional men as well as laborers, are closely united, knowing that their organization has done much to improve their condition and expecting it to do still more.

The movement, which had a small beginning, but which now has 200,000 members in Barcelona alone, including employes of the great textile and other factories, is led by Señor Segin, a house painter, 26 years old, and Festana, a former priest, but now an editor, who is a member of the "Intellectual" Party.

The syndicalists claim to work purely for better social conditions among their members, who are free to belong to whatever political party they please.

The employers, on their side, assert that the syndicalists are carrying on a reign of terror; that the operatives in all branches of trade and industry have been forced to join the syndicalists under threats of violence; and that the Government has not afforded them protection to carry on their business. The men's demands have been steadily growing, they say, the employers, therefore, decided upon a lockout as the only means of forcing the Government to do something to check the syndicalists.

The Spanish Minister of the Interior, Señor Burgos, confirms reports that tranquillity prevails in Barcelona despite the lockout. He says the Government is still working for a settlement. A meeting of the Council of Ministers was held today with this object, and the Government will continue its efforts.

A more optimistic view of the situation is being taken by the authorities here, as the employers and workers in Barcelona have consented to form an arbitration committee. Pressure has been brought to bear by prominent citizens in an endeavor to have the employers change their attitude. Even in Barcelona feeling begins to prevail that a settlement is about to be reached.

Only two newspapers, the radical organs Progresso and Liberal, out of the nine important papers published in Barcelona, appeared this morning. The proprietors of the other papers locked out the employes who are members of the Union Council and who had in considerable numbers refused to work with reporters who were not members of the union.

SEVILLE, Nov. 3.—The strike of bakers and builders, which broke out here on Friday, has failed, owing to the use by the Spanish Government of soldiers to bake sufficient bread for the city and to do all necessary building work.

On the other hand, clerks in the stores have decided to strike for higher wages and shorter hours. The strike will begin tomorrow.

WASHINGTON NOW HOPEFUL

Secretary Wilson Confers with Government Strike Conciliators.

PALMER WARNS UNION MEN

Declares Law Infraction "Cannot Be Tolerated"—Goes to Vote, Believing End Near.

WEST VIRGINIA MINES OPEN

Union Workers Receive Notice That Their Strike Funds Cannot Be Used.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—That an effort is now under way to end the bituminous coal strike speedily through some arrangement that can be accepted by both operators and miners is the general belief in Washington tonight.

For a long time this afternoon Secretary of Labor Wilson was in conference with Henry Davis of Kentucky, James Purcell of Pennsylvania, and William Rodgers of Iowa, all of whom are specialists in industrial disputes involving the mine interests and all field agents of the division of conciliation in the Department of Labor. Hugh Kerwin, chief of the division, also joined in the conference.

While less than half an hour after this conference the Secretary of Labor was in consultation by telephone with Attorney General Palmer.

It is understood that no definite program was reached by Secretary Wilson and his conciliators, but that a number of suggestions were made which will be brought before the Cabinet meeting tomorrow. At the conclusion of the conference Mr. Kerwin and his agents left Secretary Wilson's room to continue their discussion. There were reports that Secretary Wilson would ask representatives of the operators and the miners to come to Washington, but it is not probable that any definite action will be taken along that line before the whole matter is talked over at the Cabinet meeting.

So far as could be learned tonight, the representatives of the miners have not consented to call off the strike pending further negotiations, and this is proving a stumbling block in the way of any efforts which Secretary Wilson may make toward a settlement.

Report Break Among Strikers.

Reports from the mine fields, made public tonight by the Executive Committee of the bituminous coal operators, showed that while the union miners continued to tie up completely the mines in the central competitive district, there were indications of a break in some other sections, especially in the West Virginia fields. In Northern Virginia, for instance, a strong union district, fifteen mines were running, a gain of seven over Saturday.

Reports generally showed that the strikers were making little progress in efforts to influence workers in non-union mines to quit their posts. A report from Evansville, Ind., contained the statement that there was some tendency among union miners there to criticise officials of the Western Federation of Miners for ordering the strike without submitting the question to a referendum of the men.

One of the most favorable indications, according to the operators, was the fact that the non-union mines were preparing to turn out record tonnages, and that there was every reason to believe that this feat would be accomplished. There non-union mines are receiving 100 per cent. car supply in most instances, and the percentage of miners remaining at work in the non-union fields, despite the efforts of union miners to have the strike spread, varies from 80 to 90. Even better conditions are expected soon.

Conditions in the Fields.

The following summary shows that the union mines in Illinois, Ohio, Indiana, and Pennsylvania are closed, but that there are some breaks elsewhere:

Chicago.—No change in Illinois; all mines closed; no trouble.

Cleveland.—Reports from twenty-four out of thirty-nine operators representing fifty-three out of seventy-six mines indicate the situation to be the same as on Saturday, (all mines closed.) This field is in Eastern Ohio and produces 20,000 tons a day.

Evansville, Ind.—No mines running in this district. Everything quiet. Some tendency among miners to criticise officials for not submitting question of strike to referendum.

Pittsburgh.—All union mines closed. Non-union mines east and southeast of Pittsburgh, including Irwin, Greensburg, Westmoreland, Connellsville, Ligonier, running. Employ 20,000 men.

Altoona.—Situation the same as on Saturday, except that men who were idle in non-union fields for the holiday are at work. Conditions in non-union mines normal. Union fields still on strike. (These mines employ 65,000 men, of whom 40,000 are in unions.)

Somerset County, Penn.—With the exception of a few idle mines, nearly all small, conditions are normal, and very satisfactory. Of 13,000 workers, 700

HONOLULU, Nov. 3, (Associated Press.)—The Japanese Privy Council on Thursday favored the impeachment of the Ministry of Premier Hara and the Versailles peace delegation for the unsatisfactory peace terms, according to a cable dispatch received from Tokio by the Hawaii Hochi, a Japanese daily newspaper here.

TOKIO, Oct. 28, (Associated Press.)—Japan made a mistake in raising the racial issue at the Peace Conference in Paris, it was declared at yesterday's meeting of the Privy Council by Viscount Kiyoura, head of the special committee of the Council which examined the German Peace Treaty. He was criticising the Government for the failures he declared had been scored by Japan at the conference.

Speaking on behalf of his fellow-committeemen, says the report, Viscount Kiyoura laid special blame upon the Government for having raised the racial question, declaring such action was untimely and inadvisable. He added that the Government apparently had negotiated on this question beforehand with the American delegation, but had omitted to consult the representatives of Great Britain, Japan's ally. The withdrawal of the racial clause had produced an awkward situation, the Viscount added, even apparently having resulted in the distinction between Japanese and negroes being ignored.

In this connection the correspondent is able to state that a declaration that the racial proposition was an untimely one constituted a feature of the special committee's report.

Takashi Hara, leader of the Seiyukai, or Reform Party, became Premier on Oct. 1, 1918. He was the first commoner to fill that office. His program included popular government, friendly relations with the United States, and an open-door, noninterference policy in China.

Those holding the principal portfolios under him, with the exception of President Key, who had none, were Viscount Uchida, Foreign; Misuno, Interior; Lieut. Gen. Tanaka, War; Vice Admiral Viscount Kato, Navy; Okada, Education; Matsumuro, Justice; Baron Den, Communications; Nakashji, Agriculture and Commerce, and K. Shoda, Finance.

The Japanese peace delegation went to Paris, led by Marquis Kiumochi Saionji, and included Viscount Chinda, Baron Makino, and Messrs. Matsui and Ijuin.

union men are out; 12,300 non-union men are working.

Huntington, W. Va.—Pocahontas, Tug River, Williamson, Logan, Winding Gulf, and South End coke and coal fields full normal tonnage today, (all non-union.) No change in Kanawha and New River fields over Saturday with three Kanawha and three New River mines running. Expect decided increase in sentiment for return to work. Wheeling, (union district,) seven mines running, a gain of one. Northern West Virginia, a strong union district, employing 40,000 men: Fifteen mines running, all working union labor, a gain of seven over Saturday. Seventy-five per cent. of mines running in Northeast Kentucky district. These mines produce over one-half of the State's normal tonnage. (About 40 per cent. of the mines in this district are union; 60 per cent. non-union.)

Bluefield, W. Va.—(Non-union.)—One hundred per cent. car supply in Pocahontas section.

Louisville, Ky.—Reports indicate forty-nine mines are operating with full crews. Old non-union section, unionized recently, with special contract with organization guaranteeing against strikes; balance of mines closed, representing 50 per cent. of production, because of strike.

Frostburg, Md., (Union.)—George's Creek field: No change in situation since Saturday. (Fifty-two mnies shut down; one running.)

McAlister, Okla., (Union.)—All the mines idle. Troops occupy all strategic points. Quiet prevails.

Salt Lake City, (Non-Union.) — All Utah mines working today with forces 98 per cent. normal. Situation quiet. No disorders. (Saturday's report showed two mines closed.)

Palmer Warns Miners' Union.

Attorney General Palmer, who left for Stroudsburg, Penn., tonight, to be gone until Friday morning, had no comment to make on the reports concerning a possible early termination of the strike. The only official announcement emanating from Mr. Palmer's office today was a telegram which he sent to a miners' local union in Ohio, in which he informed the members of that union, who in a telegram to him had protested against Governmental interference with the strike, that the Government stood ready to make an inquiry into the merits of the controversy, but that in the meantime "the law must be enforced," and that "combinations" to interfere with the production of coal would not be tolerated.

The Attorney General's telegram to the Ohio miners was in reply to the following, addressed to President Wilson by local Union 378 of the United Mine Workers of America:

Glencoe, Ohio, Oct. 31.

Hon. Woodrow Wilson, President, Washington, D. C.:

We, the members of local Union 378, U. M. W. of A., feel justified in protesting your action taken against us in our just demand for a living wage, and that we are solidly behind our international officials in their action taken.

MEMBERS OF LOCAL UNION 378, U. M. W. OF A.

Attorney General Palmer's reply read:

To Local Union 378, United Mine Workers of America, Glencoe, Ohio:

Your telegram to the President protesting against the action of the Government on the ground that it is taken against your just demands for a living wage is based on a misconception of the facts. The Government has not taken sides either for or against the mine owners or the mine workers or their demands in the wage controversy.

The law provides that no two persons, prior to the proclamation of peace, shall agree or arrange with each other to restrict the output or supply of coal. The Government is insisting that this law should be obeyed by both the mine owners and the mine workers.

The wage controversy can be settled without concert of action to stop the output of the mines, and the Government stands ready now, as it has steadily in the past, to do everything in its power to facilitate an inquiry into the merits of the controversy, but in the meantime the law must be enforced and combinations to stop production cannot be tolerated.

A. MITCHELL PALMER.

To Name Commission if Strike Ends.

At the office of Mr. Palmer it was reiterated that President Wilson was still ready to appoint a commission to go into the whole subject of the controversy between the operators and their employes, but that such a commission would not be appointed unless the strike were called off and the men returned to work. The attitude of the union leaders, according to their representatives in Washington, is that while they are not willing to call off the strike, they are willing to open negotiations with the operators and that as soon as a satisfactory agreement is reached the strike will be declared off and the men will return to the mines.

Attorney General Palmer's attention was called to reports that Samuel Gompers was working to bring the strike to an end through arbitration. Mr Palmer made no comment on the reports.

The proposal made by the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers in the statement given out last night for the appointment of a Federal commission to deal not only with the coal strike but the industrial situation generally will be brought to the attention of the Cabinet tomorrow. The question will be brought up, it is understood, by Secretary of the Interior Lane. The suggestion might prove acceptable, it was stated, in the event that the miners met the President's demands by recalling the strike order and immediately returning to work.

The miners' organization is said to be experiencing much trouble in carrying out the strike program as a result of the tying up of the big strike fund which fund, under the provisions of the temporary restraining order granted by Judge Anderson cannot be used to finance the strike.

Attorney General Palmer received today the following telegram from the New England Wholesale Coal Association:

Boston, Nov. 3.

Hon. A. Mitchell Palmer,
Attorney General, Washington, D. C.

The New England Wholesale Coal Association steadfastly approves the acts done by the Government in the present coal crisis and pledges co-operation with governmental authorities to the end that the general public welfare may be protected. This association deprecates the opinions advanced by others which seem in contradiction to the best interests of our laws and people.

BORDEN COVEL,
President New England Wholesale Coal Association.

Operators Reply to Gompers.

The Executive Committee of the operators today replied to the statement made by Samuel Gompers on Friday that operators were conspiring to curtail the coal supply for profit, by quoting utterances which have been made by John L. Lewis, Acting President of the Mine Workers, who before the injunctions were obtained by the Government was actively directing the union miners. Here is the statement made by the operators:

"In a recent statement President Gompers, Vice President Woll, and Secretary Morrison of the American Federation of Labor, charged that the bituminous coal operators of the United States had been conspiring to curtail production and maintain coal prices to the consumers. In connection with this statement the following excerpts from the official transcript of the proceedings of the joint conference of coal operators and coal miners of the Central competitive field, held at Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 30, 1919, are of public interest:

"'I notice that since coming to this conference the coal miners are reported to have told the representatives of the press that operators have been purposely cutting down their production for the purpose of maintaining prices.'

"In reply John L. Lewis, Acting President of the United Mine Workers of America, said:

"'I want it written into the records that neither in Buffalo nor anywhere else have I ever charged the operators with shutting down the mines to maintain coal prices. I would not say such a thing, because I do not believe it is true. Neither do I believe any member of the mine workers' delegation would make such a statement, and I am quite sure that no responsible agent of the mine workers in Washington or elsewhere ever made such a statement. On the other hand, I have denied it for the operators. I denied it to the Director General of Railroads, Mr. Hines; I denied it to other people who have discussed the [illegible] charges by inference and implication were made to that effect before the Senate Committee and in other places in Washington. * * *

"'If any such statement appeared in a Buffalo paper it was unauthorized, unfounded, and untrue; it was not given by me, and I am quite sure was not given by any of my associates. We would not do it, because I say, again, we do not believe the operators have done anything of that character.'"

Record Production in Recent Week.

The Geological Survey of the Department of the Interior in a report made public today states that the biggest tonnage of coal loaded in the history of the country was reported during the week ended Oct. 25. Preliminary returns indicate that the 123 principal carriers originated 238,759 cars of soft coal, compared with 213,729 cars during the preceding week. This extraordinary increase in the tonnage loaded—11.7 per cent.—was in part offset by the decrease in the tonnage coked at the mines, which decrease is attributed to the steel strike.

In spite of this handicap the total estimated production of bituminous coal, including lignite and coal made into coke, rose to 13,118,000 net tons. Final figures are expected to show the total output approached, if it did not surpass, that of the week of July 13, 1918, which has hitherto been the greatest on record.

Palmer Hopeful of Early End.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3, (Associated Press.)—Attorney General Palmer, who left tonight for a visit to his home, in Stroudsburg, Penn., will make a speech in Harrisburg Thursday before the State Fair Price Committees. He will return to Washington Friday morning.

Because of the pressure of business due to the coal strike, Mr. Palmer has cancelled contemplated speeches in Charleston, W. Va., and Columbus, Ohio, and has indefinitely postponed an address which he was to have made in Lincoln, Nebraska. It is considered probable that the Attorney General will devote some attention to the coal strike in his Harrisburg address.

Mr. Palmer went to Pennsylvania feeling, it was said, that the strike crisis might be over before Saturday, the day on which the temporary injunction restraining officers of the miners' organization from activity was made returnable. Asked what the Government would do that day, an official said:

"We will not cross that bridge until we get to it."

Confidential reports to the Department of Justice from its agents in the coal fields were said to show many defections from the ranks of the strikers. Some of the reports said that large numbers of idle miners had declared that they wanted to return to work but were afraid.

The sweeping powers of the Federal Court injunction in cutting off all strike benefits is being relied upon by the Government to bring the strike to a speedy end. Local representatives of the United Mine Workers of America were notified today that checks to cover expenses for the last half of October could not be sent at this time because of the court's order.

Idleness of the miners with no funds available for their support makes it doubtful if they can hold out for any extended period, according to the view of men familiar with strike conditions. It is largely because of this fact that labor leaders themselves look for early peace in the industry.

The Shipping Board announced today that its ships which have loaded coal for export would be permitted to sail, but that no additional coal for export could be loaded. Coal on order for such shipment will be held for the Railroad Administration.

DEALERS REPLY TO PALMER.

Contend Country Has a 60-Day Supply of Coal on Hand at Present.

W. A. Marshall, President of the Wholesale Coal Trade Association of New York, made public last night a letter he had written in reply to Attorney General Palmer's response to an earlier letter urging that the miners be protected, and that the law of supply and demand be allowed to determine the price to the consumer. Mr. Palmer promised to prosecute any attempt at profiteering in coal. Mr. Marshall's reply says:

"Today's newspapers publish your letter of the 2d inst., addressed to me, which has not yet been received.

"My letter of Oct. 31 was written after a careful review of the situation by our Board of Directors, and was sent before the Government prices were restored, and in the public interest.

"It is unfortunate you have misconstrued the purpose and intended effect of the suggestions made.

"Our opinion, based upon a survey of the stocks on hand with consumers in the Eastern district recently made for submission to the Frelinghuysen Senate Committee, is that at the present time there is on hand an average supply of sixty days. While it is true that a few have limited storage facilities and therefore little coal, the majority of consumers have from two to four months' supplies.

"It is our opinion that the stocks of bituminous coal now in the hands of the railroads, the abnormally large stocks of steam sizes of anthracite, accumulated by reason of lack of market, and the production of a normal quantity of non-union coal, which, if the strike is prolonged, and with a full car supply, which is assured, will be greatly increased by the influx of labor from union districts, will meet the needs of that small percentage of consumers whose present supply is limited.

"All of these conditions considered, it is our confident belief that the prices would not have been made unreasonably high, and, if they should have become so, you are empowered, under the recent amendment to the Lever law, to prosecute the offenders, as pointed out in my first letter."

SUGGESTS COMPROMISE PLAN.

Federal Conciliation Commissioner Would Give Miners 15% Increase.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 3.—That the United States Government withdraw its injunction against the coal strike leaders at once and that the miners return to work under a guarantee of a wage increase of 15 or 20 per cent., effective Nov. 1; or upon their return to work are proposed in a plan of compromise by A. L. Faulkner, Federal Commissioner of conciliation here, today in an effort to avert a continued crisis in the coal strike.

Mr. Faulkner further proposed that:

Operators be permitted to add the increased wage cost to the wartime fixed price of coal.

A board of arbitration, one member representing the miners, one the operators, and a third to be a neutral member selected by the first two, or appointed by the President, be named to determine just wages, hours, and yearly contracts.

The report of the arbitration board be made public and effective prior to April 1, 1920, at the expiration of the period during which the miners receive the 15 to 20 per cent. increase over their present wage.

It is understood Mr. Faulkner has wired his proposal to Secretary of Labor Wilson.

NONUNION OUTPUT INCREASES.

400 Coal Mines Are Reported in Operation in West Virginia.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Nov. 3.—The third day of the miners strike passed quietly in the coal fields of West Virginia. While the 400 non-union mines were reported by the operators to be increasing their production, no attempt was being made to open the union mines closed by the strike.

Reports to military headquarters here showed that the strikers were conducting themselves in a lawful manner, and that no attempt was being made to hold meetings. Additional Federal troops have moved into the State and been placed at strategic points.

C. F. Keeney, President of District No. 17, United Mine Workers, late today made public a letter which he had sent to Governor Cornwell. In this letter he said that the miners ha "belief and suspicions" that the Governor was "not dealing openly and above board with them as the representative of the people should deal."

In reply to President Keeney's communication, Governor Cornwell tonight dispatched to the President of the miners' union a letter in which he assumed all responsibility for the presence of Federal troops in the West Virginia coal fields. The Governor said he requested military aid after being advised that union miners had planned another "armed march into Logan County."

"For weeks," the Governor said, "I was advised from day to day of the purchase of ammunition, pistols, and guns by members of your organization, as well as of meetings held by some of them and of the plans laid for another armed march to Logan County. Threats and plans were revealed to me by letter and personally by members of your organization as to the contemplated assemblage of men here on Nov. 1.

"I received other definite information of the intention of certain radical persons to arm and meet Friday evening so as to take up the march to Logan County, which led me to conclude about noon on Thursday to bring Federal troops into the State to preserve law and order and to furnish protection, if necessary, to men who want to work, whether they be union or nonunion miners."

MARYLAND IS SHORT OF COAL.

Railroads Cut Train Service and Cumberland Plants May Shut Down.

Special to The New York Times.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Nov. 3.—Already manufacturing plants, including the Potomac Glass Company, employing 300 men; the heating plant of the Edison Electric and Illuminating Company, the Tri-State Sanitary Milk Company, and the Crystal Laundry, have made appeals to Mayor Koon, late Fuel Administrator, to get them coal or they will have to shut down at once. It is said no distribution of seized coal was made before Wednesday, and that in the meantime there are certain to be shutdowns.

Among the coal taken over by the railroads are consignments to local retailers whose customers are already suffering, and this at the very mouths of some of the richest coal mines in the country.

There are 1,500 carloads of coal sidetracked at this point, and 6,000 more between here and Connellsville. No coal has been moved since Saturday morning. The Western Maryland Railway has laid off indefinitely 350 telegraph operators. One day shift of eight hours is worked, and the remaining sixteen hours the road is now running but one or two trains, while the Baltimore & Ohio operation over the local division has dropped from more than 100 freight trains a day to less than twenty. The Western Maryland has drawn the fires from forty locomotives.

It was announced here tonight that several coal operators along the Western Maryland Railway in the Upper Potomac field in West Virginia were preparing to sue the national executives of the United Mine Workers of Indianapolis and the local committee. Damages will be asked for violation of contract by causing the strike.

MORE ALABAMA MINES OPEN.

Companies Claim Gain, Although Union Denies Men Are Returning.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Nov. 3.—Despite claims of union officials that the ranks of the striking coal miners are being augmented daily, it is apparent that more men are at work and more mines in operation in the Birmingham district today than was the case Saturday.

The Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railway Company, it was said at their general offices, are operating all their mines except those in Bibb County and in Jefferson County. The Pratt Consolidated Coal Company, one of the largest operating companies in the district, is operating most of its mines, but with reduced forces. The Empire Mines report a normal force at work. Sipsey Mines had turned out 400 tons of coal at 4 o'clock, according to company officials. The mines of the Alabama Fuel and Iron Company had a full force of miners at work with production at normal.

President J. R. Kennamer of District 20, United Mine Workers of America, summarizing reports received up to tonight, declared that the Walker County miners were practically 100 per cent. out. He reiterated his claim of Saturday that more than 23,000 miners are out in the Alabama fields.

NO BREAK IN OHIO RANKS.

Operators, However, Believe a Compromise Offer Will Come Soon.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 3.—Today, which had been thought might be a crucial one in the coal strike, passed without a break in the ranks of the 40,000 miners who laid down their tools Saturday. Not a union mine attempted to operate, and the non-union mines are so few that neither side counts them as having any influence on the strike.

In the eastern part of the State, especially Jefferson and Harrison counties, considerable coal is mined by the stripping process, few of the workmen being members of the United Mine Workers. Most of these operations were said to be running today.

Operators today expressed the belief that through Government agencies another attempt would soon be made to reach a settlement.

COAL STRIKE FELT IN IOWA.

Newton Is in Darkness and Indianola Closes Schools.

DES MOINES, Iowa, Nov. 3.—Business in some of the smaller Iowa cities was feeling the effects of the coal strike today, according to reports received here. Newton was in darkness last night, and at Indianola, schools, theatres, and lodges were closed. Business houses, except drug stores and bakeries, are open from 8 A. M. to 5 P. M., and electric power is shut off at 10:30 P. M.

Des Moines must make the coal on hand last until the strike ends, Governor Harding reported, on his return from Chicago, where he talked with railroad officials about the confiscation of coal.

On Saturday night dealers here had less than 10 000 tons.

ASKS PUBLIC TO CO-OPERATE.

Federal Attorney Here Wants Word of Violations of Fuel Control Law.

United States District Attorney Francis G. Caffey, in a statement issued yesterday, requests all citizens to aid the Government during the present emergency by reporting immediately all violations of the law in regard to hoarding of coal or the exaction of excessive prices. The statement says:

"The amendment to the Food and Fuel Control act passed by Congress on Oct. 22, 1919, makes it unlawful for any person wilfully to destroy any necessaries for the purpose of enhancing the price or restricting the supply, or to permit waste, or to permit preventable deterioration in the production, manufacture or distribution, or to hoard or monopolize any necessaries, or to engage in any discriminatory, deceptive or wasteful price, or to make any unjust or unreasonable rate or charge in handling or dealing in any necessaries.

"It is further made illegal for two or more persons to conspire to limit the facilities for transporting, producing, harvesting, manufacturing, supplying, storing or dealing in any necessaries; to restrict the supply or distribution thereof, to prevent or lessen the manufacture or production in order to enhance the price thereof, or to exact excessive prices for any necessaries, or to aid or abet the doing of any such unlawful acts. The word necessaries includes food and fuel.

"On Oct. 31 the President issued a proclamation to restore the rules, regulations and orders as regards bituminous coal under which the Fuel Administration operated prior to Jan. 31, 1919. The regulations fixing the price of bituminous coal and the lawful commissions and margins of dealers have again come into operation. The prices that can now be lawfully charged are the same as those in effect under the regulations of the Fuel Administration on Jan. 31, 1919.

"The penalty for any violation of the act, including the exaction of excessive prices, is a fine of not more than $5,000 or imprisonment for not more than two years, or both.

"During the present crisis the Government expects to use every means within its power to prevent profiteering in coal. Every corporation and every person who does not obey the law will be promptly and vigorously prosecuted."

Assistant United States District Attorney Taylor has been assigned to prosecute all such violations.

Two operators, it is said, called upon President Stewart and informed him that a group of operators in Indiana differed with the policy of Phil Penna, Secretary and Treasurer of the Indiana Bituminous Coal Operators' Association.

The operators, it is said, told Stewart they were willing to go to Washington at once and present to President Wilson, if possible, a statement of willingness to negotiate and to accept the miners' demands.

Secretary Penna denied that members of the operators' association had offered to accept the miners' terms.

Secretary Penna Denies Report.

"There's nothing to it," he said. "There may have been some little snowbird two by four operator who mines eight tons a week, but not a single large Indiana operator made any such proposition."

It is known that some Indiana operators are not in sympathy with Secretary Penna. He was the spokesman for the Indiana operators at the recent conference between the miners' scale committee and the operators.

There is a general feeling in District No. 11 among the operators as well as the miners that it is only a question of short time before the miners and the operators will begin negotiations. One high official of the union said today that he did not believe the strike would last fourteen days. Some operators have been heard to say that negotiations will be under way before the week is over.

Conservative men on both sides are of the opinion that the Government will be able, before the end of this week, to bring the miners and operators into conference to negotiate terms of settlement.

Counsel for Union Prepares Fight.

A conference was held today in the office of Henry Warrum, general counsel of the mine workers, on the defense which will be made Saturday when there will be a hearing to determine whether the temporary restraining order shall become a temporary injunction and when the Federal Government may ask for an order, directing the International Executive Board to recall the strike order.

At the conference, in addition to Mr. Warrum, were Harold Henderson of Terre Haute, Fred C. Heubner of Albia, Iowa, and A. W. Kerr and W. J. McDonald of Springfield, Ill., attorneys for mine workers district organizations.

The attorneys for the defense are confident, it is said, that the strike will not be settled by the litigation begun by the United States Government, and that a settlement will be effected in another way before the litigation comes to a conclusion.

Reports persist that ex-Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo will be called in to aid counsel for the union.

Before the restraining order was issued the union was planning to place page advertisements in 100 of the larger newspapers of the United States setting forth the contentions of the miners for a new wage agreement, the purpose being to win favorable public sentiment. The organization leaders say they are uncertain now whether this can be done without conflicting with the restraining order.

The leaders of the organization before the restraining order was issued talked as if they realized that public sentiment was against the strike, which they attributed to a lack of understanding by the public of the actual earnings of the miners and the conditions under which they work, and to alleged propaganda by the operators. They said the demands of the Cleveland convention had been treated as an ultimatum, whereas they were open to negotiation.

The 28,000 Indiana miners continued the strike today. The whistles at the collieries blew as usual, but there was no response. Some of the strikers are taking advantage of their "vacation" to go hunting.

McAdoo Denies Reports.

WICHITA FALLS, Texas, Nov. 3.—William G. McAdoo, who is the guest of friends here, said today he knew nothing of the miners' intention to employ him as counsel.

He would not say whether he would accept such employment, as no overtures for his services had been made.

FEDERAL TROOPS SENT INTO PENNSYLVANIA

Authorities Fear Attempt by Strikers to Close Nonunion Collieries in Brownsville.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3.—About 200 regulars of the United States Army came through Pittsburgh this afternoon on their way from Buffalo to Brownsville, where there are a number of nonunion coal mines, and it is feared an effort may be made by the strikers in the adjoining territory to get the men to leave the mines.

In the nonunion fields of Western Pennsylvania the miners are working and are turning out thousands of tons of coal, it is said. Reports are heard on all sides that a very large percentage of union men want to go back to work and will work if they are given protection, asserting they are entirely satisfied with conditions.

Non-union mines were reported to be working 100 per cent. and the non-union element is said to be not only working faithfully, but expresses a desire to get in full time, so they can make large wages, the experienced men being able to earn anywhere from $6 to $14 a day.

The union miners of Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, West Virginia, and Maryland, with their leaders silenced by the restraining order granted by the Federal Court in Indianapolis, continued idle as the strike entered its third day. Reports from the various centres of the four States indicated that the situation was generally better than on Saturday, insofar as the nonunion properties are concerned.

In Westmoreland and Fayette Counties there are approximately 30,000 nonunion miners working. The annual production is about 00,000,000 tons. In the Cambria County district there were 15,000 men idle, while nonunion mines in five towns, St. Michael, Twin Rocks, Colver, Redloc, and Vintondale, were reported as working at full capacity.

In the Somerset County district, which is almost all nonunion, 75 to 85 per cent. of the miners are working. Approximately 12,000 miners are employed.

The Upper Monongahela and Kiskiminetas Valleys, strongly unionized, were idle, with only a few nonunion wagon truck mines throughout this district, heavy rain of the last few days.

District No. 6, which includes the Pittsburgh District, was reported as "down tight." Hundreds of wagon and truck mines throughtout this district, however, were said to be reaping a harvest, though many roads leading to these mines are in bad shape, due to the heavy rain of the past few days.

PITTSBURGH, Nov. 3, (Associated Press.)—No less than 15,000 cars of coal were on side tracks in the Pittsburgh district tonight, confiscated by the Government for use, should the coal strike continue, for the operation of railroads and essential industries.

Wyoming Under Military Control.

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Nov. 3.—At the direction of Brig. Gen. D. A. Poore, commandant at Fort D. A. Russell, proclamations were posted today in all Northern Wyoming coal camps establishing "military control" throughout Wyoming. The proclamation stated that the various instrumentalities of civil law and authority will continue in operation "in so far as they may be able to exercise functions."

Claim 20,000 Are Out in 2 States.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 3.—More than 20,000 miners now are on strike in the Tennessee-Kentucky coal fields, according to union leaders, who estimated today that 2,000 nonunion miners had joined the strike. Only one large mine in the district, that of the Black Mountain Coal Company at Harlan, Ky., was reported in operation.

MINERS' RANKS FIRM IN MOST STATES

ALL CLOSED IN ILLINOIS

Even One That Supplies Army Cantonment Is Unable to Continue Operation.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Today, the first real test day in the strike of bituminous coal miners passed without a break of large consequence in the cessation of production, despite the inactivity of leaders of the United Mine Workers of America, because of the Government's restraining order.

During the day there was a further movement of troops into affected areas, although only one minor disturbance was reported.

With about 425,000 miners idle, according to union leaders' claims, consumers were beginning to feel the effects of the strike in production. Thousands of cars of coal were being confiscated by the Federal Railroad Administration. A few schools were closed in remote places, and water and electric companies were affected in some communities.

At Billings, Mont., it was announced that the schools would not open tomorrow because of the coal famine. More than 4,000 pupils and 130 teachers will be affected. Some towns in Nebraska also face the closing of schools unless coal shipments held in Colorado are received.

While operators generally were making no attempts to mine coal, reports from the various fields in twenty-eight States said that whistles were blown today in many mines with a hope that workers might be induced to return.

Operators of the O'Gara mine in Illinois, which furnishes coal to Camp Grant cantonment, were unable to resume work today despite an order from the Quartermaster General's office that Government contracts be filled.

D. J. Rowe was today appointed Chairman of the Regional Coal Committee controlling the distribution of all bituminous coal in transit on lines north of the Ohio River and east of the Mississippi. The appointment was made by Hale Holden, director of the central western region of the Railroad Administration.

Frank Farrington, President of the Illinois district of the United Mine Workers, had reports today which showed the mines of the State closed down without exception.

"Not a miner in the State is working this morning," President Farrington said. "This of course excepts those who have been detailed by the union to take care of pumps, mules, and other property.

"I have not as yet been served with the writ of injunction, and there will be no material difference in the situation when I am. I think the Government's action is short-sighted and ill-advised. If the Government has no plans for settlement of the strike except the issuance of restraining orders and kindred forces, the strike is predestined to run through many bitter days, as the miners are free men and will not be driven to work like galley slaves."

Railroad men at Carbondale, Ill., are feeling the effects of the coal strike. Coal trains on the division of the Illinois Central, embracing the largest coal fields in Southern Illinois, where it is estimated 50,000 miners are out, have stopped. The division has been handling about 75,000 tons of coal daily. Hundreds of cars loaded with coal in transit have been confiscated by the Railroad Administration in Carbondale, East St. Louis, and Centralia.

INVESTIGATE PACKAGE MAILED TO PALMER

It Contained a Bottle of Liquid Which Will Be Analyzed—Bore a German Inscription.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—A peculiar looking package, inscribed in German script, was delivered through the mails at Attorney General Palmer's office today. It aroused suspicion and was turned over the the Bureau of Investigation.

The bureau discovered that the package contained a bottle of liquid labeled "Boracic Acid" on one side and bearing a German inscription on the other. Handled gingerly, the bottle was put in a safe place until the colorless contents could be analyzed.

The package was sent by parcel post from New York. Officials are inclined to think that it was intended as a joke.

STRIKE WILL NOT CUT NEW ENGLAND TRAINS

Both Passenger and Freight Schedules Will Stand, with Priority Rule for Coal.

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—No passenger schedules on New England railroads will be curtailed in the immediate future unless developments make it necessary, when public notice will be given. This decision was reached at a meeting of Federal managers and operating executives of the railroads today, for the purpose of considering the emergency arising out of the coal strike. No curtailment in freight schedules was announced, but a priority system of deliveries to commercial consumers of bituminous coal was decided upon.

Commercial consumers desiring to meet immediate necessities from bituminous coal now consigned to them, but held by the railroads, must make application direct to the railroad effecting delivery. Such application must show complete and accurate information with respect to the preference of the requirement, the amount of coal applicant has on hand, amount applicant requires for the preferred use, and the rate of consumption. Deliveries, if authorized, will be made in accordance with the priority list.

ACCUSED AS ENEMY AGENCY.

Raided at Labor's Request and Said to Have Been in German Employ.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—That the Sherman Service, Inc., an investigating agency, whose offices were raided on Saturday by the State's Attorney, was employed during the war by the German Consul in Boston, was the announcement made today by George T. Kenney, secretary to State's Attorney Maclay Hoyne. Washington officials have been communicated with to learn more of this connection.

The agency headquarters was raided at the request of E. J. Nockels, Secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor, on the charge that the agency had attempted to incite strikers to racial hatred.

BOSTON, Nov. 3.—In the absence of John F. Sherman, head of the Sherman Service, Inc., Fred J. Beck, the local manager, tonight denied the statement made by the State's Attorney's office in Chicago that the Sherman Service was employed by the German Consul here during the war.

"It is without any foundation whatsoever," he said.

DEMOCRATS LEAD IN BETTING ODDS

Foley the Favorite, with Odds of 10 to 1 He Will Be Elected Surrogate.

BOYLE'S STRENGTH GROWS

Wagers Made That Untermyer Will Be Elected Over Newburger —Haskell Picked to Win.

Little betting marked the local campaign which closed last night. It was declared by those who have kept watch on the money wagered that not more than $50,000 was placed, either in Wall Street or elsewhere. There has been more Tammany than Republican money in sight, but the takers have been few. The betting right through the campaign has favored Robert L. Moran, Tammany candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, against F. H. La Guardia, the Republican candidate, by two to one. Yesterday a prominent Tammany politician wagered $10,000 at these odds that Moran would win.

The same politician, it was said, was ready to offer $10,000 at odds of 10 to 1 that James A. Foley, Tammany candidate for Surrogate, would be elected, while another politician also declared he had $10,000 to wager at the same odds. A week ago the odds on Foley were 5 to 1; with no money in sight to place on James O'Malley, the Republican candidate for the office. Up to two days ago Edward Boyle, the Tammany candidate for Borough President of Manhattan, was a 2 to 1 favorite but since then the odds shot up to 5 to 1, with few takers. A few bets at odds of 6 to 5 were made that Irwin Untermyer would be elected. Several combination bets for small amounts were made, the favorite one being $1,000 against $800 that all three of the principal Democratic candidates, Untermyer, Boyle and Foley would win.

While betting in Brooklyn for the most part shaded in favor of Democratic candidates real interest centred yesterday around two Republican candidates. They were Reuben L. Haskell for County Court Judge and Harry E. Lewis, candidate for District Attorney. In these cases the odds favored Republicans. The betting on Haskell was 3 to 1 and Lewis was a favorite at from 8 to 5 to 9 to 5. According to Fred Schumun a bet of $500, even money, was placed that Haskell would beat his nearest competitor by 30,000 votes. Another $500 bet was an even money proposition that Haskell would get a 30,000 majority.

James J. Browne, Democratic candidate for Sheriff, ruled a favorite at 6 to 5, and the same odds held on George A. Wingate for Surrogate. The betting on William E. Kelly, Democrat, for County Clerk was 2 to 1. The betting on Richardson Webster for Register showed even money.

Brooklynites were willing to wager even money yesterday that Newburger would be the successful candidate for Supreme Court Justice, and they held Moran's chances of being a winner at 2½ to 1. For Surrogate in Manhattan James A. Foley was favorite at 5 to 1.

One bet recorded yesterday was $300 to $1,000 that the entire Republican ticket would be elected.

Wall Street betting closed with practically all of the Tammany candidates prohibitive favorites. The shortest odds quoted on anybody on that ticket were 9 to 5 on Untermyer to defeat Judge Newburger. Foley was held at 5 to 1 and the followers of Moran were offering 2 to 1 with no takers in sight. The same quotations were offered on Boyle's chances, also with no takers.

This year election betting has been lighter than during any pre-election period in some time. The "off year" has detracted from the usual interest, and so has the great activity of the stock market, while most betting men have been convinced for weeks past that the Democratic ticket would sweep the city, and accordingly have made odds almost prohibitive, except in the case of Mr. Untermyer against Justice Newburger, which contest was at first quoted at even money, with Mr. Untermyer gradually becoming favorite until at the close of last week his prospects were variously quoted at 6 to 5 and 7 to 5. Yesterday he jumped to 9 to 5 when Newburger money disappeared almost entirely.

At the offices of James W. Ball & Co. in Exchange Place, where most of the election wagering has centred, it was estimated yesterday that not more than $50,000 had been placed on the results of today's balloting.

mitted to post the returns in front of their offices because of the rule against attracting crowds in the streets, which was made when the State Guard took over the duty of preserving order. The Boston papers will, however, issue special editions during the evening.

DISAGREE ON MARYLAND.

Heavy Democratic Registration Encourages the Ritchie Supporters.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 3.—The chances of the Democratic and Republican candidates on the State ticket in Maryland are about even, with Albert Ritchie, Democratic candidate for Governor, slightly stronger, in the opinion of the political experts, because of the heavier Democratic registration. Saturday the Democrats had to give odds in the betting, but tonight the betting is even.

A veteran political writer whose predictions in the past have been borne out says that Harry Nice, Republican candidate for Governor, will come to the city with 4,000 to 8,000 plurality. The Democratic managers are figuring upon electing their ticket by the Baltimore city vote.

An attempt to connect the Republican candidate for Governor with the anti-Catholics and the unusual activity by the Catholic Church at the close of the campaign have caused a sensation in political circles. Priests in several churches from the pulpit advised their congregations to vote for Ritchie for Governor, and circulars of similar portent were distributed at the church doors.

It is reported that the Chairmen of the Democratic and the Republican State Committees have been urged by the national leaders of their respective parties to put forth every effort to carry the State for the effect on next year's Presidential campaign. The Republicans have blamed the Wilson administration for every economic evil under which the country is suffering, and it is true that the Democratic managers fear that the unrest, strike troubles, war taxes, and high cost of living will figure in the vote.

While the Legislature to be elected will act on the franchise amendment, the latter has played no part in the campaign.

A stir has also been created by form letters headed with "American Automobile Dealers' Protective Association" and bearing the rubber-stamp signature of Ephraim Fleming, "Secretary," mailed from New York to automobile owners throughout the State, asking that they vote against Ritchie and Democratic candidates.

OHIO LIQUOR FIGHT BITTER.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 3.—Ohio, tomorrow, will be the chief battleground in the United States between the forces favoring and those opposing prohibition.

The battle will be fought over four distinct phases of the prohibition issue. All are a direct result of activities of the wets to undo prohibition not only within the State but within the United States as well. Two constitutional amendments would repeal the present State prohibition amendment and permit the manufacture and sale of 2¾ per cent. liquors. The proposition to legalize the manufacture and sale of the low per cent. liquor is contained in both proposals.

Voters also will approve or disapprove the action of the State Legislature in ratifying the Federal prohibition amendment, this being submitted through referendum. Ohio will be the first State in the Union to cast a popular vote on the Federal amendment. It will be the first time in history that any Federal amendment has been submitted to popular vote in a State.

The fourth prohibition proposal is a referendum on the Grabbe Prohibition Enforcement act passed by the Legislature. The State-wide prohibition amendment was adopted a year ago by a majority of more than 25,000. Dry leaders say the proposals to undo prohibition will be defeated by 100,000 majority. Wet leaders, though predicting success, do not claim specific majorities.

Besides the four prohibition proposals voters also will again decide whether they shall adopt an amendment authorizing the classification of property for taxation.

BOTH SIDES CLAIM KENTUCKY.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 3.—Managers for rival candidates for Governor of Kentucky at tomorrow's election made widely divergent claims of victory here today. Thomas S. Rhea asserted Governor Black, Democrat, would be elected by a majority of 15,500. Chesley H. Search countered with a statement that Edwin Morrow, Republican, would be chosen by 20,250.

The Democratic manager conceded two Congressional districts, the Tenth and Eleventh, to Morrow, whose manager claimed the Third, Fourth, and Fifth, with increased majorities over Rhea's figures in the Tenth and Eleventh.

Two proposed constitutional amendments will be voted on. One provides for Statewide prohibition and the other for removal of any officer who permits a prisoner in his custody to be taken from him by a mob.

BOTH SIDES PREDICT ELECTION VICTORY

approved by Bar Associations and other public bodies.

No official forecast was forthcoming from Tammany Hall, although it was known that the district leaders, in accordance with the practice in other years, had submitted estimates of the vote in their respective bailiwicks, inclosed in sealed envelopes which were placed on the desk of Leader Murphy. The fact that the Tammany chieftain did not vouchsafe a forecast in figures has been accepted in many quarters as an indication that Tammany was apprehensive regarding the result.

Political observers, however, recall that Mr. Murphy has made no advance forecast since 1913, when he predicted the election of Edward E. McCall for Mayor by 250,000, and John Purroy Mitchel, the anti-Tammany candidate, won by 125,000.

Smith Denies Unfavorable Reports.

Thomas F. Smith, Secretary of Tammany Hall, took occasion to deny that a forecast published in some newspapers as having been officially made to the Tammany Executive Committee, and indicating a plurality of only 9,000 in Manhattan and the Bronx for Robert L. Moran, the Tammany candidate for Aldermanic President, was correct.

In Tammany circles it is expected that the largest vote and plurality would be cast for ex-State Senator James A. Foley, Tammany nominee for Surrogate. Borough President Edward F. Boyle of Manhattan, who is a candidate for that office on the Tammany ticket; Robert L. Moran, candidate for Aldermanic President; Robert L. Luce, nominee for one of the vacancies in the Supreme Court, and Irwin Untermyer will follow, in the order named, if the Tammany estimates come true. Suggestions that Mr. Untermyer's vote might not be large enough to pull him through were discouraged at the Wigwam.

Republicans Optimistic.

Chairman Koenig, at Republican Headquarters, said last night he had no reason to change his prediction of victory for Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia, Republican nominee for Aldermanic President, and the rest of the ticket. In Republican circles the hope is entertained that the ticket may win by pluralities of from 20,000 to 30,000.

At the headquarters of the Irwin Untermyer Campaign Committee, George Gordon Battle, Chairman, last night expressed the opinion that Mr. Untermyer would win by at least 75,000. He said:

"From the latest advices and information received it seems certain that Judge Robert L. Luce and Mr. Untermyer will run at least 50,000 votes in New York County and 25,000 in the Bronx ahead of the highest Republican candidate. There has been a strong trend in favor of the Democratic candidates in the last few days.

George H. Bell, manager of the campaign of Major Philip J. McCook, Republican nominee for the Supreme Court, said he felt certain his candidate would be elected. "There is a determination throughout New York and Bronx counties," he said, "that the Supreme Court Judges shall go into office without their hands tied by the bosses."

At headquarters of the Non-Partisan Judiciary Committee County Clerk William F. Schneider said:

"Irwin Untermyer will be beaten and Justice Newburger re-elected; of that I am certain."

Irwin Thomas, Executive Secretary of the Non-Partisan Committee, said Justice Newburger and Judge Smith would be re-elected by from 20,000 to 30,000 votes.

In Brooklyn, the Republicans expressed confidence that they would elect their county ticket by from 10,000 to 15,000 votes. John H. McCooey, the Democratic leader in Brooklyn, said he had no reason to change his prediction of Saturday that Brooklyn would go Democratic.

TIMES TO FLASH RESULTS.

Election Bulletins Will Be Shown on Screen in Times Square.

Hundreds of thousands of persons will learn the results of the election tonight from thousands of bulletin boards and tickers, and from announcers in hotels, theatres, and everywhere that people may congregate.

THE NEW YORK TIMES has made special arrangements to show every detail of the voting, and the final results will be prominently displayed on a huge screen in front of the Times Building. The screen will be visible from all parts of Times Square.

After the closing of the polls at 6 o'clock tonight the counting of the votes will start immediately throughout the State, and almost as soon as the first count is announced the result will be flashed on the screen in view of the thousands of persons who may gather there. The announcements will continue until the final results are received.

Expect to Elect Moore as Mayor.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—Philadelphia's municipal campaign, one of the quietest in years, closed tonight with the several party leaders making every effort to keep voters interested so as to bring out a full vote. The real fighting was done at the primary, since which time the campaign has lagged. The Republicans expect to elect J. Hampton Moore, present Representative in Congress, from the Third Pennsylvania District, Mayor by a large plurality. Henry D. Westcott, the Democratic candidate, tonight said he expected to receive the largest Democratic vote cast for that office in fifteen years.

PLAN CURBING SPECULATORS

Several plans for the curbing of speculation in theatre tickets, which has recently again attained wide proportions in New York despite the ordinance limiting brokers' fees to 50 cents a ticket, were discussed last night at a meeting of the Producing Managers' Association held in the Hotel Astor. Testimony was introduced showing that a number of the irresponsible brokers have been obtaining as high as $8 and $10 a seat for the more popular plays on Saturday nights.

A committee of managers, headed by William A. Brady, has been considering plans to cope with this situation for a number of weeks, and last night reported to the main body. The plan which seemed to find most favor with the managers called for the distribution of tickets to the brokers throughout a central office, which would keep strict account of the tickets given to the various brokers and thus be able to trace back any seats on which overcharge was made. The offending broker would then have his supply of tickets cut off.

HOW TO VOTE FOR JUDGES

Don't Lose a Vote

Previous elections have shown that many voters have voted for only one candidate, where there were several candidates on the ballot for Justice of the Supreme Court or Justice of the City Court. This omission has defeated candidates in the past.

Voters are requested to be sure to vote for UNTERMYER as well as for LUCE, and for CALLAHAN and REILLEY as well as for WENDEL.

Remember, that a vote for only one Democratic candidate for Judge and not for the other, means an extra vote for their Republican opponents, and the possible defeat of Democratic candidates.

THE ONLY SURE WAY IS TO PUT YOUR X IN THE SQUARE TO THE RIGHT OF EVERY STAR ON THE BALLOT.

BAKER WON'T GIVE WAR QUESTIONNAIRE

SEES DANGER IN FUTURE

Declares That All Answers Were Given in Confidence That Must Not Be Violated.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Two representatives of Irwin Untermyer, candidate on the Tammany ticket for Justice of the Supreme Court in New York, called today on Major Gen. Peter C. Harris, Adjutant General of the Army, and requested that they be permitted to inspect, with a view to making it public, the draft questionnaire of Mr. Untermyer. The Adjutant General declined on the ground that all questionnaires were confidential. This action was in accordance with the view of the Secretary of War which he expressed to newspaper men and afterward embodied in an authorized statement.

When Secretary Baker was questioned concerning the Untermyer case, he answered oral inquiries informally, but afterward had his answers embodied in the form of a statement which was given to the press by his authority. The text of the statement follows:

"This survey of the man-power of the nation (as represented by the collection of questionnaires now the property of the War Department) was made for a purely military purpose. Men were asked to come in and disclose their intimate family relationships and to make a complete disclosure of their talents and of their tastes in order that the Government might assort them most usefully from a military point of view.

"The questionnaire was confidential in character, and the War Department ought to keep that confidence, so that, if we ever undertake to make a similar survey in the future, the men who are asked the questions will know that they are not going to be embarrassed by an unexpected or dissipated use of the record of any relationship which they had with the Government from a military point of view. The fact that a man is a candidate for public office does not, in my opinion, alter the situation at all. I do not think the opponents of the men who have filled questionnaires ought to be able to place them in a situation where they will ask the War Department to relax its confidential attitude in this matter.

"The only use, as I understand it, which can be made of these records, other than the uses of the War Department, is as evidence in the prosecution of a man who has made false answers to any of the questions contained in the questionnaire."

The various steps that had been taken by representatives of Irwin Untermyer to procure, at Washington, the production of his draft questionnaire for publication and settle the controversy in connection in progress since Oct. 21, were outlined in this statement, made public last night by George Gordon Battle, Chairman of the Irwin Untermyer Campaign Committee:

"Mr. Irwin Untermyer, through his representatives, today made every effort possible to procure the publication of his questionnaire.

"Pursuant to his directions, Messrs. Frederick H. Bugher, former Police Commissioner of New York City, accompanied by Theodore L. Hermann, a partner of Mr. Untermyer, presented a written authorization and request, signed by Mr. Untermyer, for the delivery and inspection and publication of his questionnaire.

"They presented Mr. Untermyer's authorization and request to the Assistant Chief Clerk, Mr. Rose, of the Selective Service Bureau of Records at the Washington Barracks, Washington, D. C. By him they were referred to the Chief Clerk, Mr. Rosafy, who, in turn, referred them to Colonel Wheeler. By Colonel Wheeler they were referred to the Adjutant General of the Army, General Harris, at the office of the War Department, who presented the authorization and request to Secretary of War Baker for the purpose of securing his authority to publish its contents.

"The Secretary refused to comply with Mr. Untermyer's request and made the following indorsement thereon:

"'Draft records are part of a confidential relation between the Government and men called to the military service. Their use for other purposes is not permitted. This record will therefore not be shown.'

"In two comprehensive statements already made by Mr. Untermyer, and in a letter from George L. Carr of his local board, the contents of Mr. Untermyer's questionnaire were made public in refutation of an unauthenticated rumor circulated by Bainbridge Colby, the manager of the Republican Campaign Committee, for obvious political purposes."

GRAY ATTACKS UNTERMYER.

Denies Farm Ownership Sent Questionnaire to District Board.

Henry G. Gray, a son of the late Judge John Clinton Gray of the Court of Appeals and a member of the law firm of Zabriskie, Sage, Kerr & Gray, at 49 Wall Street, sent a letter yesterday to Bainbridge Colby, Chairman of the Nonpartisan Judiciary Committee, in which he referred to Mr. Untermyer's latest letter to Mr. Colby and the transmission with it of the statement from George Lee Carr, clerk of Local Board 128, who took his draft declaration, as "one of the most brazen and insidious attempts to deceive the electors of this city that has ever been made."

Mr. Gray referred to Mr. Carr's assertion that, Mr. Untermyer having told of his Warren County farm, his questionnaire was not passed upon at all, but was referred, under the law, to the district board.

"That statement," Mr. Gray wrote, "shows conclusively that Mr. Untermyer actually made a claim for deferred classification on agricultural grounds, because questionnaires were not sent to the district board for industrial and agricultural classification except where claim was made. That seems common sense. But, besides, I know what I am talking about, because I was myself Chairman of one of the local boards in this city, and the district board was too overburdened with work, as every one knows, to examine statements as to agricultural occupation where no claim was made.

"I trust that your committee will have time to explain the above to the people of this city. If Mr. Untermyer were sincere, he would not have waited until the eleventh hour to publish this statement, which is misleading. He could have published a statement at an earlier date, or, better still, have obtained his questionnaire from the War Department."

The letter of Mr. Gray was made public at the headquarters of the Nonpartisan Judiciary Committee in the Hotel Wallick. A reply was forthcoming before long from the headquarters of the Untermyer Campaign Committee at the Hotel Manhattan. It was in the form of a statement from I. T. Flatto, a lawyer of 261 Broadway, who was Chairman of Committee G of the district board. This committee was the arbiter of agricultural claims referred to the board. Here is his statement:

"It is difficult to believe that Mr. Gray has carefully considered the subject on which he professes to speak. I was the Chairman of the committee of the district board dealing with agricultural claims. Quite regardless of any claim that Mr. Untermyer might have desired to present, the disclosure of his interest in an agricultural enterprise would have brought this matter within our jurisdiction. Mr. Gray's references, therefore, to the letter published by the military clerk of Mr. Untermyer's local board are, I regret to say, misleading and should not be permitted to prevail.

"I know that the district board did not grant any deferred classification to Mr. Untermyer on any agricultural claim, and, further, if he had a wife and two children, although not dependent upon him for support, he would have been entitled under the selective service regulations to deferred classification under 2A. I understand that his final classification was 2A, which was in all respects proper under the regulations.

"I notice also that the Secretary of War has stated, very properly, that under no circumstances will he permit the substance of any questionnaire to be made public. This disposes conclusively of Mr. Gray's suggestion that Mr. Untermyer should or could have produced his questionnaire."

ASK ACTORS' EQUITY TO HELP UNTERMYER

Members Reminded That Candidate's Father Was Their Friend in the Strike.

A meeting of the Actors' Equity Association at the Hotel Astor yesterday afternoon, called to consider the fruits of victory in the recent actors' strike, became tumultuous in its final ten minutes following a political speech by Justus Sheffield, who had been among the counsel for the association during the strike.

Margaret Vale, niece of President Wilson, and a member of the Equity, obtained the floor after being shouted down several times, and introduced a resolution instructing the Equity Council to keep aloof from politics. The meeting was quieted with the greatest difficulty by Francis Wilson, and the resolution was defeated by the thousand or more actors present.

The underlying cause of the flare-up was a letter recently sent to all members by the Equity Council, in which it was pointed out that Irwin Untermyer, Democratic candidate for Supreme Court Justice, was a son of Samuel Untermyer, who had espoused the cause of the actors during the strike and given them free legal advice. The letter, it is said, merely suggested that the actors should "stand by their friends."

Mr. Sheffield, in his talk before the actors yesterday, called attention to the fact that Justice Newburger's campaign manager was Bainbridge Colby, who was general counsel for the theatrical managers during the strike, and also dwelt on the fact that Samuel Untermyer had been the friend of the Equity.

Immediately after Mr. Sheffield's speech Francis Wilson called for a motion to adjourn, but Miss Vale arose to object. After several ineffectual efforts had been made to adjourn the meeting Miss Vale said she did not believe it was the province of the Actors' Equity Association to mix in politics, and offered a resolution instructing the council to make no efforts to influence the votes of the members.

This was at first received with applause by the actors. Another speaker then said that everything that the actors had accomplished had been by organization and that the passage of the Agency bill, limiting employment agency fees to 5 per cent., had been made possible only by organization. Miss Vale's resolution was then defeated.

MRS. LILLY UPHOLDS HER TWO SALARIES

BUT POINTS A DISTINCTION

Her Position on Blackwell's Island, She Says, Is Not a Public Office.

Replying to the charge made by the Citizens Union that as member of the Assembly and Director of the Women Prisoners on Blackwell's Island she drew two salaries contrary to law, Mrs. Mary M. Lilly, candidate for re-election in the Seventh Manhattan District, in a statement issued from her campaign headquarters in the Hotel St. Andrew, admitted the facts, but upheld the propriety of her acts. Mrs. Lilly, who is running on the Democratic ticket, declared that she had been assured by counsel that she had a right to accept a position under the city while in the employ of the State. She differentiated between a public office and public employment. Mrs. Lilly said in her statement:

"The statement emanating from the Citizens Union and gathered by its Secretary, reserved until the last day of the campaign in the endeavor to further the candidacy of the Republican nominee in the Seventh Assembly District, wherein it was endeavored to be conveyed that there was some irregularity or impropriety in the fact that I was holding the office of Assemblyman from the Seventh Assembly District and at the same time discharging the duties of Superintendent of Women Prisoners on Blackwell's Island, New York, calls for a reply which should satisfy the people of the Seventh Assembly District that the Citizens Union must have some motive not even known to my adversary which prompts their low and unfair attack.

"These facts the Citizens Union has failed to convey to the people of my district, and it is solely for the effect they may have in demonstrating the queer convolutions of the mindal of this repudiated body that I ask you to present them to the public at large.

"Not less than three years ago I took a competitive Civil Service examination for appointment as Superintendent of Women Prisoners. I passed first, and not hearing from the matter until June, 1919, gave it no further consideration. At the time that I took this examination I was utterly unknown in the public life of the City of New York. In June, 1919, the Commissioner of Correction of the City of New York informed me that he was about to make an appointment from the list upon which my name stood first, and particularly requested me to accept the employment. This I did, after being assured by counsel that there was no impropriety whatever in my accepting a subordinate employment under the head of a department of the City of New York.

"At this late date it is difficult to enter into a disquisition upon points of constitutional and statutory law, but I am confident that the good sense of the people of my district and their general knowledge of affairs will convince them that the Superintendent of Women Prisoners is not a statutory officer and that position in the classified municipal civil service, to which I was appointed after a competitive examination, is not an office under the city government.

"There is all the difference in the world between a public office and a public employment, which is a thing which does not appear to have made any impression whatever upon the perceptive faculties or the intelligence of the Citizens Union.

The nature of a public office was pointed out by the Corporation Counsel of the City of New York on page 19 of his brief in Schultze vs. the City, reported 211 N. Y., 625, as follows:

A public office is one whose duties are prescribed by statute, or who has public duties to perform, and he owes the performance of these duties to the public, to whom he is directly responsible, rather than the appointing power.

"As Superintendent of Women Prisoners I have no duties prescribed by statute, no duties for the performance of which I am directly responsible to the public, but many duties for the performance of which I am both responsible and accountable to the Commissioner of Correction, among which are the following out of his plans for the improvement of conditions among women prisoners on Blackwell's Island."

NEW CLUE IN DANSEY CASE.

Letter Hints That Missing Boy is Still Alive.

HAMMONTON, N. J., Nov. 3.—A letter received by the mother of "Billy" Dansey, the 3-year-old boy who disappeared about a month ago, has spurred the authorities to new efforts to solve the problem of his whereabouts.

The letter, which came a few days ago, was written by a woman who said she lived just outside Philadelphia, and who intimated that the boy would be returned if Mrs. Dansey could promise immunity to those involved in his disappearance. The writer did not admit she was implicated in kidnapping the boy. Mrs. Dansey turned the letter over to County Detective John C. Wilson.

'DRY' ISSUE TO FORE IN JERSEY ELECTION

Both Rival Candidates Express Confidence of Success in Balloting Today.

FIGHT IN ESSEX AND HUDSON

Edwards Predicts 50,000 Majority —Republicans Say Bugbee Will Win by 15,000.

With both Democrats and Republicans claiming victory, the Gubernatorial campaign in New Jersey, one of the liveliest in its history, came to a close last night.

Senator Edward I. Edwards, the Democratic candidate, predicted his election by 50,000 majority, and said the local Democratic tickets all over the State also would win. Newton A. K. Bugbee, the Republican candidate, after an eleventh hour whirlwind tour of Morris and Burlington Counties, was just as sure the result would be in his favor. His friends predicted his election by between 15,000 and 20,000. Besides a Governor and State Legislature local candidates are to be elected.

A point in favor of the Edwards candidacy has been his attacks on the Public Service Corporation and against the zone fare law. Senator Edwards made the most of this issue in the southern part of the State, where feeling was acute when the zone fare law first went into effect. After closing his campaign in Jersey City, yesterday, he made this statement:

"From my tour of the State, I am convinced that victory tomorrow for the Democratic ticket is certain. I am surely going to carry New Jersey by 50,000. The Republican managers are in a panic, and have virtually given up the battle. I am more than grateful to the many friends who have helped me in the fight. Without them and without the assistance of the rank and file of the Democratic Party, victory would not have been possible."

Prohibition the Chief Issue.

Prohibition was forced to the front as the chief issue in the final week of the campaign. Despite the assertion of Mr. Bugbee that prohibition is an accepted fact because it is incorporated in Federal legislation, and, therefore, cannot be a State issue, Senator Edwards made it an issue by declaring he would use all the legal machinery of the State to make New Jersey "as wet as the Atlantic Ocean."

The Republicans favor submitting the proposed Woman Suffrage Amendment to the voters of the State for adoption or rejection by the Legislature, while the Democratic platform calls for immediate ratification. The Democratic position on this question is rather uncertain, as the Nugent Assembly candidates in Essex County are pledged against the plank.

Mr. Bugbee toured Burlington and Morris Counties yesterday, and last evening, at Morristown, he predicted his election by about 35,000 plurality. He said:

"Tomorrow New Jersey will vote on one question and one only. My opponent has raised only one issue. If he should be elected, it would mean that the majority of the people of New Jersey desire the nullification of the Constitution, the rock upon which our Government has been built into a citadel of strength that has made us the foremost among the nations of the world."

Battle in Hudson and Essex.

The big fights will be staged in Hudson and Essex counties. The Republicans say Edwards will not carry Hudson by more than 25,000, while the Democrats believe he will carry his home county by 35,000. In Essex, the Republicans believe Bugbee will win by 10,000, while the Democrats assert Edwards will carry the county by 1,000.

It is generally felt that much depends on the vote in Essex County, which includes Newark, the largest city in the State. If Edwards carries the county by as large a vote as his managers predict, Democrats believe his victory is assured. Edwards followers say the vote for their candidate in Newark will overcome any plurality Bugbee may get in the county outside the city.

ELECTION OFFICIALS HELD IN FRAUD CASE

OUTCOME OF FACTION FIGHT

Frank Keller, 76 Columbus Avenue, Maspeth, and Mrs. Barbara Aylmer, 39 Grand Street, Maspeth, Democratic Inspectors, and John Bender, Jr., 482 Woodward Avenue, Ridgewood, and Mrs. Anna V. Ray, Grand Avenue, Maspeth, Republican Inspectors, making up the Election Board of the Fifth Election District of the Second Assembly District, Queens, were arraigned yesterday before Justice Isaac M. Kapper in the Queens Supreme Court upon indictments charging that in the primary election on Sept. 2 they had permitted a voter who was not enrolled to vote and counseled and assisted persons to vote in the names of persons either dead or removed from the district.

In one indictment all four are charged with permitting William Feinne to vote when, being in the military service in 1918, he had not enrolled. In another indictment all four are charged with canvassing and returning votes in the names of William Feinne, Irene Green, Dennis O'Neil, and John W. Gough, when Feinne was not enrolled; Irene Green and Dennis O'Neil had moved from the district and did not vote, and John Nagel and John W. Gough were dead. The third indictment is against Keller and Mrs. Aylmer, charging that they assisted some unknown person to vote in the name of Irene Green, who had moved from Maspeth.

These indictments followed the primary fight in the Third Municipal Court District, Queens, between Assemblyman William H. O'Hare and State Senator Frank Adel, for the Democratic nomination for Municipal Judge. Adel won by more than 1,200 majority. A week after the primary O'Hare said he had discovered evidences of fraud and laid facts before District Attorney O'Leary, which resulted in the indictments.

ATTACKS THE EDGE BILL.

Illinois Representative Says It Menaces Our Industries.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Charging that the "money-making contingent" was behind the measure, Representative King, Republican, of Illinois, in the House today attacked the Edge bill for export financing, characterizing it as "an admirable example of lobbying and bureaucratic legislation."

"If there is a wild rumor that oil had been found in Armenia," he said, "that will be sufficient for the organization and promotion by these so-called investment bankers of hundreds of companies, the sale of whose stocks and bonds they will promote. If a craze for Siberian gold overcomes us, those who are taken care of in this bill will see to it that the stock of the Siberian gold company gets a fair chance in America.

"This bill means the threatened destruction of American industries, the pauperization of American labor, and the certain coming of a national orgy of stock speculation."

STOLEN CARS' CACHE FOUND

$50,000 Worth Recovered and as Many More Located in Michigan.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Recovery of $50,000 worth of automobiles stolen from Chicago, and the location of others valued at $50,000 or more was announced today by detectives of the Automobile Squad. Benton Harbor, Michigan, was disclosed as the cache of the stolen cars. Detectives returning from that town brought names and addresses of garages where many recovered cars are stored. They will return to Benton Harbor to seize other stolen cars.

We have orders from all parts of the world, but of course Germans have the preference." Neuhaus admitted that the workmen had cause for complaint despite increased wages, because everything they needed was bought up by foreigners and disappeared through a "hole in the West."

Clothes, furniture, linen, boots, socks, trunks, leather goods, foodstuffs and everything were being bought up by foreigners, who preferred goods to the depreciated German mark, of which they had accumulated heaps. They are denuding the whole country of all necessities, making their purchase impossible to the workmen.

"This state of affairs has contributed greatly to sober the workmen's minds," he said. "They realize that those goods which are disappearing so rapidly now from Germany must be replaced, and that only work can replace them; that only work can furnish the wherewith to trade for badly needed foreign foodstuffs and raw products.

"In the central German brown coal district miners have recently decided to work on Sunday, and everywhere outside Berlin men are working again with that strenuousness for which Germans were famous everywhere before the war."

"How do you explain the lack of coal if that is so?" I asked.

"We ourselves and most large concerns are plentifully provided with coal, but I admit that lesser works suffer enforced idleness by the lack of it, which is not due so much to idleness of the miners, but the lack of the means of transportation. At this very hour all passenger traffic on German railways has been stopped for ten days. Politicians say lack of transportation means that it is due to passive resistance and aversion to labor among employes of the Government repair shops, due to the Spartacus agitation.

"I am doubtful if that explains all. There must be other reasons besides, one being, perhaps, too much red tape and inability of the officials in these shops. Not that I am accusing them of negligence, ignorance, or incompetence, but they are hampered in many way, for instance, where the managers of private concerns have much more liberty of discretion.

"There is certainly plenty of coal at the mines, the output having reached 70 per cent. of that prior to the war. In Silesia, for instance," you private managers have much stouter corsetbucks," was how the Spartacus leader put it recently, when, regretfully, discussing the inability of the Government repair shops.

"But," concluded Neuhaus, "that cannot quite explain the extraordinary lack of means of transportation which is at the root of all the evil in German industry. The present situation is only the outcome of many faults and shortcomings in the last five years. We are very poor devils now, but we know and our laborers are realizing that they must set to work with a will, and I am convinced that Germany will rise de profundis to a new life of labor."

Statement by MURRAY TAYLOR
15th Assembly District.

I have this moment—less than twenty-four hours before election—received a circular sent out by the Republican Organization of the Fifteenth Assembly District, where I am running on the Democratic ticket for the Assembly against Mr. Joseph Steinberg, the Republican candidate.

There has been a controversy between Lieut. Edwin J. McDonald, the Democratic candidate for Alderman in the same locality, and Mr. Bruce M. Falconer, the Republican candidate for Alderman, as to whether Mr. Falconer refused to sign a petition to grant war veterans six months' pay on returning. The circular mainly refers to that controversy. It does not, in my opinion, answer Lieut. McDonald's charge. At the same time, that is not my affair.

The part that is my affair is a statement in the postscript of the Republican circular, saying, "Similar misstatements may be sent to you regarding Mr. Falconer, Assemblyman Steinberg, or other candidates when we cannot reply; if so, please disregard them also. We want to discourage dirty politics in this district." The words "dirty politics" are put in capitals.

I desire to say to as many as may read this advertisement that I am not conscious, during the entire campaign, of having referred in any way to the past, present or future of Mr. Steinberg. In fact, the only time that I ever mentioned his name was in writing a circular letter, stating that he was the Republican candidate for the Assembly. On the face of this last minute statement from the Republican District Headquarters the bringing in of my contest with Mr. Steinberg in this manner would seem to be VERY dirty politics. I am sure from what I know of them that Mr. Chilvers and Mrs. Isolin; the two Republican leaders of the district, have sanctioned this underhandedly.

MORE PIER STRIKERS GO BACK TO WORK

500 CHELSEA MEN RESUME

Evidence that the strike of longshoremen which has held the transatlantic and coastwise shipping of this port in its grasp for the last month, causing an estimated loss of $1,500,000 a day, is losing its grip was shown yesterday in the number of men reported at work. United States Shipping Board officials asserted that between 11,000 and 12,000 longshoremen had returned to work and declared they considered the strike broken. They predicted a gradual return of men from now on. John F. Riley, President of the New York District Council, placed the number of men back at work at 15,000.

The return of approximately 500 longshoremen to the Chelsea piers was generally regarded in shipping circles as indicating that the strike is nearing an end, although ordinarily 5,000 men are employed on these piers.

Twenty-eight ships, about one-fourth of which were coastwise, applied for sailing permits at the Port Routing Office yesterday.

Shipping Board officials were so well pleased with the situation that they changed their plans to have a steamer go to Norfolk, Va., and bring back 1,000 negroes for longshore work. "We don't need them, that's all," said a Shipping Board official. "We are getting all the I. L. A. men we want. We have turned them away in some places."

Mayor Hylan yesterday afternoon sent to Frederick Toppin, Vice President of the International Mercantile Marine, and a member of the National Adjustment Commission, a letter embodying the new proposal from the insurgents to return to work at the old rate of 85 cents an hour if the steamship interests would agree to arbitrate by a tribunal that does not involve the National Adjustment Commission or any of its members. It was understood in shipping circles that Mayor Hylan, as Chairman of the Special Federation Conciliation Commission, made an effort to get the ship owners to meet a committee of stri...ers on the new proposal, but was unsuccessful.

The Post Office Department in Washington announced yesterday that the strike of longshoremen had not seriously interfered with the dispatch of mail overseas. Through the co-operation of United States and Canadian postal services and the Army Transport Service more than 26,000 bags of mail were shipped during the week ended Oct. 30, it was announced.

A tour of the waterfronts yesterday along both the Hudson and East Rivers showed that there was some activity at nearly all the piers. On the East River some of the longshoremen who applied for work had to be turned away, according to the foremen.

Jersey City police yesterday frustrated the plan of 300 striking Hoboken 'longshoremen to persuade the men unloading the Italian Line steamship Giuseppi Verdi, at Pier B, Jersey City, to quit work. The strikers were kept away from the pier by a squad of mounted men and a detail of twenty patrolmen and after a short stay they returned to Hoboken. Seventy-five negroes are at work on Pier B, being transported to and from the pier on tugs.

The mass meeting of Freight Handlers Union, Local 976, scheduled for last night, to take a strike vote, did not take place. The union is composed of about 4,000 members, and they threatened to take a strike vote last Friday night, but postponed action at the request of Mr. O'Connor. The men were wrought up because Director General Hines of the Railroad Administration had not made reply to their demands. Mr. O'Connor said yesterday that he did not know that the freight handlers were scheduled for a meeting last night.

PUBLISHERS GET CHARTER.

National Association Formed by Owners of Periodicals.

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 3.—The National Association of Periodical Publishers obtained a charter of incorporation today at the office of the Secretary of State. The Board of Directors include prominent publishers from various parts of the country.

The organization, according to the certificate, is authorized to settle differences between its members and others to procure uniformity of customs and usages of the business conducted by its members and to secure freedom from unjust and unlawful exactions. Another object is "to do all things which from time to time may be found necessary or expedient for the benefit and protection of its members."

The headquarters will be in New York.

According to R. J. Cuddihy of Funk & Wagnalls, the organization incorporated at Albany yesterday will take the place of the National Publishers Association, which has been in existence for twenty years. In connection with the lockout of the pressmen and the "vacations" of the compositors, which have tied up the printing industry in New York for more than a month so that few of the magazines have been printed, the move on the part of the publishers was construed as an effort to prepare for future labor disturbances.

The incorporators are Arthur J. Baldwin, Vice President of the McGraw-Hill Publishing Co.; R. J. Cuddihy of Funk & Wagnalls, Charles D. Lanier of The Review of Reviews; A. C. Pearson, George E. Cook, Graham Patterson, George B. Buckley, Joseph A. Moore of the Hearst publications, Roger W. Allen, Frank C. Hoyt, N. E. Lewis, B. A. Mackinnon, and Thomas A. Barrett, all of New York. Others are P. S. Collins of Philadelphia, Charles F. Jenkins of Philadelphia, Henry Newell of Boston, E. L. Shaw of Chicago, Clarence Poe of Birmingham, Ala., and E. D. Meredith of Des Moines, Iowa.

John Adams Thayer, Secretary of the Periodical Publishers Association, announced yesterday that the Pictorial Review Company had resumed operations, and that their November number, which was on the presses when the men were locked out, would go to the subscribers and also would be on the newsstands tomorrow.

Mr. Thayer said yesterday that the McGraw-Hill Company had resumed operations some days ago with some of their old employes in the pressroom, and that the force was being increased daily. One of their publications, Coal Age, was mailed on Sunday. The American Machinist, one of their principal papers, containing over 400 pages, Mr. Thayer said, had been printed by the lithographic process.

PREVENT A WRECK AT GARY.

Ties on Track Are Discovered in Time to Save 100 Workers.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—What police authorities believe was a deliberate attempt to wreck a Gary and interurban special train carrying 100 steel workers to the Gary, Ind., mills was frustrated tonight after a conductor on a Michigan Central train, which runs parallel to the interurban, reported that he had seen two young men piling railroad ties on the interurban tracks.

A wrecking crew was rushed to the scene on the Michigan Central tracks, and the ties were removed just as the interurban came into sight. It would have been difficult to stop the train carrying the workers, for all block signals had been passed.

The police believe that the two young men were accomplices of strike sympathizers.

SCHWAB URGES CALM IN LABOR DISPUTES

Says There Has Been Too Much Calling of Names on Both Sides.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—In discussing the labor situation today Charles M. Schwab, head of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation, said: "The situation in the United States would benefit if there were less agitation by certain elements on both sides."

"There has been too much calling of names," he went on, "between the opposing forces in the steel strike, the miners' strike, and other industrial revolts, and this, with the excitement attendant upon the sensational reports, has a tendency to keep the people stirred up to the point where some are expressing fears of a revolution or civil war."

ADMIT MORE ENVOYS TO LABOR CONGRESS

WOMEN VOTE 8-HOUR DAY

Their Conference Also Demands Participation by Women in Labor Congress of Men.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Admission to the International Labor Conference of the labor delegates from each of the countries of Japan, France, and South Africa, against whom protests have been presented, was decided upon today by the Credentials Committee of the conference. The question of seating the Argentine labor delegate, also protested, went over until the delegate arrives in the United States.

The question of unemployment came up, and the Steering Committee moved the appointment of a commission to study the problem when it became known that the delegates from Ecuador were ready to introduce a resolution providing compulsory employment in all countries.

Consideration by the commission of the "economic, social, and legal points of view" of the unemployment question was suggested by Viscount de Eza, Spanish Government delegate. He was supported by Franciak Sokal of Poland.

Arthur Fontaine, Chairman of the Steering Committee, explained that the question of the treatment of allied workers in enemy countries and of enemy workers on allied soil, referred to the conference by the Supreme Council at Paris, would be taken up by the Commission on Unemployment.

Another commission was named to report on the admission of delegates from Finland, Luxembourg, the Dominican Republic, and other countries. The commission also will consider the motion of Rafael H. Elisaldi of Ecuador to invite Mexico to participate. It was announced that Chile had withdrawn its support from the Elisaldi motion because Mexico had not made a direct request for admission. Luis K. Morenea, Secretary of the Mexican Federation of Labor, has arrived in Washington as a labor delegate.

The committee will recommend that the Cuban capital delegate, while retaining his seat, be deprived of a vote in the absence of a labor representative from that country.

News that a party of fourteen Germans, believed to be delegates to the conference, had not sailed as has been reported, was contained in a message received by the State Department, and made public by conference officials. The reason given here was that no transport accommodations were available, and it was said that the Germans now were attempting to obtain passage on a neutral ship.

The conference adjourned until tomorrow.

Participation by women in consideration of labor problems before the International Labor Conference was proposed today in a resolution adopted by the International Congress of Working-women, urging amendment of the Versailles Treaty to that end. It asked that Article 3 of the treaty be so altered that each national delegation to the conference should include a woman, representing labor, and one representing the Government. Mrs. Lois B. Rantoul, representing the Federal Employes' Union, Boston, cast the only vote against the proposal.

The resolution recommending an eight-hour day, which was adopted Saturday and referred back to the committee for revision, also was finally adopted today. It follows:

"The first International Congress of Working-women requests the first International Congress of Labor of the League of Nations that an international convention be established:

"First, for all workers a maximum eight-hour day and forty-four-hour week.

"Second, that the weekly rest period shall have an uninterrupted duration of at least one day and a half.

"Third, that in continuous industries a minimum rest period of one-half hour shall be accorded in each eight-hour shift."

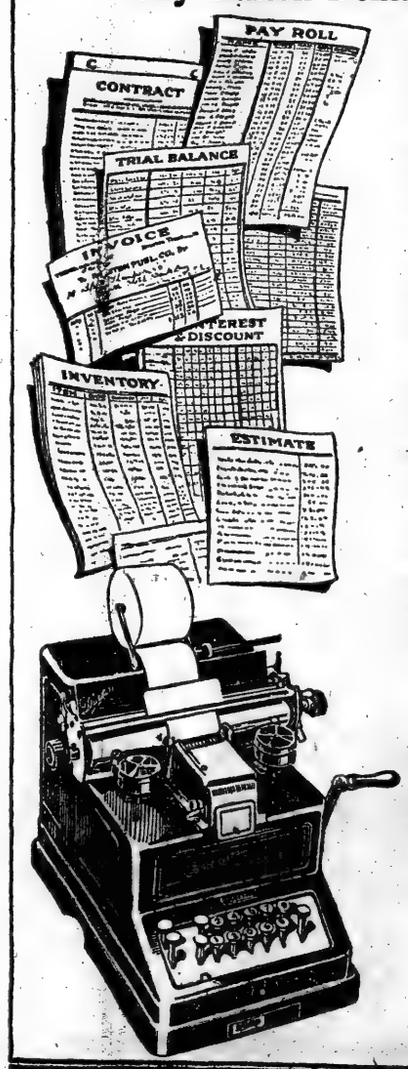
Dalton

ADDING-CALCULATING MACHINE

Why Dalton Demand Exceeds the Supply



The figure problems of business are so many and so varied that only through careful study can the best method be evolved of handling each one.

These problems, however, while varying in detail, involve but four methods of handling figures—adding, subtracting, multiplying and dividing. All results are secured by these four operations.

The installation of hundreds and thousands of 10-Key Daltons by corporations shows a realization of the broader usefulness of the Dalton in general business. This is due to its simplicity of keyboard construction which immediately adapts it for use by more people.

Put a 10-Key Dalton in a branch office where fifteen people are employed and fifteen people will use it. Its simplicity invites use. It is much faster in straight adding and listing because it is arranged for Touch Method operation—operation without looking from figures to keys.

It has a broader usefulness because it is equally as fast in handling multiplication problems—such as checking invoices, preparing estimates, doing the hundred and one figure problems requiring multiplication. It is a combined adding-calculating machine and therefore a better purchase for the average business office.

Phone for Demonstration

The demand for Daltons today exceeds our manufacturing facilities although they have been doubled and tripled. This is due to a better understanding of the broader usefulness of the machine and its adaptability to every known line of business. You can secure a demonstration of a Dalton in your office or store which puts you under no obligation and may be the means of solving some of your labor problems for you.

failing agreement on his proposal, the minority Senators would vote against the ratifying resolution with the committee reservations in it. They would have to run the chance, in that event he said, of getting their own reservations before the Senate; but he believed that enough middle-ground Senators would vote with the minority to see that the reservations came to a vote. If the minority reservations were defeated, he said, the onus for defeating the treaty would then be upon the Republicans.

Senator Lodge, in reply to this, said that the responsibility for voting down ratification would be upon the Democrats if they defeated the original resolution. The majority leader spoke of the Democrats having "manoeuvred themselves into a hole" from which they were trying to climb out.

The impression at the Capitol tonight was that the treaty might reach an impasse through first one side and then the other declining to ratify it. In that event it might be before the Senate, it was said, for weeks, if not months, with occasional efforts to obtain the necessary sixty-four votes for ratification.

Senator Hitchcock is expected to seek the advice of President Wilson on the policy to be pursued by the minority, in view of the developments of the day. If the President advocates following the course outlined by Mr. Hitchcock the prospects are that the ratifying resolution with the committee reservations will be flatly voted down by at least thirty-three Democrats.

Senator Lodge believed, he said, that the Senate, despite the failure to reach an agreement for final vote, would come to the vote on ratification within a week's time. He confidently predicted that the committee reservations would be adopted—or the majority of them—and remarked that it would then be for the Democrats to accept them or, as he expressed it, "knife the treaty."

Mr. Lodge insisted that the minority, if it defeated the resolution of ratification carrying the majority reservations, would face the certainty of precisely the same resolution being before the Senate again on a motion to reconsider. To get that out of the way the Democrats, he said, would have to muster enough votes to defeat the reservations, which Mr. Lodge believes to be impossible. He counts on the forty-nine Republicans and at least six Democrats standing to the end for the committee program.

The Massachusetts Senator expressed himself as entirely satisfied with the situation, from the majority viewpoint. It was now apparent, he said, from the remarks of Senator Hitchcock on the Senate floor, that the minority conceded that its fight on the majority reservations was "doomed to defeat."

Hint of Sidetracking the Treaty.

In the course of the debate on the effort for unanimous consent, Senator Cummins, Republican, of Iowa, Chairman of the Interstate Commerce Committee, warned the Senate that unless it disposed of the treaty soon he would endeavor to have his bill relating to the restoration of the railroads to private control taken up and the treaty sidetracked. He told the Senate that the railroad situation was such that, unless legislation was forthcoming soon, there would be grave danger of industrial paralysis.

Debate on the Lodge proposal began when Mr. Lodge brought it up, saying that he was anxious that the Senate reach a final vote on the treaty by Nov. 12. He would not insist upon arbitrarily fixing Nov. 12 as the date for the final vote, he explained, but he would insist upon some agreement, if any were entered upon, that would be "definite and effective." He did not oppose fixing a time limit on debate, he explained, but was anxious that the Senate agree upon a time when the final vote should be taken.

Senator Hitchcock, combating the Lodge proposal, said that the objections of the minority involved a "vital point" in their fight for ratification of the treaty.

"The proposal of the Senator from Massachusetts involves a vote on a certain resolution of ratification, with such reservations as the majority may adopt," said Mr. Hitchcock. "To bind the Senate to vote on that resolution would mean to prevent their having a reasonable chance to make material change in the reservations supported by the majority. If we accepted that proposal we would be estopped from altering the resolution of ratification before a vote was taken in the Senate."

"My proposal would not cut off any amendments or reservations the minority wanted to offer at any time up to the vote on the resolution of ratification," replied Senator Lodge. "Of course, if the resolution of ratification were defeated and a vote were carried to reconsider it the resolution would come back to the Senate with the reservations already adopted, but that would not prevent the minority, after that, from offering a substitute resolution with their own reservations if they so desired.

"The Senator would construe it that no different ratifying resolution would be before the Senate if the original were defeated, failing a two-thirds vote?" asked Mr. Hitchcock.

"No other resolution than the one we had been working on," replied Mr. Lodge. "If the majority of the Senate voted to reconsider the resolution, it would come back in exactly the same form as defeated."

"That is a contingency to which we cannot afford to consent," replied Mr. Hitchcock. "We cannot afford to put ourselves in the position of being prevented from getting a vote on our own reservations, as a part of the ratifying resolution.

"If the resolution of ratification proposed by the Republican majority, with its reservations, were to be accepted, it would simply mean that a majority of the Senate, and not two-thirds of it, would control the ratification. We do not intend that a bare majority of the Senate is to decide the fate of this treaty."

Text of Hitchcock's Proposal.

The text of the counterproposal offered by Mr. Hitchcock is as follows:

"First—That after the adoption of this unanimous consent agreement the Senate will meet each day at 11 o'clock A. M. for the consideration of the German treaty, and all amendments, reservations, or resolutions of ratification that may be proposed. No Senator shall speak more than once, nor longer than fifteen minutes, during the present week upon any pending question.

"Second—That during the calendar day of Monday, Nov. 3, 1919, before adjournment or recess, the Senate will vote upon the pending amendment and also upon any other amendments to the treaty that may be offered.

"Third—That during the calendar days of Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 4 and 5, 1919, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, will consider committee reservations, which consideration may be continued not later than the calendar day of Thursday, Nov. 6, 1919, at 3 o'clock P. M., before or at which time a vote upon pending committee reservations shall be taken, whereupon the treaty shall be reported to the Senate by the Committee of the Whole.

"Fourth.—In the Senate the vote upon the resolution of ratification, embracing such reservations as have been adopted in Committee of the Whole, shall take place before adjournment or recess of the calendar day of Thursday, Nov. 6, 1919.

"Fifth—If it receives the necessary two-thirds vote the President shall be notified.

"Sixth—If it does not receive the necessary two-thirds vote the Senate shall consider, on Friday, Nov. 7, and Saturday, Nov. 8, 1919, any resolution of ratification proposed by the minority of the Foreign Relations Committee and vote upon the same not later than 3 o'clock P. M., Saturday, Nov. 8, 1919. If no such resolution receives the necessary two-thirds vote it shall then be in order for any Senator to propose a resolution of ratification during the calendar day and the same shall be voted upon without discussion. If no such resolution receives the necessary two-thirds vote, it shall, thereupon, be in order for any Senator to move to take up the railroad bill or any other business, and this question shall be decided without discussion."

Labor Conference Denounced.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3, (Associated Press.)—Incidental to an attack on Peace Treaty provisions setting up an international labor conference, Senator Sherman, Republican, of Illinois asserted that the International Labor Conference now meeting in Washington was "a menace to our domestic peace and prosperity."

"Our Government is now under the regency of Tumulty and Baruch," the Illinois Senator said, "but if I were in executive position with them I would deport some members of this conference. Europe has sent men here who are interested solely in promoting discontent and fanning the flames of violence. We've got enough domestic troubles of our own, with the steel strike and its leaders, and with men like John L. Lewis heading the bituminous miners who are striking, so that it is no time to assemble here a conference of firebrands."

Presenting a report of comparative wages paid for labor in the United States and other parts of the world, Senator Sherman said American workingmen stood only to lose by pooling their interests in an international adjustment.

Senator King, Democrat, of Utah introduced a reservation declaring that the United States "withholds its assent" to the treaty's labor provisions and "declines to participate" in the International Labor Congress, because vital American domestic questions are affected.

PLEA FOR MANUAL TRAINING.

Vocational Instruction Recommended as Means to Increase Production.

Establishment of vocational training departments in industrial plants as an important step in increasing production is recommended in a declaration adopted at the first meeting here of a committee appointed by the National Civic Federation. The committee was appointed to consider what part should be played through factory industrial training in reducing the cost of living by increased production.

Captain Francis R. Mayer of New York, President of the France and Canada Steamship Company, is Chairman of the committee, which asserted that "the world is in dire need of the necessaries of life." It added that it is "the duty of every one in industry to exert himself to the limits of health and comfort in augmenting production."

Among the members of the committee are Matthew Woll of Chicago, Vice President of the American Federation of Labor; Louis Coolidge of Boston, Chairman of the welfare department of the National Civic Federation, and Hugh Frayne of New York, general organizer of the American Federation of Labor.

Mrs. Preston Gibson's Mother Sues for Property She Lent.

Mrs. Anne Rogers Benjamin, daughter of the late H. H. Rogers, sued in the Supreme Court yesterday to retobe worth $20,000, but believed to be valued at more than $50,000, which her daughter, Beatrice, stored in a warehouse at 211 East 100th Street. The daughter recently was married to Preston Gibson, after she had divorced Alexander Dallas Bache Pratt.

Mrs. Benjamin, who is the wife of William E. Benjamin, alleged in her complaint that the Harlem Storage Warehouse Company is detaining unlawfully furniture belonging to her which she says she lent to her daughter, then Mrs. Pratt, "for her temporary use at 1,140 Park Avenue." She says her daughter agreed to return the property to her on demand and that on Sept. 25 last she ceased to occupy the Park Avenue house and stored the property with the defendant. A Deputy Sheriff served the writ on the warehouse company and the property thereupon went into the custody of the Sheriff, but it will remain in the warehouse until the trial of the suit in the Supreme Court, at which the ownership of the property will be determined.

A Statement to the Voters by IRWIN UNTERMYER

November 2, 1919.

I am, as you know, a candidate for Justice of the Supreme Court together with my fellow Democrat, Justice Robert L. Luce. I was nominated at the primaries of the Democratic Party to succeed a Judge who declined to run in those primaries and who, if elected, would be able to serve less than four years out of a fourteen-year term of office, before reaching the age of compulsory retirement of 70 years. If not re-elected he will receive $11,500 a year for Life as an Official Referee.

I will be nearly 34 years of age when I assume office, should I be elected, and this has been the serious offense with which I have been charged, an offense which I neither palliate nor deny.

I have been admitted to the bar for almost ten years, and even those who oppose me politically have not ventured to suggest a criticism of my integrity or character. I am, and for eight years have been, a member of a well known law firm of this City and I have participated in all its activities. I have tried and argued cases of importance in which precedents of moment have been established.

My political adversaries have attacked, libeled and denounced me for political advantage, but each attack has been answered and refuted by me. As each falsehood was silenced, another has been devised to take its place. I have made no attack upon any man in my campaign, and whether I win or lose, I have done nothing that I need ever regret.

One of the main criticisms that have been levelled against my candidacy has been that by advertisement my friends have attempted to bring my name and cause before the voters as conspicuously as possible. I have no apology to offer for this, and it is, indeed, fortunate that they were able to do so; for otherwise the powerful interests opposed to me, in the press and elsewhere, might altogether have suppressed my campaign. What those interests are, and how malign they are and why they are hostile to me, is known to everyone who reads this statement.

The campaign is over. You are about to make your decision and cast your vote. I have stated my case with frankness; and I ask your support if you believe that the interest of the people will be thereby served.

STECHER IS WINNER IN BOUT AT GARDEN

SCORES FALL IN 1:31 2-5

Joe Stecher, the Western farmer boy, defeated Strangler Lewis with his deadly scissors hold, in Madison Square Garden last night. The end came after 1:31 2-5 of wrestling when Stecher, after taking a lot of punishment, got a double wrist hold and a body scissors and Lewis succumbed to its relentless clutch.

Stecher took this painful grueling so gamely that the crowd, which packed the Garden, cheered him madly every time he broke free. Lewis tired himself with his persistent efforts to crush Stecher's head. It was after his last head hold that Stecher wound his legs about his opponent like a grapevine. Down the two crashed to the floor. Slowly Lewis went over on his shoulders, but bridged his body and put off the inevitable for a few minutes.

Then Stecher clinched both of Lewis's wrists and stretched them as far as they would reach on either side of his body. He crushed Lewis's torso with his knees and then bore the Strangler's shoulders to the mat with the weight of his own body.

Earl Craddock, who held the heavyweight title until he retired, announced that he would come out of retirement and wrestle the winner.

Lewis Starts Strongly.

Lewis and Stecher started at 9:25. The Strangler forced the action at the start and threw his lighter opponent around the ring roughly. Stecher was too slippery and agile to stay in one place long enough for Lewis to get an effective grip on him. Lewis repeatedly floored Stecher violently, but the elusive farmer boy usually bounded up as soon as he hit the carpet.

Cheers roared through the Garden when Stecher got Lewis in a clasp of a scissors hold after the bout had gone twenty minutes. Stecher got Lewis's head between his knees and slowly brought Lewis's shoulders toward the mat. Excitement ran high as Lewis struggled desperately and finally wriggled himself loose.

It looked bad for Lewis for a time when Stecher got a scissors and toehold on the Strangler. Lewis broke the scissors, but took a lot of punishment as the farmer boy almost bent his toe in two. Lewis's great strength did not fail him, and after he kicked out of danger he threw Stecher almost out of the ring.

Stecher in Trouble.

The wrestlers had been at it half an hour when Lewis got his famous head hold on Stecher. Both men were on their feet when the Strangler clasped Stecher's head under his arm. He applied the power slowly and Stecher's face wore a look of pain. It required all of Stecher's skillful foot work to break away.

Lewis again got the vicious head hold on Stecher after the bout had gone thirty-five minutes. He brought his opponent to the mat and was slowly bringing his shoulders to the floor. The crowd yelled for Lewis to end the match then and there, but after taking a terrific gruelling Stecher got loose. It was a close call.

Lewis was close to defeat when the bout had gone forty-five minutes. Stecher got his scissors hold on Lewis and had his shoulders a few inches from a fall. Referee Bothner was ready to give Stecher the slap which would give him victory when Lewis, with a mighty effort, pried himself loose. During the thrilling rally by Stecher the crowd was in [illegible] this both wrestlers showed signs of tiring.

Stecher tried a lot of jitsu tricks and fancy flipflops on Lewis, but the Strangler refused to be caught unawares. After the men had wrestled an hour Lewis took the aggressive and twice in a short time had Stecher in the throes of the deadly head hold. Both times Stecher tore himself loose. Both worked hard for their favorite hold and Stecher finally clamped on the body scissors and the double wrist lock, winning the match.

Show Draws Big Crowd.

The Autumnal return of the grappling sport brought out a large outpouring of the faithful followers of the ancient Greek pastime. Unlike the classic fans of old, who admired the wrestlers for their grace and physical beauty, the present-day fans want their wrestling rough, and the rougher the better. The top gallery of the Garden was packed early with the enthusiastic youths who could not enjoy a bout unless they yelled themselves hoarse in giving advice to the maulers. The arena and floor sections were slower in filling up, but when the preliminary matches were finished the Garden was filled. Wrestling has lost none of its popularity, and besides the prominent followers of the sport hundreds of women watched the matches and all got quite excited about them.

No wrestling show would seem complete without Zbyszko, so the Pole gave his friends a treat when he clashed in the semi-final muss with a perfect stranger, Emil Pedrof, who looked more savage than he really was.

Zbyszko lost no time in throwing Pedrof around the ring. He stood him on his head and almost tied him in a sailor's knot. After four minutes of wrestling, the Pole picked the Russian up, waved him around his head like a flag, and threw him down in a heap. It was a body lift and toss hold.

MILLER WINS ROAD RACE.

Breaks Own Record in Trans-Desert Classic.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Nov. 3.—Breaking the record for the El Paso-Phoenix road race, made by himself in 1914, Hugh B. Miller of Phoenix today won the trans-desert classic of 540.8 miles at an average speed of 41.3 miles an hour. The 1914 record was 37.1. The race, begun at El Paso yesterday morning, was marred by three deaths, two caused by an accident and a third by shooting of a driver by persons who said they shot at a target on the roadside.

S. O. Butterff of El Paso and his mechanician, Floyd Brown, were killed when their car overturned at a curve near Vail today. John T. Hutchins of El Paso was fatally shot by a rifle bullet fired from a party of eight a few miles from El Paso yesterday. The eight have been arrested.

As winner Miller received $8,451.10 of the $12,073 purse. R. A. Durio of Las Cruces, N. M., was second, and W. J. Taberof, Tucson, Ariz., third.

SIMPSON NAMED AS COACH.

Kansas City Report Indicates Hurdler Has Ended Amateur Career.

The amateur athletic acreer of Bob Simpson, regarded as one of the best hurdlers ever developed in this country, has apparently ended, according to a report from Kansas City, which announces that the champion and record-holder has been appointed coach of the University of Missouri track and field squad. Although the report would indicate a change to professionalism, there is nothing in it to convey definitely whether the champion timber-topper is to receive pay for his services as coach or not. Under the rules of the A. A. U., Simpson would not professionalize himself if he accepted the position as coach without remuneration. It is entirely probable, however, that Simpson is to be paid for his work, since Frank Schulte, who formerly coached at Missouri and who is accepted as responsible for the development of Simpson into a great hurdler, is now attached to the University of Nebraska as coach.

This is the first intimation that Simpson has been planning to retire from amateur track and field activity. The big Missourian made his last competitive appearance in the national A. A. U. championships in Philadelphia last September, when he captured both the 120-yard high and 220-yard low hurdles titles. The rangy timber-topper represented the Illinois A. C. in the Philadelphia meet, which marked his return to the American cinderpath after successfully carrying the colors of Uncle Sam in his specialties at the interallied games held in Pershing Stadium, near Paris, last June and July.

Simpson first won the high hurdle championship in 1916, when he created a championship record of 14 4-5 seconds for the event. In gaining this title last September, the Missourian covered the distance two-fifths of a second slower than in 1916. Simpson holds the world's record for the low hurdles race, although the mark has not yet been officially accepted by the International Amateur Athletic Federation, which has jurisdiction over world's records. Twice, in 1916, the Missourian covered 120 yards over the high fences in 14 3-5 seconds, eclipsing the best previous figures, credited to F. C. Smithson, in 1908, by two-fifths of a second. Simpson made his first record in May at Columbia, Mo. On the same day he equaled the world's record of 23 3-5 seconds for the 220-yard low hurdles. A week later Simpson came back and registered a similar performance at Evanston, Ill., turning a 120-yard high hurdle race in 14 3-5 seconds.

BOXERS READY FOR BOUTS.

Four Promising Matches to be Held in Newark Armory Tonight.

The qualifications of Joe Benjamin, California lightweight, to recognition as a championship contender will be disclosed this evening at the First Regiment Armory, Newark, N. J., when he boxes Joe Welling in one of four eight-round bouts arranged by the officials of the Newark Sportsmen's Club. The other bouts will be between Johnny Dundee and Tommy Touhey, Augie Ratner and Soldier Bartfield, and Benny Valger and Johnny Drummie. In addition to these matches a four-round preliminary will be staged, making a total of thirty-six rounds of boxing scheduled for the evening.

The Benjamin-Welling match has attracted unusual attention, according to the reports of Promoter Dave Mackay. The Californian's claims to recognition as a championship possibility have been indorsed by Benny Leonard, the title holder, and his manager, Billy Gibson. Leonard has been training with Benjamin and declares Welling is in for a surprise. The public's interest in the match is reflected in the advance sale of tickets. Promoter Mackay declared last night he expected a record crowd.

The participants in the other three bouts were all reported in excellent shape after concluding their training yesterday. Dundee, fresh from his bout against Willie Jackson last Friday night, is ready for Touhey, the rugged little Paterson lightweight, who recently gave an exhibition of gameness against Jackson which has seldom been excelled. Ratner, former amateur champion, is confident he will triumph over Bartfield, the sturdy Brooklynite. Valger, with the confidence gained by his recent knockout victory over Jimmy Hill of Australia, declares he will knock out Drummie.

PREPARES FOR PITT GAME.

W. and J. Has Final Scrimmage Before Meeting Panthers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Penn., Nov. 3.—The Washington and Jefferson football squad had the first practice of any consequence today since the Syracuse game ten days ago. Coach Morrow was unable all last week to work his men on account of flooded grounds and was plainly worried by the inactivity. Today he managed to find a fairly dry level spot on the golf course of the Washington Country Club, where he staged the final scrimmage before the game with Pitt next Saturday.

The 'Varsity was sent into the fray with the scrubs, and it will go against the Panthers as follows: Left end, Captain Carroll; left tackle, Stein; left guard, Bovill; centre, Shields; right guard, Straw; right tackle, Garbisch; right end, Loucks; quarter back, Bixler; left half back, Erickson; right half back, Ellson; full back, Smith.

The strictest secrecy was maintained in today's work. No one was permitted on the golf course and student guards kept every one away from the vicinity of the club grounds while Morrow tried out his team in plays designed especially for Pitt. Bovill made his first appearance on the team as a guard and showed adaptability. He worked like a Trojan and no less a star than Stein, who played beside him, said he was confident that Bovill would be able to fill the bill Saturday. The 'Varsity worked the new plays, as well as the old formations, with accuracy and precision.

MOUNTAINEERS CELEBRATE.

Classes and Practice Called Off as Result of Victory Over Princeton.

Special to The New York Times.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 3.—As a result of West Virginia's victory over Princeton on Saturday President Trotter proclaimed today a holiday and a great celebration took place here. A mass meeting of the entire student body was held this morning, and speeches were made by President Trotter, Coach McIntyre, and several of the players. After this there was a parade headed by the cadet band. The players occupied places on a wagon drawn by the freshmen.

It was the greatest celebration seen at W. V. U. for many years. Coach McIntyre called practice off and gave the men a much-needed rest.

BOXER PERRY DIES.

Chicago Bantamweight Injured in Bout with New Yorker.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 3.—Thomas Perry, Chicago's bantamweight boxer, who was injured in his bout with Sammy Marinoof New York here last Friday night, died this afternoon at Emergency Hospital, where he had hovered between life and death for three days. Death was caused by a fracture of the skull, according to Coroner S. N. Franklin.

Perry was injured about two minutes after the start of the tenth round. Up to the time of the accident he had outfought Marino in every round, according to newspaper men.

LIPTON REACHES HALIFAX.

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 3.—Sir Thomas Lipton, owner of the yacht Shamrock IV, challenger for the Am[illegible], arrived here today from Liverpool on the steamship Carmania. Sir Thomas is on his way to New York to inspect his yacht, which has been in drydock since 1914.

Sir Thomas said he would spend only a few days in America at this time, but would return later for a longer stay. Next Spring, he said, he would send over his 23-meter yacht to race against his challenger in her trial trips.

HARVARD REGULARS IN BRISK WORKOUT

Many 'Varsity Players Who Have Been Doing Side-Line Duty Rejoin Crimson Squad.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 3.—The Harvard football team started its week in good spirits. There was a wholesale return to play of men who have been doing side-line duty, and, for the first time in a long while, the coaches saw the eleven on which they have been banking for the Crimson's game against Princeton Saturday intact and in good trim.

Today, although the field was wet, even the players who worked against the Springfield Y. M. C. A. as regulars on Saturday were scrimmaged against the scrubs. Bob Fisher made one important decision as the result of Saturday's game. Havemeyer and not A. Horween will start the game against the Jerseymen at centre. Havemeyer has been in the regular berth since Philbin dropped out because of an injury a few weeks ago. He is not as heavy as Horween, but the latter showed against Springfield that only one more week's practice would be too short to make him absolutely reliable for Harvard's first big game.

It is probable, however, that Horween will be held in the line, for he worked with Philbin as centre with the substitute lineup this afternoon. As he is one of Harvard's best and most powerful backs for line plays and has no superior on the squad for all round close and open defense he is not likely to be lost altogether as a back-field possibility.

There is a feeling that Horween will be groomed to play centre for the Yale game, and, unless there is tremendous demand for Horween's power in the Princeton game, he is not likely to be used back of the line.

Jack Desmond was out again today in his old place at left end, where Ryan also worked for a time. Sedgwick, whose place at left tackle was usurped by Hubbard during the former's absence, also was in action, but Hubbard played too versatile football against Springfield to be side-tracked. Fisher used Murray, Casey, Burnham, and Humphrey in the back field, this being the combination that scored three touchdowns against Springfield, and there will not be any change before Saturday unless some one is hurt.

Phinney and R. Horween both were out in playing togs today and by Wednesday will be allowed to play football. With all the other men in such good trim it will be surprising if either Phinney or R. Horween will be considered available for the Princeton game. Both probably will work Wednesday and Thursday, but hardly will be tough enough by Saturday to take punishment.

The Harvard second team tried its hand at Princeton plays against both regulars and substitutes today. A former freshman coach, G. Waterbury, and an old 'Varsity half back who has been watching Princeton, was on hand to direct the work. There was a lot of snap to the scrimmage, considering the condition of the field. Against Springfield the Crimson defense against forward passes was weak, and Princeton is expected to have a well-organized overhead game prepared. The main task of the week for the Cambridge coaches will be to remedy weaknesses against this style of play.

CALLAHAN BACK IN LINEUP.

Yale Captain Will Play in Remaining Games of Football Season.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 3.—Yale's 'Varsity football players were today given their first Monday scrimmage of the season following a Saturday game. The decision of the coaches to order it was a surprise and is interpreted as representing dissatisfaction with the Eli attack. The presence of such former stars and valued advisers as Arthur Howe, former captain and head coach; Pudge Heffelfinger, Ted Lilley and George Moseley indicated that a message for assistance had been sent out by the resident coaching staff.

Captain Tim Callahan was in his old rôle as snap back for the first time in weeks. His muscle bruise seemed to have disappeared and the coaches expect to use him regularly till the season closes. Billy Galvin, who has been his understudy, played a brilliant game on the second team, the first half. Kenneth Hamill, who replaced him, injured his knee and retired, but it was stated that the injury would not prevent his playing against Brown Saturday. Leon Walker was the only 'Varsity regular who was given a layoff, Calhoun of the third team replacing him at right tackle.

In the twenty-minute scrimmage between the first and second 'Varsity elevens, Herbert Kempton's running back of punts paved the way for the only two touchdowns made. He caught a kick of the veteran, Chester Laroche, to the second team's forty-yard line and ran it back for the score, dodging several tacklers. Laroche ran the second eleven well, but punted short several times. Kempton's catch of a punt by Donald Welles, five minutes later, resulted in his skimming the chalk lines for thirty yards, placing the ball at the second team's twenty-yard mark. Webb and Neville alternated at smashing centre, Webb finally going through for the score.

Eddie Eagan, the pugilist, who won the middle weight tournament of the army forces in Paris early this Summer, starred for the second team in the second half, which was played with the seconds and the scrubs as rivals. Eagan's repeated runs led the attack and he finally took the ball across for the only score made.

After Strenuous Four Weeks Regulars Remain on Side Lines.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 3.—With the Brown, Cornell, Princeton, and Dartmouth games over with, the Colgate coaching staff today set about preparing for the remaining two games of the season, with Rochester next Saturday and the Syracuse game on the Saturday following. The game with Rochester next Saturday is at present the concern of the coaches. While the game with the Orange is naturally troubling them also, they have shown no desire of starting preparations for it with a rush.

This afternoon they had all the first-string men on the resting list, and it is expected that quite a few of them will remain on the side lines tomorrow. Wednesday's practice should see every man in uniform. At that time the coaches will begin to get ready for the hard battle they expect from the strong Orange team. This afternoon real preparation for the Rochester game was begun, in spite of the absence of the first-string men.

It is highly improbable that the men who have played in the other battles will play in the Rochester contest. Nevertheless, some of the 'Varsity men will be called upon to line up against Rochester. But the greater part of the team that will start the game will be second-string men.

The condition of the 'Varsity, which lasted through the grueling battle with Dartmouth on Saturday with the exception of Laird, is better, on the average, than it has been after any of the previous battles of the Maroons.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Nov. 3.—Walter Pipp, first baseman of the New York American League team, was married here today to Miss Nina M. Powers, a Grand Rapids girl. Mr. and Mrs. Pipp will leave at once for Cuba on their honeymoon trip. Walter will play ball while in Cuba. The Yankee player's age was given as 26 and Miss Powers's as 24.

SECRET PRACTICE FOR TIGER ELEVEN

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 3.—No one, except the players and coaches, was admitted to the Palmer Memorial Stadium this afternoon. Bill Roper had his entire 'Varsity squad behind closed gates, but what he did with them is apparently for him to know and for the world to guess.

The weather man ended up his most capricious week of the entire Fall campaign in a burst of rain and mud on Saturday for the West Virginia game, but from the weather he served today he seems to have rid himself of all his inclement habits.

Throughout last week there was scarcely a day fit for practice, but this afternoon's atmosphere had a crispness about it that bespoke real football days to follow, and all indications point to an ideal week for the final conditioning of the men for the Harvard game.

The Orange and Black players came out of the West Virginia game unscathed except for a minor injury to Jack McGraw which will keep the Tiger leader on the side lines for a couple of afternoons.

This afternoon's drill consisted mainly of work calculated to loosen up the muscles of the men who went through the West Virginia contest. The second string players went through a stiff workout in preparation for the struggles which are on the schedule for this week between the 'Varsity and Team B.

Scrimmage will be the order of the day again tomorrow. The men did not get much of it last week and Maury Trimble, Don Lourie, and Hank Garrity, all of whom are booked to start in the back field on Saturday, according to present indications, did not get into any workouts.

Trimble was held out of the game against the West Virginia so that he would be in the best of condition for the game with the Crimson. Lourie and Garrity have recovered from their injuries, but Howard Opie, Chan Sweet, and Truman Penney, all first string backs, are still on the hospital list.

With the exception of a minor injury to Jack McGraw the Tigers came through Saturday's fray unscathed. While not serious, the bruise will serve to keep him on the side lines for a couple of afternoons.

The lines need strengthening, but it will take this week's drills to show how Roper is going to do it.

Stan Keck is still on the injured list and his absence from his regular place at left tackle makes a big hole in the line. This means that Lynch will probably play tackle on the 'Varsity for a few days at least. Parisette will be the other tackle.

Roper has Dickinson, Baker, Halsey, Morgan, and Rothschild to pick his guards combination from. Dickinson and Rothschild seem to have the call at the present time.

Mike Callahan and Whitey Thomas are having a merry tussle at the pivot position. Frosty Williams and Puffy Bigler by their work Saturday laid a strong claim to the regular end positions, but Hal Harvey and Shad Davis are pressing them hard.

COLUMBIA GATES LOCKED.

Eleven Practices in Secret for Game with Stevens Saturday.

Spectators were barred from South Field yesterday afternoon while the Columbia 'Varsity, behind closed doors, was doing its best to get the Union game out of its system. Every first-string player except Eddie Quigley and Tower reported to Coach Dawson. Tower is suffering from a leg injury, but it is so slight that he is expected to be on hand for the next workout on Wednesday. Quigley will probably don a uniform at the same time.

New trick plays to be used against Stevens next Saturday were drilled into the 'Varsity yesterday by Coach Dawson in a long signal practice. No scrimmaging was held.

Various theories were advanced during the afternoon by both players and students to account for the suprising result of Saturday's game. The explanation most persistently advanced by the players was that a mixup of signals on the part of a line man in the third period killed all chances for a touchdown. The play in question occurred after Charlie Shaw had dashed around right end for some forty yards, and Captain Canapary, rushed into the breach from the side lines, had taken the ball to the 15-yard line on a line buck. Two plays through the line added six yards, and on the third play Eccles called for a special formation for a quarter back run. The shift was successful and Eccles had a large hole ahead of him, but was blocked by one of his own line men, who had misunderstood the play.

The students, on the other hand, prefer to blame it on the mud and rain, and to some extent on the absense of Quigley and Canapary. They are as optimistic as ever, and confidently expect that Columbia will give Stevens its first drubbing next Saturday. The engineers have a clean slate thus far, and are certain to prove stubborn opponents for the Blue and White. A large delegation of rooters will accompany the eleven. At the Columbia athletic office yesterday it was said that the entire north stand had already been reserved by the Hoboken students and alumni.

NAVY PLAYER BREAKS LEG.

Injury to Bolles Will Keep Him Out for Remainder of Season.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 3.—The Naval Academy football squad has sustained its first serious accident of the year in a broken leg received by Bolles, a promising tackle candidate, who entered the academy with the last class. It was not generally noticed that he entered the game against West Virginia Wesleyan on Saturday toward its close and was taken out after a few minutes. It was found that his leg was broken, and of course, he will play no more this season. It was his first chance on the regular team.

The rest of the squad is in good shape. Clark and Rawlings, both backfield men, who were taken out of the game on Saturday, are hurt but slightly, Rawlings somewhat more severely than Clark, but both are expected to be available against Georgetown next Saturday.

Practice this week will be specially in preparation for Georgetown, which is expected to give the hardest fight of any team which plays at Annapolis this year. Feeling is always strong and games between the two in recent years have been fought with desperation. The practice was short this afternoon, and consisted of signal and formation work and kicking.

N. Y. U. EXPECTS VICTORY.

Comparative Scores Favor Local Eleven to Beat Trinity Today.

A long signal drill on Ohio Field constituted the New York University football team's final workout yesterday in preparation for the meeting today with Trinity College on the local field. Coaches Longwell and Gargan watched their charges closely, and at the end of the session voiced their satisfaction as to the condition of the team.

The eleven which faces Trinity today will be much changed from the one which opposed R. P. I. The line, which appeared to be the Violet's weakest spot, will be a tower of strength today. The presence of Captain Cann at tackle is the chief means by which the forwards have been strengthened.

On the ends Levin and Jackson will probably serve. The former has been playing a steady game all season and has taken care of one wing successfully. The other flank has been weak, and the shifting of Jackson from the backfield to this place will remedy this fault. Jackson excels in forward passes and he will strengthen the Violet's aerial attack.

By comparative scores, the New York eleven will have the edge on its opponents. The Violet lost to Amherst by the close score of 2 to 0. This defeat was due to a bad pass from centre with a wet ball. The Hartford team, however, was beaten by Amherst by 48 to 7, which looks well for the locals. The last time that the two teams met, in 1917, they played a 0 to 0 tie.

The Violet lineup will probably be as follows:

RUTGERS PROMISES FIGHT.

Sanford Will Unveil New Offensive Plays Against Syracuse Today.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Nov. 3.—Methods and not players win football games. "Rutgers has been rationally developed all season, and the result ought to show in the Syracuse game in New York," declared Coach Sanford tonight, on the eve of the battle with the Orange.

A big shift in the lineup was made in a last-minute effort to strengthen the backfield. French and Dufft will both be missing tomorrow, and Gardner is in poor shape. Storck, who has played all season at end, will appear in the backfield, and Troupe, who has played guard and tackle, will replace him on the end. Garrett has been shifted to the other wing position. Scudder, a substitute centre, will be played at guard.

The team is full of confidence, and the men appear certain that Syracuse is going to get a rough jolt in its expectations of an easy victory. Sanford's team has a way of seizing every opportunity, and the game is bound to be one of the treats of the season for New York gridiron fans.

For the first time this year Rutgers will use its new offensive plays, and Sanford promises a number of surprises.

The lineup tomorrow will be:

Garrett and Troupe, ends; Mount and Alexander, tackles; Scudder and Raub, guards; Runyon, centre; Baker, quarter back; Storck and Dufft, half backs; Gardner, full back.

DARTMOUTH GETS LAYOFF.

Team in Fair Condition After Colgate Game—"On to Pennsylvania!"

Special to The New York Times.

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 3.—Coach Spears gave the Dartmouth squad a layoff today to insure a complete rest. They came out of the hard Colgate game in fair physical condition, except for a few minor injuries and bruises, but nevertheless they will be worked as carefully as possible during the week in order to get them in the best of trim for the Pennsylvania game in New York Saturday.

"On to Pennsylvania" has been taken up by the college as a slogan, and everything possible will be done to add to the list of Dartmouth victories.

Dartmouth will not let up in the least as it considers Pennsylvania a most formidable opponent, and expects one of the hardest battles of the season.

STEVENS IN GOOD TRIM.

Football Team Has Plenty of Practice Time for Columbia Game.

Practice for the Stevens football players in preparation for their game with Columbia on Saturday started with a bang yesterday afternoon. Classes were not held in the afternoon, because of the holiday following, and this opportunity was taken to hold practice by daylight. As usual, classes will not be held Wednesday afternoon, and, with the full day today, the team will have more practice than in any week since the opening of college.

The team came out of the Rensselaer game on Saturday in good condition with all men reporting on the field for the week's first workouts. Coach Durborow started in with individual drills, to remedy some of the weak points. The usual forward passing and punting drills were given, with Ford shooting them out. Goodale, who has not been showing up so well with his kicking in the games as he has in practice, was plugging away for a while at that department.

Following these preliminary drills Captain Bloss ran his backs through a signal drill. The first and second teams then lined up for a scrimmage of about half an hour. The 'Varsity showed well in both offensive and defensive tactics.

SYRACUSE PRIMED FOR RUTGERS GAME

New York football fans will have the privilege of witnessing their second of the more important and interesting games of the Fall this afternoon at the Polo Grounds, when the wearers of the Orange from Syracuse, one of the most powerful elevens of the Fall, will tie up with Sanford's Rutgers team from New Brunswick, N. J.

The Syracuse eleven spent yesterday quietly in New York, most of the time at or in the vicinity of its hotel, the Pennsylvania, varying the monotony with a light signal drill in the afternoon at the Polo Grounds. The team was in good condition after its decisive defeat of Brown at Providence on Saturday, and will present practically the same line-up against Rutgers as against Brown. The Rutgers team spent last night in its home bailiwick and leaves for New York this morning. Rutgers, too, took no chances of injuring its men by scrimmage yesterday, but put in its time perfecting the special trick plays which Sanford has devised to spring upon the unsuspecting up-Staters.

Rutgers realizes that its only chance to obtain a position among the leading elevens of the East rests upon what it does against Syracuse today, and the eleven is prepared to throw all its resources into the fray without reserve. On the other hand, Syracuse has still to keep its hand partially hidden, in view of the fact that the main objective of Buck O'Neill's warriors is not the Rutgers or the Bucknell games this week, but the Colgate game the week following.

To Uncover New Plays.

Syracuse should win, but Rutgers, equally surely, will offer an excellent argument and the result will be a plenitude of good football at the Polo Grounds, starting promptly at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Rutgers' long injured list has now been reduced to a minimum, with Half Back French as the most important absentee. Several of the Rutgers team, which had a day off last Saturday, saw the Syracuse-Brown game at Providence and, with Sanford, have been trying to turn their observations into profit for today. Sanford is sure to spring a number of entirely new plays tomorrow that will add greatly to the interest and variety of the event.

Syracuse has by far the better record of the two teams to date. The Orange defeated Vermont, 27 to 0; the Army, 7 to 3; the mighty Pittsburgh eleven of Glenn Warner, 24 to 3, and Brown, 13 to 0. The only black mark on its record is its defeat by Washington and Jefferson, 13 to 0.

Rutgers has beaten Ursinus, 34 to 0; North Carolina, 19 to 0, and the New York Aggies, 14 to 0, e[illegible] the smallness of its score against the latter aggregation by the fact that Sanford insisted upon sticking strictly to line plays in that game in the hope of strengthening the work of his for[illegible]. Rutgers's one defeat, at the hands of Lehigh, by a score of 19 to 0, was one of the greatest setbacks the eleven from New Brunswick has received in several years, and it is in the hopes of coming back from that reverse that Sanford's eleven will put forth particularly desperate effort today.

The probable lineup will be:

SYRACUSE.		RUTGERS.
Brown	L. E.	Troupe
Hoople	L. T.	Mount
Alexander	L. G.	Raub
Robertson	C.	Runyon
Gulick	R. G.	Scudder
Segal	R. T.	Alexander
Schwarzer	R. E.	Garrett
Ackley	Q. B.	Baker
F llon	L. H. B.	Storck
Abbott	R. H. B.	Dufft
Parker	F. B.	Gardner

N. Y. U. vs. Trinity.

Another treat for New York football fans will be presented by the New York University and Trinity elevens, which will meet at Ohio Field at 2 o'clock. These two teams have met but one common enemy—Amherst—and their comparative showing against the Massachusetts eleven is all in the favor of N. Y. U.

Trinity has lost two games and won two this Fall. The Hartford eleven defeated the Connecticut Aggies, 6 to 0, and Worcester Tech, 20 to 7, losing its Princeton game, 28 to 0, besides its game with Amherst 2 to 0. N. Y. U. has been beaten by Hamilton, 9 to 0, and by the powerful Wesleyan eleven, 10 to 0, in addition to its defeat by Amherst, 48 to 7, and Saturday won its first game of the season from Rensselaer, 9 to 0.

The probable lineup of the teams follows:

N. Y. UNIVERSITY.		TRINITY.
Parkhurst	L. E.	Nordlund
Cann	L. T.	Johnson
Martindale	L. G.	Donlin
Brin	C.	Br slin
MacCumber	R. G.	Budd
Storey	R. T.	Jackson
Jackson	R. E.	Tansill
Gilloon	Q. B.	Lynch
Alderman	L. H. B.	Jarvis
Weinheimer	R. H. B.	Foley
Cohen	F. B.	Mazzoni

INTERCLUB GOLF TO FEATURE 1920

New York A. C., Crescent A. C., and Boston A. A. Likely to Meet in Tourneys Next Year.

An entirely new field of golf competition for next year is being planned during these post-season days as a result of the activities of A. H. Pogson, the busy Secretary of the Metropolitan Golf Association. For seven years the New York Athletic Club has had annual tournaments for its linksmen members, and a week ago held its latest series at Fox Hills under the direction of Pogson, who is the club Chairman of the Tournament Committee. Beginning with next season present indications are that the New York A. C. will meet in competition the Crescent A. C. of Brooklyn and possibly the Boston A. A. Golf will then assume the same interest in interclub and intercity competitions as the track, hockey, and tennis meetings have enjoyed in the past.

Secretary Pogson yesterday said that arrangements were now being made for at least one golf tournament during the season of 1920 between the two largest athletic clubs of New York, the New York A. C. and the Crescent A. C. Several weeks ago, before the New York A. C. club tourney, Pogson communicated with the Brooklyn rivals and received assuring responses that such a proposed rivalry on the links would be welcomed with enthusiasm. Then, on account of the lateness of the season, the plan was postponed until next year. The two clubs will get together to complete arrangements early in the next golfing year and schedule the tourney during the height of the season on the links, probably during the month of July.

Many details remain to be discussed, such as the size of the teams, the system of scoring, the method of making the pairings, whether to play eighteen or thirty-six holes, and the selection of the course. In the meantime the Crescent A. C. will stir up interest in golf among its large membership so that the advantage will not be too much on the side of the New Yorkers next year. The New York A. C. appears a certain winner of such a tourney, since many of the leading golfers in the district are members there, including such low handicap players as Pogson, L. W. Hamilton, E. H. Driggs, Jr., A. Elliot Ranney, Hamilton K. Kerr, Pierre A. Proal, and W. L. Richard.

Another match between two athletic clubs was postponed this year by the lateness of the season on the links. Last week overtures were made by the Boston Athletic Association to the New York A. C., proposing an inter-club team meeting in Boston. Unofficially the idea was received at Fifty-ninth Street with approbation, but since the proposed matches could not be played before this week or next, the opinion was unanimous that it was too near Winter to provide good golfing. Albert Geiger, Jr., Chairman of the B. A. A., sent the invitation, outlined tentative plans for such a series, and suggested the links at the Country Club in Boston as the scene of play. In both cities the idea is heralded as the forerunner of annual clashes between the two big clubs, and it appears almost certain that beginning next year the meetings will be made annual events, played on the home-and-home basis.

Boston can claim as strong a team as the New Yorkers. Members of the B. A. A. who are prominent on the links include Claude M. Hart, P. W. Whittemore, C. D. Wadsworth, Tom Ashley, T. F. Tully, W. E. Carleton, and R. W. Sanford.

The proposed matches among the New York A. C., Crescent A. C., and the Boston A. A. would have more value in stimulating enthusiastic competition than in the actual golfing. It is easy to imagine that in some years one or two of the clubs would be able to marshal a full dozen members of the golf team who are handicapped as low as three or four in the district, whereas the other clubs might have only mediocre players on the rolls. Such a situation would tend to make the meeting one-sided, but the bringing together of present and former leaders in sports, the friendly rivalry on the links and the merrymaking and dinners that would be sure to follow the matches at the clubhouses would round out enjoyable days.

O'Dowd in Paterson Bout Tonight.

Mike O'Dowd of St. Paul, middle weight champion, will make his appearance in Paterson, N. J., this evening, when he clashes with Billy Kramer, a Milwaukee middleweight, in the principal event of eight rounds at the Lyceum A. C. This will be the fourth bout between O'Dowd and Kramer. Immediately after the bout, O'Dowd will leave for Detroit, where he will begin training for a contest against Butch O'Hagen of Albany, scheduled for Nov. 10. The middleweight champion is also signed for a bout against Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul phantom, which is scheduled to be decided in St. Paul Nov. 22.

TIPPITY WITCHET SHOWS BEST FORM

BEATS FLAGS AND PAPP

Broomstick's Son Wins by Length and Half—Pays $30.20 for $2 in Mutuels.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 3.—George W. Loft's Tippity Witchet, which was one of the top notch sprinters of last season, gave convincing evidence here today that he has once more reached the top of his form. This son of Broomstick captured the Stafford Handicap at six furlongs, defeating a field of some of the best horses in training at this track. He led home the Beach Stable's Flags by a length and a half, while W. T. Wilkinson's Papp was third.

This race brought out the best performers that were seen on the Monday card, and it was a good contest all the way from the barrier to the finish. Among the other starters were Peter Piper, Out the Way, Cobalt Lass, and Ophelia, all of them good at the distance and so weighted that they were well matched.

Tippity Witchet was favored by the light impost of 102 pounds, and undoubtedly the pull in the weights had much to do with his victory. There was a time when Tippity was certain to have a heavy impost any time he started, but he was late getting into shape this year and his earlier performances won him a lighter weight assignment.

Tippity lacked early speed and was last at one time, but Jockey Pierce gave him the assistance of an intelligent ride, saved ground at the last turn, and brought him home with a rush which disposed of Flags, which carried the top weight of 119 pounds and which had run only Saturday against Billy Kelly, Luculite, and others of that stamp.

Papp Behaves Badly.

Flags went to the post about an equal favorite with Peter Piper, while Tippity Witchet was a long shot and paid $30.20 to holders of $2 mutuel tickets. There was considerable delay at the past, as Papp, which had formerly belonged to Mr. Loft, was on his usual bad behavior. He pranced about and would not line up. Had he acted better he might have won the race, since he had plenty of [illegible] settled down to run.

S. C. Hildreth's Out the Way lost no time getting to the front, and before reaching the first turn he was setting a dizzy pace. Peter Piper raced up with him, and the two were neck and neck for the next furlong or so, while Flags was always well up, but moving with his customary clumsy stride. Tippity Witchet was away well enough, but before he had gone far was next to last in the procession. Cobalt Lass, which lost her rider just after leaving the barrier, trailed the field.

Flags began to move up on the outside with Tippity at the turn and took advantage of a chance to sneak in on the rail turning into the stretch. This move saved him three lengths and brought him up among the leaders. But for saving ground Tippity would have been right off. Peter Piper stopped badly in the stretch, as did Out the Way, and both dropped out of the contest. Papp and Flags were having it out in the last furlong when Tippity Witchet came along with a rush and disposed of both of them to take the purse handily. Flags outgamed Papp in the last drive and saved the place with something to spare.

Boniface a Good Racer.

That Commander J. K. L. Ross has a good racer in Boniface was certain when this one scored in the sixth race for his third successive victory in a few days. Today he took the measure of John F. Schorr's aged Leochares in a mile test, which had but three starters. The other was Duke John, which had a nice exercise jaunt some distance behind the two that fought it out. Boniface was a favorite and ran true to form. He raced nose and nose with Leochares to the last turn, when Sande let him have his head and he drew away to win with considerable ease. Leochares had plenty of speed for seven furlongs but, when the test came, he could not keep up with his younger rival.

The Mount Washington Steeplechase, at two and a half miles, was one of the closest contests of the day, and proved that J. H. Lewis's Max Meadows is better than Hal Parr's Smithfield under the conditions which prevailed. He won the purse in a driving finish, gaining the decision by a nose. It was so close that there was much difference of opinion among those in the stands as to the winner. However, Max Meadows got his nose in front, and the decision of the judges was fair.

These two raced away from Clootz, which was the only one left to trail them after Doretta fell at the first turn of the field. Smithfield opened up a big gap at one time, and seemed to have the race in hand, but Byers waited with his mount until the last three-quarters of a mile, when he began to move up, and finally caught the leader. Smithfield put up a game finish, but was tiring and could not extend himself further in the last few yards.

R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s, Simpleton captured the Druid Hill Park Purse, for two-year-olds, from a field of good juveniles. The track was just soft enough for this mud lark, and, after trailing his field to the head of the stretch, he came on to win handily. My Dear was second and Goldine third. Flibberty Gibbet, son of Peter Pan, which has a world of speed, set a dizzy pace, and was three lengths in front at the last turn, but he tired suddenly in the stretch and dropped back so fast that he was out of the money in the next sixteenth of a mile.

A Double Triumph.

Sam Lewis's Jean Bullant won the opening event of the day, a six-furlong sprint for two-year-old maidens, defeating Anzac and Gain de Cause among others. With this victory Max Hirsch scored a double triumph, as he also saddled Tippity Witchet. Jean Bullant led all the way and won by nearly two lengths. Locust leaves, which was one of the well supported starters, was off badly and was never able to get up among the leaders.

J. E. Stinker's Joyful, which won on his last start, came back with another victory in the second race at a mile, defeating Daedue and Mint Cat. Hindostan raced with the pace in this race but was outclassed, and, when the test came, he dropped back to be badly beaten. Joyful remained close up and took the lead when Jockey Johnson was ready.

HUGGINS TAKES UP WORK ON 1920 TEAM

Plans Changes in Catching Corps and Outfield—A. L. Directors Meet Here Tomorrow.

Activity concerning the Yankees of 1920 is already under way. Manager Miller Huggins arrived unexpectedly at the local offices yesterday, coming here from his home in Cincinnati, and for a few days he will busy himself with plans for the next campaign, the same concerning players, training camp, and numerous other details which must be attended to in the off season.

At the present time the roster of the Yankees is close to limit proportions, and many of the players who were recalled at the close of the 1919 season must be marked for another trial in the majors or a return to the sticks. Huggins expects to have a conference today with Colonels Ruppert and Huston, owners of the club, and Business Manager Harry Sparrow in regard to regard to reducing the reserve list and deciding upon the players to be turned back, so as to be in readiness to put certain deals through before the new year.

All indications point to a return to Jacksonville, Fla., as the training quarters in 1920, but this point has not been definitely settled. Huggins is perfectly satisfied with conditions at Jacksonville, and is hesitating only through fear that he might lose some fine opportunity by closing too quickly for the Jacksonville park. A strong point in favor of Jacksonville is the fact that the Brooklyn club will return to the Florida metropolis, and this permits of a special Spring series which provides the best of practice for the players, and also helps to wipe out the heavy expense of a training trip. Invitations have been received from California cities, but it is not likely that the Yankees will make the transcontinental tour.

In regard to the makeup of his club in 1920 Huggins declared yesterday that he was satisfied with the pitching staff and the infield, but probably would make changes in his catching staff and in the outfield. One of his veteran catchers is to be let out, and the makeup of the outfield is very much in doubt. Huggins still hopes to have Frank Baker on third base next season, but if the Trappe mauler sticks to his retirement idea Fewster will get the place, thereby reducing the outfield possibilities. Fewster did good work in the outfield during the latter part of the recent season, and probably will be a regular in 1920 in the event of Baker returning to the club. Huggins hopes to put through a deal for an outfielder before the Winter is over.

The agitation against the spitball and other freak deliveries is not causing Huggins much concern. He takes no positive stand in favor of the proposed legislation or against it. A ban on the delivery would affect only one Yankee boxman, Jack Quinn. As Quinn has been a spitball pitcher for ten years, he would lose much of his effectiveness with the delivery barred. Huggins believes that any rule against freak deliveries should allow the boxmen at least one season of grace before becoming effective.

The Yankee manager, since leaving New York a month ago, heard glowing reports about Collins, a right hand pitcher whom the Yankees purchased from the Dallas club of the Texas League. Collins stands 6 feet 4 inches in height and his work during the last few weeks of the Texas League season was highly sensational. Bob Connery, who discovered the big boxman, insists that he is almost ready now for major league company.

The National Commission a few days ago ruled that the American League should answer the question of whether the Yankees or Tigers finished third in the recent pennant race, the decision being the result of the protest by President Frank Navin of the Detroit club that third place money should not be awarded to the Yankees. An answer will be made by the Board of Directors of the league tomorrow, but the commission may ignore the finding, in view of the strained relations now existing between the board members and the remainder of the league.

The meeting of the Directors has been called by Charles A. Comiskey, Jacob Ruppert, and Henry H. Fraxee, constituting a majority of the board. James C. Dunn of Cleveland also is a member and Ban Johnson is an ex-officio member, but neither is likely to attend. In the call it is announced that the protest of the Detroit club on all games in which Carl Mays pitched for the Yankees will be considered, as will the demands of certain New York players for their share of the third place money from the world's series.

President David L. Fultz of the International League has called a special meeting of the club owners for this city tomorrow to take action on changes in the circuit and also to consider the draft question, on which point there is a difference of opinion among the club owners. The National Association will meet next week at Springfield, Mass., and the International Leaguers will decide upon the stand to be taken by their organization on many questions which the big meeting of the minor league delegates will bring out.

Selection of a city to take the place of Binghamton may be made tomorrow. Montreal is anxious to return to the league, and may be accommodated. Syracuse is in a receptive mood, but the owners are not so strong for the Salt City. Providence is the choice of the International League Directors, but that city is now identified with the Eastern League and the latter organization hardly will consent to giving up this valuable territory.

The club owners of the Fultz circuit are not of one mind on the draft question. President Fultz and some of the club owners favor a continuation of the draft exemption, under which the minors operated during the last season. Other club Presidents, including C. T. Chapin of Rochester and Jim McCaffery of Toronto, contend that the majors should be allowed to draft players.

The Brooklyn club continues to sign players for the 1920 season. The latest addition to the ranks of the Robins is Paul F. Schreiber, a left-handed pitcher from Jacksonville, Fla. Schreiber is 19 years of age, close to 6 feet in height, and weighs about 190 pounds. He was a star in the City League at Jacksonville and has had no professional experience.

SYRACUSE RUNNERS ENTER.

Syracuse University's cross-country team will make a bid for the national A. A. U. hill and dale title in the annual contest Saturday over the Van Cortlandt Park championship course of six miles. This was announced yesterday, when the entry of the up-State runners was received by Frederick W. Rubien, Secretary-Treasurer of the A. A. U. Up to the time that local A. A. U. headquarters closed last night eight teams had entered, and seven cross-country runners had sent individual entries. This number may be augmented when the mails are opened this morning, for, although the entries closed yesterday, any blanks arriving in this morning's mail will be accepted by the committee.

The other organizations to enter teams include the Morningside A. C., winners of the team title last year; the Paulist A. C., Mohawk A. C., St. Anselms A. C., Finnish-American A. C., St. Christopher Club and Yonkers Y. M. C. A.

Vic Voteretas and Charles De Stefano, Millrose A. A. stars, have sent in their names as individual entries, and are regarded as likely contenders for the title. George Cornetta of the New York A. C., and Terry Halpine, unattached, have also entered as individuals. The other prospective starters without team affiliations are Joseph Soukop, St. Anselms A. C.; P. Parks, unattached, and William Johanning, unattached.

Leslie May Join Loughlin Team.

The Loughlin Lyceum track and field squad will probably soon be strengthened by the addition of Sid Leslie, former Long Island A. C. and Thirteenth Regiment distance runner, who is now competing unattached. No official information on the situation has been forthcoming, but it is understood that officials of the Brooklyn organization are eager to acquire Leslie's services, and that Leslie is seriously considering throwing in his lot with the Loughlin Lyceum.

BILLIARD STARS IN CHAMPIONSHIP PLAY

Interest in billiards is now centred in the national three-cushion championship, to be held in Cleveland beginning on Thursday of this week and continuing through Nov. 19. With ten of the best players competing it promises to be the best event of its kind ever held in this country. It will be staged along the same lines and under similar rules to those which governed the balkline tournament in this city, and will govern the pocket billiard championship in Philadelphia in December.

Those who will compete for the title follow: Robert L. Cannefax of St. Louis, the champion who relinquished the trophy so that the tourney might be held; Pierre Maupome of Milwaukee, Clarence Jackson of Detroit, Charles Otis of Brooklyn, Charles McCourt of Cleveland, Teff Denton of Kansas City, Byron Gillette of Buffalo, Otto Reiselt of Chicago, Jess Lean of Cincinnati, and Hugh Hearn of Toledo. It is a truly representative list, and the matches should be productive of some excellent three-cushion caroms.

The winner will be the recognized champion. He will receive a trophy emblematic of the championship, a cash prize of $1,500, a salary of $2,400 a year, and will go on tour for eighteen weeks. The player finishing second will get $1,250, third $1,000, and fourth $750. The champion will hold his title for a year, and will not be compelled to defend it until the next tournament is held.

It will be a round robin tournament consisting of forty-five matches. The players are beginning to gather in Cleveland now to finish their practicing. Reports from the Ohio city indicate that those cue experts who are already on the ground are showing good form.

It will be the second of the three big national championship tournaments arranged for this season with the idea of stimulating interest in all styles of billiard play. For the last several years three-cushion billiards has been steadily growing in popularity until now it probably boasts more followers than any other style of competition, with the possible exception of pocket billiards. That accounts for the widespread interest being manifested in the tournament in Cleveland.

The event was limited to ten players and only those of established ability were permitted to enter. Although several of them are new to tournament play, they have shown enough ability in match play to make them appear dangerous, and there is every reason to believe the veterans will be pushed to the limit.

The local entry, Charley Otis, is playing better billiards this season than ever before. Not long ago he met Cannefax in a three nights' exhibition in Brooklyn and took the measure of the champion in impressive fashion. His execution was all that could be desired and his safety play completely baffled Cannefax. The result of the match was more or less of a surprise, for Cannefax had just previously beaten George Moore, a former champion, and seemed to be at the top of his game. As a result of this display on the part of Otis local followers of the sport expect him to make a creditable showing in the tournament. He has as good a chance as any one to annex the title.

MacManiman Defeats Lewis.

As a result of his victory over C. R. Lewis at the Brooklyn Billiard Academy last night M. P. MacManiman is leading in the Brooklyn 18.2 balkline billiard handicap tournament with two victories and no defeats. Lewis has been defeated in both his games. He lost last night by a score of 130 to 158. The winner made a high run of 23 and averaged 3 9-57. The loser who plays for 175 points, made a high run of 19 and averaged 2 42-58. This is the second week of play in the tournament. Twenty-five games remain to be played.

ENTRIES FOR TOURNAMENT.

Announce Eight of Players Who Will Play for Pocket Billiard Title.

The names of eight of the ten players who will compete in the national pocket billiard championship tournament at Philadelphia, Dec. 1 to 13, inclusive, have been officially announced. They are Bennie Allen of Kansas City, formerly champion; Jerome Keogh of Rochester, Ralph Greenleaf of Wilmington, Del.; Edward I. Ralph and Joseph Concannon of New York, John M. Layton of Columbia, Mo.; James Maturo, Colorado Springs, and Morris Fink of Philadelphia. The other two players will be determined by an elimination tournament to be held preliminary to the championship event.

Although Frank Taberski, the most recent holder of the title, has failed to enter the tourney the list is a representative one and includes practically all of the best professional pocket billiard players, who are now active in the game. Taberski is said to have declined to enter, claiming that a champion should not be compelled to play through and should only be called upon to defend his title against the winner of such an event. This is an entirely different stand to that taken by Willie Hoppe, who played through the recent balkline tournament in this city, and Robert L. Cannefax, who will play through the national three-cushion tournament to star in Cleveland on Thursday.

At present there is no champion at pocket billiards. The title is vacant. Taberski successfully defended the trophy against all challengers as prescribed by the rules governing championship play, and the emblem became his personal property. Under these rules when a condition of this kind exists the title is vacant. It is to establish undisputed champions in these three styles of play that the tourneys are being held.

The same conditions will govern this tournament that obtained in the balkline play and will control the three-cushion event. The winner will be the recognized champion, will receive a trophy emblematic of the title, a cash prize of $1,500, an annuity of $2,400, and a salary while on a tour of eighteen weeks. The player finishing second will receive $1,500, third $1,000, and fourth $750.

COUSINS PLAY FOR PRIZE.

Robert Steinbugler Defeats Kin in Kings County Billiard Tourney.

Robert Steinbugler, playing from scratch, won the Kings County 18.2 balkline billiard tournament at the National Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night. He defeated his cousin, Charley Steinbugler, in the play-off of the tie that existed for first place, by a score of 150 to 77. The winner ran the game out with a high cluster of 37 points. The run was unfinished. He averaged 6 against 3 2-25 for his cousin. The score shows that Robert won by almost two to one, but it was an interesting game, particularly on the part of the winner.

He showed plenty of natural ability, and with a little more experience should develop into one of the best amateur balkline players in this vicinity. His position play was excellent, and he frequently made difficult massé shots during his best runs. Until the twenty-second inning the playing was close. But in that round Robert made a run of 18 and three innings later clinched the game with a run of 37. Charley's best effort was a run of 17, made in the twelfth inning.

FRANTZEN AND CRANE WIN.

Capture Matches at Three Cushions and Pocket Billiards, Respectively.

Two amateur tournaments were started at Doyle's Billiard Academy last night. Some of the best local players are entered in the three-cushion and pocket billiard events. At three cushions, Henry Frantzen won a close and interesting match from Herbert McKenzie by a score of 25 to 23 in fifty-nine innings. Alfredo de Oro, formerly professional champion, refereed. Both players made high runs of 4. The game was drawn out because of the frequent safety play resorted to by the two rivals. As the score shows they are both very evenly matched and neither was willing to take any chances.

In the pocket billiard tournament Raymond Crane defeated William Jopeland by a score of 50 to 24. The respective high runs were 14 and 10. These tournaments are warm ups for the American Amateur Billiard Association's championships at both styles of play which will be held in the near future.

SKATERS OPEN SEASON.

Leitch and Houseworth Winners in One-Mile Handicap Events.

Scratch skaters fared badly last night in the two one-mile handicap races which opened the indoor ice skating season at the 181st Street Ice Palace. The races were conducted for Class A and Class B skaters and attracted heavy entries. In the Class A event eighteen prize-seekers got away with the starting signal, while in the race for Class B skaters more than twenty participated.

Joe Moore of the Ice Palace team started from scratch in the Class A event, but suffered a fall after skating half of the distance and had to retire. This race went to A. L. Leitch of the Ice Palace, who had an allowance of 40 yards. Leitch skated the distance in 3:16 4-5. Donald Robinson, unattached, who started off the 65-yard mark, finished second, and Leslie Boyd of the Tremont Skating Club, who was allowed 55 yards, finished third.

John Houseworth, a 17-year-old skater of the Riverside Skating Club, showed promise in capturing the Class B handicap mile race. Houseworth made the most of a start of 60 yards and, jumping to the lead at once, went around the rink at a dizzy pace, winning handily from Raymond Dequet, a clubmate who started with a handicap of 20 yards. Victor Ornstedt of the Brooklyn Ice Palace finished third. The victor's time was 3:29 2-5.

Song Writers Play Billiards.

Three games were played in the three-cushion sweepstakes billiard tournament of the Song Writers of America at Maurice Daly's Academy last night. Irving Ceasser defeated Archie Gettler, 35 to 28; Sidney Mitchell defeated Artie Mehlerger, 35 to 30, and Mattie Brice defeated Fred Abbott, 35 to 28. There are twenty contestants. Games will be played this afternoon and evening.

VOTE EARLY.

Today the polls will be open from 6 in the morning till 6 in the afternoon. A list of the polling places in the counties of New York and the Bronx is published in this morning's TIMES. On account of the great increase in the registration figures over those of 1918, it is more than ever desirable and necessary that registered voters vote as early as possible. On election days, as on registration days, there is always too much of a tendency to wait until the last moment, sometimes to wait too long. Presumably everybody has made up his or her mind what candidates to vote for. It only remains to vote for them, and the sooner the better. Get your ballot in early. Make that the day's work, and, having done it, add the consciousness of duty done to your enjoyment of a holiday which may the directors of the weather brighten with more cheerful specimens of meteorology than have been promised or given of late! The better the deed, the better the day!

AN APPEAL TO REASON.

In connection with the present strikes there were printed yesterday what was practically a declaration of civil war by the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor and an appeal upon behalf of the Locomotive Brotherhood that "reason and justice should take "the place of passion and the auto- "cratic and militant attitude now be- "ing displayed" in industrial relations. The Pennsylvania Federation authorizes a call for a general strike as a remedy for "executive autocracy and judicial anarchy," and the Brotherhood wants an industrial commission appointed. We take it that everybody is against autocracy and anarchy and that everybody is for reason and justice. The only doubt is how best to reach the objective. The objection to trying a general strike is that there is no case on record of success on any considerable scale for that method. It unites against the strikers everybody except the strikers. It is like a famine as a cure for hunger. In Spain there is now a general lockout as the retort courteous to a general strike, because it is so clear that the general strikers are "pure revolutionists." They are so even more clearly here than there.

The general strike proposal in Pennsylvania split the labor ranks on the spot. "As between the United Mine "Workers and the Government I "stand with the Government," was the declaration at the meeting of the Federation by a former mine worker and present Federationist. His reason would seem convincing to any but the extremists of labor—that when labor begins direct action the Government must use the same method, and the Government's direct action is formidable. "A lot of agitators are blowing bubbles. I am blowing none," said the former President of District No. 5.

The Brotherhood's suggestion of an industrial commission has already been made by the President in connection with the coal strike, even without the motive of the Brotherhood. The President believes in the courts, and the Brotherhood wants a commission because it distrusts them. The disadvantage of a commission is that labor is not bound by such findings, while a judicial finding has a sanction, in morals as well as in law. That there is need of a legal sanction appears from the "militant attitude" which the Brotherhood remarks, and which is shown rather by labor than by capital. It is not known that wages are being reduced or that labor is being locked out, or even that labor is being "governed by injunction" when it obeys the law. There is no gainsaying the Brotherhood's position that those who seek justice should practice justice, and that, when all do that, all questions can be adjusted on "a basis of justice and right." The sentiment is commended to universal acceptance, with the proviso that no man or class or any faction whatever shall set itself up as judge in its own case. The law has its defects, and no one defends them, but it remains the best human method of adjusting differences of opinions and interests when contracts and agreements are abandoned as worthless scraps of paper. A Justice of the United States Supreme Court, a special friend of labor, may be quoted to labor at this time:

> Industrial liberty, like civil liberty, must rest upon the solid foundation of law. Disregard the law in either, however good your motives, and you have anarchy. The plea of trade unions for immunity, be it from injunction or from liability for damages, is as fallacious as the plea of the lynchers. If lawless methods are pursued by trade unions, whether it be by violence or by intimidation or by the more peaceful infringement of civil rights, that lawlessness must be put down at once and at any cost.

THE WAR ON WANT.

Belgium set the world an example of valor and vigor in war, and is setting another example of the same sort in the war after the war, the war on want. Work is the best remedy for want and the surest road to plenty, and the gallant Belgians have started early in the race for prosperity. Belgium has Socialists, like the rest of the world, but the Belgian Socialist leaders "have played an essential "part in discouraging strike ten- "dencies," as our cable dispatch reports. The Government rivals the Socialists in activity in industry rather than against it, particularly the Minister of Railways. The Belgian railways were ruined with German thoroughness, but already the Belgians have multiplied the number of their working locomotives fourfold and increased the tonnage moved by an amount which is small as we figure such matters, but which in proportion surpasses our records, although we never have had such obstacles to overcome as the Belgians. But it is fair to add that the Belgians are not so handicapped by Government opposition to railway prosperity as ourselves. It seems incredible that only fifty kilometers of railway are now out of commission in Belgium, although every station and bridge was blown up in the western half of the country. Belgian coal mines are now producing a larger proportion of prewar output than the mines of any other country, and the sugar industry is beating its peace maximum.

It is easier to say "Bravo, Belgium" than it is to applaud what it is prudent to remark, that Germany follows hard after Belgium. Germany, too, has its Socialists, but they have been cured of the prevalent ideas that the general strike and revolution and domination are highroads to fortune. We have silenced although we have not convinced the Germans in war, but they will prove even tougher customers in the commercial competition, which now will be all the harder because Germany must do business fairly hereafter. It will be no ground for complaint, but rather for emulation, if the Germans are able to undersell us by industry, thoroughness, discipline, the consultation of customers' wants and ways, and other methods of successful production and salesmanship. It was German buying of a half million bales of cotton which sent our prices up to 40 cents the other day, while England is discouraged by exchange difficulties much smaller than Germany's. We must take care that Germany trades fair, and then we should be ashamed if she should beat us in either our own market or the world's markets. But strikes, agitation, and slackened production will handicap us terribly in the competition.

ELECTIONS IN OTHER STATES.

Governors are to be elected in five States today—Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Mississippi, New Jersey. Of course, the Mississippi election doesn't count. In Kentucky a successor is to be elected to former Governor STANLEY, now United States Senator. The Democrats have nominated Lieut. Gov. BLACK; the Republicans, EDWARD P. MORROW, whom Mr. STANLEY beat by only 330 votes in 1915. The Stanley machine has been great and powerful; but the Republicans are strong in Kentucky. They have great hopes in the Louisville district; but the prohibition issue, the President's veto of the bill to enforce the wartime prohibition act, enter more or less into the contest there as in some other States. And there is a good deal of confusion and uncertainty in consequence.

In Maryland the Republicans have profited in recent years by the internal troubles of the State Democrats. Last Spring Baltimore chose a Republican Mayor by a fat majority, for divers reasons, one of which was said to be resentment at the compliance of the Democrats in Congress with the demands of the Anti-Saloon League. Parched and disconsolate, her Gilded Gehennas shut, Baltimore is expected by the enthusiastic Democrats to speak loudly for the Democratic ticket, resenting at the polls the eagerness of this Republican Congress to pass the prohibition enforcement act over Mr. WILSON's veto. At least that is what the Republicans think or pretend to think. If they are to be beaten anywhere, they are to be beaten on account of their deep attachment to prohibition.

This attachment has been shown in a particularly edifying manner in New Jersey. There the Democrats sapiently propose to kick against the prohibition amendment "by all lawful means." The Republicans, with equally instructive humbug, are for enforcing the law as they "find it," as if it were an ugly changeling substituted by the wicked Democrats. On the other hand, the Republican candidate for Governor, to show that the Republicans are not as dry as they have painted themselves, says that personally he likes a drink as well as anybody else, while his Democratic opponent is a teetotaler. Dry Wets, Wet Drys; it is a campaign rich in moral satisfaction and, of course, of the utmost sincerity on both sides.

In Ohio the people are to vote on the national prohibition amendment, as the State Supreme Court has ruled that a referendum is necessary. The Buckeye voters will also accept or reject a severe measure for the enforcement of the State prohibition law.

The one vital election, the one in which the whole country takes a keen interest, is in Massachusetts. Governor COOLIDGE's energy and courage in the Boston police strike have given him a national reputation and won him national respect. He is the candidate of order, of law, "determined "to defend the sovereignty of Massa- "chusetts and to maintain the au- "thority and jurisdiction over her "public officers where it has been "placed by the Constitution and law "of her people." The size of his plurality over the Democratic candidate, Mr. LONG, apologist for the disloyal Boston police deserters, will be the measure of the superiority of the forces of orderly freedom in Massachusetts over the forces of Sovietism, the mob, direct action, the forces of disorder and destruction.

PRESIDENT CARRANZA.

When President CARRANZA says that he has no desire to retain his office and will be glad to turn it over to the candidate duly elected by the people, there is no reason to doubt his sincerity. Never was a Mexican less of a man on horseback in aspiration and temper. While VENUSTIANO CARRANZA has been everything in public life from Municipal Judge to President, he cannot be called a professional politician. It is true that he has been accused of "playing to the gallery" when dealing with questions of international relations. His front to the United States is often bristling and he tears the air with passionate exclamations of conventional patriotism, but he is an intense nationalist, sometimes deaf to reason. Although he has ideals he is not a man of vision, rather slow than stupid, and always stubborn. Tact he has none. He is obsessed with the idea that the outside world regards Mexico as an American China to be exploited, and he growls out protest and defiance like an honest watchdog. In no sense is President CARRANZA a politician as the term is generally understood.

"You may be sure," said the President of Mexico to THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent, "that I will be "one President, if not the first, who "has completely retired to private "life." If almost any other public man in Mexico made such a statement he would not be believed. Mexicans have usually lost the Presidency or retired from it only to intrigue to oust a successor by leading a revolutionary movement. But there have been few Mexicans just like CARRANZA. His revolt against HUERTA was the act of a reformer, not the act of a military adventurer consumed with ambition. CARRANZA, born in the little city of Cuatro Ciénegas, had always been a tiller of the soil and a bookish man, introspective, sluggish, a dreamer (but not a visionary like MADERO) rather than a man of action. He herded, he planted, he studied political economy, and spent a good deal of time in his library. He was the oddest revolutionary leader ever known in Mexico, but he had an honest desire to serve his people. His defiance of HUERTA was not spectacular, he was tremendously in earnest.

CARRANZA plodded his way to success, overcoming all obstacles by sheer persistency. He must have repeated a hundred times, almost like a parrot, the statement: "I am the only leader "recognized as supreme by all the "chiefs of the revolution. What we "fight for is the Constitution of our "country and the development of our "people." In the interviews he gave to foreign newspaper correspondents he said this over and over again, with no trace of emotion on his face, and he said little more. PANCHO VILLA regarded him as a joke, but ended by having to take him seriously. CARRANZA lumbered along like a "tank" to his objective, slow but irresistible. General OBREGON has used a similar figure of speech about him. Impatient with the President's insistence upon reading every document through, word for word, before signing it, the General did not form a high idea of his chief's intelligence at first. Later OBREGON said:

> As I came to know him more intimately, I began to regard him as a machine, something like a steam roller, which, as it moved over the ground, did not neglect the smallest particle, but left each detail packed down in the right place, as it moved slowly but surely toward the accomplishment of its object.

Methodical and obstinate as President CARRANZA has been as an administrator, no one ever doubted who sat at the head of the table. He has done almost everything himself, sure of himself and trusting no one implicitly. He has worked hard and had no pleasures except walking and riding. His Presidency has been simple, quiet, drab, without display, and utterly devoid of the dramatic. He has refused to live at the Chapultepec Palace, occupying a modest house on the Paseo de la Reforma. An early riser, an abstainer from liquor and tobacco, unimaginative, unsociable, a plain man in office, he has made no impression upon the popular imagination. The Mexicans are likely to turn to a soldier as his successor. VENUSTIANO CARRANZA will be satisfied to return to his flocks and his grain fields, his homely tasks and his books, only to emerge from retirement if any President of his time turns dictator.

WHY TAKE THE TURK?

There is much to be said in favor of an American mandate for Armenia. Something can be said, though not very much, in favor of an American mandate for Constantinople. More can be said against it. It is hard to see what can be said in favor of an American mandate for a residuary Turkish State in Anatolia; or, worst of all, for an American mandate over the whole Turkish Empire.

Perhaps something can be said for it, but it has not been said yet. Mr. GRASTY's dispatch in Sunday's TIMES presented the arguments which are being made in Paris by those who favor an American mandate for what is described as "all the Turkish-speaking territory," but which turns out in fact to be the Turkish-speaking territory, plus the territory where Greek or Armenian is the principal language, plus the Transcaucasian republics of Georgia, Russian-Armenia, and Azerbaijan, which suddenly come into the argument out of nowhere in particular. The reasons given for this piece of statecraft are somewhat diverse. We are to save the remains of Turkey from the rivalries of European Powers, which sounds like the argument of somebody who does not like the Greeks. "A mandate for "Armenia in order to be successful "would have to include Constantino- "ple," because one-eighth of the population of that city is Armenian; which is equivalent to saying that an Irish republic would have to include Boston, or that union of Jugoslavia would be incomplete without the mining districts of Western Pennsylvania.

Another argument is that it would save the feelings of the Turks, "who "are willing to have properly accred- "ited Armenians formerly resident in "Turkey come back, but don't want "Russian Armenians." It may be that the world will have to submit to Turkish ideas as to what Armenians are properly accredited, but America does not want to become accessory after—and perhaps before—the fact of murder and worse crimes.

"A mandate for Armenia alone would be a gold brick," but "a man- "date over the whole territory, with "Constantinople as headquarters, "would be something worth while," is the argument in Paris. It would cost us, we are told, only twenty years' work and a billion dollars and an army of 50,000 men. Worth while, undoubtedly, for the Turks; hardly for the Armenians or the Greeks or the United States.

What is the real motive of the men in the shadow who have persuaded some statesmen of talent and integrity to demand this billion-dollar gold brick? It will have to be a better argument than any of the pretexts so far advanced.

BESSARABIA.

Once more the Peace Conference is distressed at the action of Rumania—this time for proclaiming the annexation of Bessarabia without permission of the Conference. Perhaps this was not wholly tactful, but the Rumanians are living in a real world of real conditions, most of which the Conference insists on treating as phantasms. In the Hungarian affair the Conference played with theories while the Rumanians had to consider facts; it would have been better all around if the Rumanians and the Conference could have worked together, but their lack of harmony was due chiefly to the impractical ideas prevalent in Paris.

Now as to Bessarabia. A Russian census more than twenty years ago reported that about half of the extraordinarily mixed population was of "Moldavian"—that is Rumanian—nationality. Since the Russians had then been engaged in a vigorous denationalizing campaign for twenty years, they hardly overstated the figure. The Rumanians claim today a considerable majority—certainly they far outnumber any other race in the disputed territory. Separation from Russia was proclaimed in 1917; a few months ago the National Assembly by a large majority voted for union with Rumania. Opponents of union include principally the large landholders, who look back to the good old days of Imperial Russia and fear that the Rumanian Government will carry out here as at home and in Transylvania the division of the great estates, with some assistance from some of the minority races. On the other hand, the German colonies in Southern Bessarabia support union, because they and all the population found that in the critical moment the Rumanians protected them against Bolshevism. Recent French visitors report that most of the inhabitants of other races speak Rumanian; that the anti-Rumanian feeling is confined principally to the landlords and certain Russianized elements in the towns and is growing weaker; that Rumanian sentiment is supported by most of the intellectual leaders and is steadily growing stronger.

In 1812 Russia took Bessarabia from Turkey. In 1856 she was compelled to surrender it to the States which have since become Rumania. In 1877 the Russian Army, held up at Plevna, called on the Rumanians for help. The appeal was made by the Grand Duke NICHOLAS, commanding, and by the Emperor ALEXANDER himself. The Rumanians helped the Russians take Plevna, and were rewarded by the loss of most of Bessarabia. They received part of the Dobrudja as compensation, but they lost a land which with good reason they regarded as their own. It should go back to them now. The anti-Bolshevist Russians naturally regret the diminution in territory of the old empire, but they have recognized this in the case of Poland and seem on the way to recognizing it in the case of Finland. They should not expect the Peace Conference to validate the titles of all the conquests of the Czars when an awakened national sentiment demands other solutions.

Unfortunately, the Peace Conference has been inclined to do that very thing in the case of Bessarabia.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Charge Easy to Prove.

Secretary DANIELS has had to stand not a little criticism, in his day, but not even the fiercest of his critics ever questioned his Americanism, his patriotism, or his fidelity to the cause in which the United States fought beside the world's other civilized nations. It is with entire confidence, therefore, that his country can await his answer to the demand that he do something or other in the way of reproof or punishment to Admiral SIMS for telling the truth about the Sinn Fein and the experiences of American bluejackets in Cork.

This astounding request comes from the Secretary of an organization which calls itself the Irish National Bureau, and pretends to voice the indignation of "millions of citizens of the United States who are of Irish blood and are solidly behind the Irish Republic." And all of these millions are pictured as filled with anger because the Admiral called the Sinn Feiners pro-German and because he said that our sailors were maltreated in Cork as soon as it was discovered that they were cold to Sinn Fein methods and aspirations.

To prove the first contention the Admiral will only have to quote from dozens of Sinn Fein documents, and if there is one member of that society that would not have welcomed a German victory, if only it included the downfall of England—as of course it would—that person has been strangely silent from the beginning of the war till now. Indeed, the writer of the letter to Secretary DANIELS evidently thinks it would be a waste of time to deny that the Sinn Feiners were pro-German, and he attempts no refutation to the charge that, besides assaulting American sailors in the streets of Cork, the Sinn Feiners committed against them the greater injury of communicating military information to the Germans and so made harder and more dangerous the work in which our navy was engaged.

All these things have long been matters of common knowledge, and the Admiral by his article simply made the information official and authoritative.

Not Sailors Alone Are Insulted.

While the Sinn Fein spokesman was doubtless right in saying that the article of Admiral SIMS had offended all the members of his organization, he failed to realize that his letter was sure to offend, not only every man in the American Navy, but every American out of it who views that navy with respect and affection.

For the defense of the Sinn Feiners in Cork—the explanation of their assaults on our sailors—is that Irish womanhood had to be protected against the American sailors!

In a vain attempt to give plausibility to the implication contained in this statement, the Secretary is reminded that, even in American ports, when large numbers of our sailors have shore leave, they are shepherded and kept in order by naval police. So they are, but not to guard "womanhood" from them. The suggestion that Irish womanhood was in any danger from the American sailors would be ludicrous if it were not so insulting, and if it were not even more insulting to the Irish girls than to the American sailors.

It is certainly something new and strange if Irish girls have lost either the ability or the inclination effectively to repel the advances of any suitors whose attentions and intentions are out of harmony with the moral standards existing in Ireland. It is easy to believe the Admiral, therefore, when he says that, so far as women had anything to do with the troubles in Cork, it was not because the American sailors misbehaved, but because too frequently they "cut out" the local swains.

Trustees Who Will Have Some Trouble.

In France they somehow manage to select periodically a young woman as a paragon of all the virtues, and the raising of these "rosières" to a distinction at least slightly invidious apparently does not excite irrepressible rage among the millions of other young French women who by necessary implication are pronounced inferior to the winner of the prize. It must have been with these facts in mind that Count PAUL BAINOTTI of Turin, in honor of his American wife, set aside in his will a fund of $10,000 with instructions that the income from it shall be awarded each year the young woman in Providence, R. I., who best deserves it by her conduct and family virtues.

The other conditions are that the young woman shall be 20 years old, marriageable, and a daughter of the common people.

The first difficulty to confront the trustees of this fund will be that of finding a confessed daughter of "the common people." Theoretically, at least, that class is unknown in this country. Then, of all the young women in Providence who would find the income of $10,000 useful, is there one who will claim to be best in conduct and in the family virtues, and if one does, will the others admit her superiority?

More Millions for Use in Research.

So many times has Mr. ROCKEFELLER given away so many millions that a new gift of $10,000,000 excites no public wonder and makes only an inappreciable change in the total of his benefactions. So the new allotment to the Institute for Medical Research is notable less for its amount than for the wisdom shown in establishing conditions for the expenditure of the money.

It is to go to support work on the fundamental problems of medicine, and while utility is not to be ignored, that is not to be the chief, or even the direct, object of the activities undertaken. In other words, the value of what is called, sometimes disdainfully, "pure science" is fully recognized, and the practical is allowed to take its chances—which it is quite competent to do.

This money, too, is for work, not for buildings, and it will enable carefully selected men to continue for years investigations the result of which remains out of sight. They will seek principles rather than applications, and this is, of course, the very highest as well as, in the end, the most productive form of scientific labor.

LEGISLATIVE SALARIES.

In Favor of the Increases to be Voted On by the Electors.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a former member of the New York Legislature, I personally know somewhat of its work, of the duties and responsibilities of its members, and the utter inadequacy of the compensation they now receive. The amendment now before the people for adoption will better this condition.

Having neither desire nor expectation of ever again serving as a member of either house, my opinion may be regarded as entirely disinterested.

The welfare of the State and of each and all of its inhabitants requires in its Senate and Assembly supreme intelligence, ability, and honesty, just as much as in our courts of record. Possibly the requirements for the Legislature should be even higher and more exacting, for that body enacts the laws that govern us individually and collectively from before our birth till after our death, while the function of the courts is merely to interpret and apply the laws, or, where they sometimes are unconstitutional, to prevent their operation. Now, not to mention our minor tribunal, there are more than 250 Judges presiding over our various State courts of record. Taking the two houses together, there are just 201 members of the Legislature. The Judges receive an aggregate of salary amounting to more than $3,000,000 yearly, the legislators just $301,500.

It is not surprising that most Senators and Assemblymen do not measure up to the necessary standard. That some do so measure up is a credit to their unselfishness, to their altruistic patriotism. In my own experience I found the great majority of my fellow-members thoroughly honest and sincere in their desire to do their duty by their State and constituents. The difficulty with most of them was that they were not properly qualified for the functions of the office they had assumed to fill, while the fact that they were there showed that their constituencies utterly failed to appreciate the fact that under our form of government the legislative branch is the foundation upon which rests our entire political edifice.

The present chaotic conditions that threaten not only our own State and other States, but the Union itself, are because our legislative bodies, both State and Federal, are not composed of members selected for intelligent character and courage. The very fact that the pay is so inadequate shows how ignorantly low an estimate people generally put upon the value to them of proper representation.

Even the rise now proposed is paltry, but it is a step in the right direction, and the adoption of the amendment would indicate that the voters were beginning to realize what representative self-government means to them and theirs. When they come to a full realization they will take the nominating of the candidates out of the hands of the little political autocracies of both parties that now control in the several Assembly districts of our great city and select representatives who will be adequate for their functions and owe no political debts save to their constituents.

It is too late now for formal independent nominations; nevertheless, if in any district neither party has presented a candidate of approved character and fitness, it might be well for a number of representative citizens to fix upon some proper man and by advertisement or otherwise urge the voter to write his name in the blank provided for just that purpose on the official ballot. It is true there would be but little danger of his election, but a considerable number of such votes would give a very healthy shock to the party leaders, and so be productive of future good, and such votes would thus not be "thrown away." In fact, were every voter to write in the name of some one he or she preferred to either of such candidates for the Assembly, the moral effect would be very healthy. Nor need any one know who so voted.

But the main thing at this coming election is to vote the adoption of the proposed amendment, that with a better face we may hereafter urge fit men to represent us in the Legislature.

Civil War Prices.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will the editor of THE NEW YORK TIMES or some one kindly explain to me the difference between our present high cost of living and the prices we paid during and after the civil war? Gold was high—285—so that for a dollar pair of gloves, in peace time, we paid $2.85 without grumbling. Every one paid it. The man who wished to buy a $4,000 house had to pay a $10,000 price for it. Things did not come to normal basis till near Christmas, 1879, if I remember rightly.

THE SONG OF THE SURF.

As old as the world am I—
I sing as I reach the land;
Eternal am I, but die
And fall on the shining sand.

I rise in a happy breath,
I break in the gladsome rush,
Then, rippling along to death,
Am lost in the sudden hush.

Adown in the depths with ships
I sink to my seaborn task
Of hushing the dying lips,
Replacing the living mask.

Aloft in my strong white arms
I cradle the dear dead face—
Secure from the sea's alarms,
I find it a resting place.

I leap and I dance and flow
To gladden the hearts of men;
No matter how far I go
I always return again.

I wander from land to land,
Intent on my restless way,
Obeying the great command—
And thus until Judgment Day!

MARGARET THORINGTON PRESTON.

MRS. GARY OPPOSES STRIKE.

Wife of Steel Co. Head Declines Membership in Strikers' Auxiliary.

In a brief telegram to the President of the Women's Auxiliary of the Steel Strikers' Union Mrs. E. H. Gary, wife of the Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, declined the invitation extended by the auxiliary to become an honorary member. The invitation, which was sent following a meeting of the organization on Saturday at Gary, Ind., reached Mrs. Gary yesterday at her home in Brookville, L. I.

Before its arrival, however, Mrs. Gary learned that the Women's Auxiliary had voted her a member of their organization, but she delayed taking any action in the matter until the telegram of invitation was in her hands. It read:

"We, the women of the Steel Strikers' Auxiliary of Gary, have this day in open meeting elected you an honorary member of our organization. Kindly inform us if you will accept."

She then wired the President of the auxiliary the following reply:

"Beg to be excused.
"(Signed) MRS. E. H. GARY."

"Before this matter came up there had been no occasion for me to publicly declare myself," said Mrs. Gary. "But I am entirely in sympathy with the stand Judge Gary has taken against the steel strikers, not because he is my husband, but because it is the only right stand to take if we do not want to get in the grip of the Bolsheviki and have labor override the country with its unreasonable demands.

"We feel certain that ours is the only right, fair stand, for thinking people all over the world have congratulated us upon our attitude and have urged us to adhere to it unswervingly. While Mr. Gary has never recognized unions he does not combat them. His activities in improving the conditions of the workers in the different towns where the United States Steel Corporation has mills proves that he has the laborers' best interests at heart. We have both been most interested in looking after their welfare.

"But since conditions have reached such a climax and they have drawn me into the controversy, for the offer of honorary membership in the auxiliary organization comes from the strikers themselves, I am very glad to declare myself on the side which I feel certain is right."

MASS FOR FRENCH HEROES.

Celebrated in All Catholic Churches—Pilgrims Throng Battlefields.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Notwithstanding the snow and cold weather, reports reaching Paris from the provinces say that large crowds attended the ceremonies held on Saturday to honor those who died on the battlefield.

In the larger cities numerous associations of wounded veterans participated in the exercises. Wreaths were placed on the graves of American soldiers at Montfaucon.

A requiem mass was celebrated yesterday in all Roman Catholic Churches by special authorization of the Pope, and many memorial civil gatherings were held.

Saturday evening and all through the night mourners were praying in the churches. Thousands of candles were placed by relatives of the dead, gathered amid the elaborate funeral trappings of the chapels.

The two days' services for the dead were attended by the great bulk of the nation, virtually every public man participating in some ceremony. By actual count the pilgrims to the Paris cemeteries numbered 361,140; nevertheless, the police records showed that there were 45,000 fewer visitors in the cemeteries than last year, when victory had not yet been attained.

Admonitions to the living to do their patriotic duty in the elections, as the fallen soldiers had done theirs in the field, were a feature of many sermons and editorials. Cardinal Amette, who officiated at the Cathedral of Notre Dame, published a letter urging Frenchmen to consider only the welfare of their country when voting, and cautioning them to vote against unworthy candidates and choose only the best men.

President Poincaré, accompanied by Marshal Foch and Marshal Joffre, diplomats, and officials, attended today the principal official ceremony at the Panthéon, the entrance of which was draped with crape and flags.

VERSAILLES, Nov. 2.—Captain André Tardieu of the French peace delegation and many French officials participated in the decoration of the graves of war heroes in the Versailles cemetery today. Accompanied by American, English, and Italian deputations, they marched in procession from the Hôtel de Ville to the cemetery, where the graves were covered with flowers.

FOR ROOSEVELT MEMORIAL.

President Thompson Reports Good Progress in Many States.

William Boyce Thompson, President of the Roosevelt Memorial Association, announced yesterday that the association's work of enrolling members was still progressing throughout the entire country, as well as in England, France, Hawaii, and other places where the association has branch organizations.

"It is necessary to emphasize," said Mr. Thompson, "that in a movement of this character, of such wide extent, it is not yet possible to announce complete returns showing the number of members who have enrolled or the money they have subscribed. In one of the largest States, Texas, the enrollment is really just beginning, owing to the severe storms, which until now have made communication with the many small towns impossible.

STOVALL RESIGNS POST.

Minister to Switzerland Asked Release Two Months Ago.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—After six and one-half years' service as American Minister to Switzerland, Pleasant A. Stovall has resigned his post, according to information reaching Washington from Paris. His resignation is said to have been laid before the President more than two months ago, but has not been accepted. The illness of President Wilson is believed to have delayed action.

As Mr. Stovall desires to return as soon as possible to his home in Georgia, friends are endeavoring to have action taken soon on the resignation. Mr. Stovall is understood to be retiring permanently from the diplomatic service.

A Correction.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the news item today, "Lewis Retracts Charge," which we appreciate, you have by inadvertence given the impression that the Alien Property Custodian had taken over the woolen plants of the Forstmann & Huffman Company. As this is the subject-matter of one of our suits against A. Mitchell Palmer for libel, we should appreciate it very much if you would correct this impression. The Forstmann & Huffman Company was never taken over by the Alien Property Custodian, and the suit concerning interests in the Forstmann & Huffman Company which is pending is brought by the Alien Property Custodian, and not by Mr. Forstmann. I am quite sure that this error was due to inadvertence, and that, having been so fair as to give space to the retraction by Mr. Lewis, you will be fair enough to correct this error.

RED CROSS DRIVE OPENS WITH A RUSH

Campaign Workers Report Hearty Response in All Parts of the City.

DISPLAYS IN BIG STORES

Miss Davison Breaks In on Bankers' Conference and Comes Away with $2,275.

The Red Cross Roll Call started with a whoop in this city yesterday, and thousands of receipt stubs were turned in last night by workers in all parts of the city. Reports showed a general tendency to join early, particularly on the upper west side, where yesterday's results foreshadowed an enrollment close to the desired 100 per cent.

Workers in office buildings, settlement houses, hotels, and railroad stations reported a "clean-up," while others, who made a house-to-house canvass on the upper west side, the lower east side, and in the Harlem district said that the response had been greater than expected for the first day.

Down in Wall Street Miss Alice Davison, assisted by Miss Flora Payne Whitney, made a record-breaking canvass. When business slowed up on the Sub-Treasury steps, Miss Davison broke into a meeting at J. P. Morgan's office, where her father was conferring with Charles Sabin, Dwight Morrow, Cornelius Bliss, and Charles Steele, and collected $2,275.

Mr. Davison, it was said, seemed rather perplexed at first, but Miss Davison produced her membership blanks. Mr. Bliss smiled and said: "Gentlemen, we are in no position to argue," and, turning toward Miss Davison, said, "We capitulate."

Mr. Bliss subscribed to a life membership and tossed over a two-thousand-dollar check for the privilege. The others also took a life membership for $50 each.

Meanwhile Miss Davison's co-workers were busy throughout the financial district. They visited the Stock Exchange, they went in and out of offices, and took memberships on the streets. At one time thirty messenger boys crowded about them and took $1 memberships.

A committee of 2,500 women, under Mrs. Paul Foerster, Chairman of the Booths Division, carried the campaign into the hotels, theatres, banks, and office buildings. In less than two hours Mrs. George Barton French, at the McAlpin, got 155 members, and similar responses were reported all over. Mrs. Herbert Nochels was the captain in charge at the Public Library. Miss Florence Ballin was at the Hotel San Remo, Mrs. Abram J. Elkus was at the Equitable Building, and Mrs. Henry Lowe and Miss Beth Leary directed the workers at the Ritz.

The Carry-On Club, at 21 East Thirty-eighth Street, which is made up of disabled former service men, has offered its assistance for the drive.

Raymond G. Springer, a Red Cross worker, dropped into the Bowery Mission to put up a poster for the drive. There were services being held and Mr. Springer was invited to address the men. When he had finished, one of his hearers arose and said: "Boys, here's our chance. We all know what the Red Cross did in the war. Let's dig down and hand out an iron man apiece. I'm shy on my dollar now, and perhaps some of the others are, but give us till Saturday night and then come down to get our memberships."

Leaders in the drive on the east side under Miss Helen Whiting are carrying on a house-to-house canvass. Joseph S. Marcus, President of the Bank of the United States, has turned over to them all the facilities of the bank and the assistance of its staff.

Two boxing carnivals in aid of the roll call, in which the champions of the A. E. F. boxing carnival held in Paris last March will appear, are being arranged. Major H. Frank Dunsen, of the First Field Hospital, is in charge. The bouts will be held Friday evening in the armory at 56 West Sixty-sixth Street, and on November 11, when the drive ends. Admission will be $2 and will include membership in the Red Cross, to which all proceeds are to be given.

Besides boxing bouts there will be a vaudeville performance by well-known actors and music by the Fifteenth Infantry band. Billy Roche, of the Knights of Columbus, who was referee at the Paris tournament, will act as referee and manager.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner, in a statement yesterday telling some of the things the Red Cross could do for people in peace times, said:

"I take it that the Red Cross plans to lend its aid to and to cooperate with the responsible health officials. This is well and such a program religiously adhered to will make the Red Cross the welcome coadjutor of every governmental public health agency. Unfortunately, no provision is made in the New York City Charter for any systematic care of the needs of the people in their own homes. I can see where the Red Cross can supplement the work of the city officials in this direction. Therefore the proposed establishment of health centers to render particular service to the community health is most commendable."

CHINESE WELCOME BURTON.

Ex-Senator Suggests Redistribution of the Native Population.

PEKING, Oct. 28, (Associated Press.)—Ex-Senator Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, who is visiting China, has been heartily welcomed by the Chinese Government. The presiding officers and representative members of both houses of Parliament tendered him a reception Oct. 26, at which Mr. Burton spoke. He said that recently the interest of the United States in China had been vastly increased, and that Americans were looking to the Orient with the conviction that their relations with this portion of the earth were sure in the future to assume far greater importance than in the past.

The hopes which Americans cherished for China, he continued, were for a united country and for order and efficiency in a Government established throughout the land. Improved means of transportation by waterways, highways, and railroads, he said, were also urgently needed.

"Looking to the more remote future," said Senator Burton, "it seems to me that a more helpful distribution of the population of China would be accomplished by emigration from congested districts in the republic to those less densely populated. America has always contended for the open door in the Orient. With equal earnestness we insist that repeated promises by other nations for the maintenance of the political integrity of China shall be observed."

The Minister of Foreign Affairs entertained Mr. Burton Monday, and the President received him today.

PARIS SHORT OF OVERCOATS

Lack Acutely Felt as Temperature Drops and Coal Supply Dwindles.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Another "crisis," as the various shortages under which Paris is suffering, are called, this time in overcoats, has been added to the city's troubles. There is a great lack of either ready-made or tailor-made overcoats, which the low temperatures of the last few days make essential.

The list of the shortages upon which the papers daily offer comment include shortages of coal, small change, sugar, lodgings, transportation, and milk, with an intermittent lack of butter, bottles, and many less necessary articles.

EDGAR S. MACLAY, HISTORIAN, DEAD

Author of "History of the Navy of the United States" Passes Away at 56.

TRAVELED IN THE EAST

Worked as a Laborer in Brooklyn Navy Yard in Order to Master Details.

Edgar Stanton Maclay, the historian of the United States Navy, died Sunday morning in Washington, D. C., where he was engaged in further research. He was born in Foochow, China, in 1863.

After a boyhood in Japan and China he studied at Syracuse University. On his graduation, in 1885, he went to Europe to study the foreign navies as a preparation for his work. "The History of the Navy of the United States," which has been adopted as a textbook at Annapolis. To perfect his knowledge of details he at one time worked as a special laborer at $2.48 a day in the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

In addition to many other books, pamphlets, and treatises on naval subjects, Mr. Maclay edited and published the private journal of his great-uncle, William Maclay, the first United States Senator from Pennsylvania, who has furnished the only account we have of the proceedings of the first session of the United States Senate.

LAURENT TALIHADE DIES.

French Poet and Radical Gained Prominence from Two Duels.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Laurent Tailhade, the French poet, died today, aged 65.

M. Tailhade was the author of a number of poetical works and essays, and also contributed to the French radical press. He was perhaps better known for his participation in two duels in 1909, one of which, with the writer, U. Gohier, was staged before the cinematograph in a most pacific manner for the edification of French music hall audiences, only one pistol being used. In the other duel he wounded Gustave Tery, the French politician who had made attacks upon the French Ministry of Marine.

In 1901 he was condemned to a year in prison for having urged in an article in Libertaire the murder of the Czar, the President of France, and the Cabinet. He had previously, in 1894, been seriously wounded in an anarchistic affray in the Foyot Restaurant. He uttered at a banquet the night of an anarchist attempt in the Chamber of Deputies in 1893 the words: "What matter the victims, if the act is beautiful?"

LADY ASTOR JOKES WITH FISHERMEN

ing the photographers, Lady Astor asked: "Why can't you let us have our little election down here in Devonshire?"

Then, turning to the crowd, she exclaimed: "Aren't these foreigners awful persons?" This elicited much laughter.

Examples of Lady Astor's Repartee.

Lady Astor then stood in her carriage and made a brief talk, exchanged repartee with the crowd and answered the hecklers, generally silencing them with a few barbed words, but with all evidences of good humor. Some of her shafts were:

"I think you all know who is the workingman's friend."

"If some people had what we have they would not be down here bothering for votes."

"You should go down on your knees and thank God you've got someone honest to represent you."

"I like people's children to be treated as I treat my own."

"But for the fact that there are women none of you would be here."

She concluded by asking "How many are going to vote for me? Hold up your hands."

The men, women, and children, almost without exception, extended their hands. Then one of the photographers asked Lady Astor to pose aboard a fishing schooner moored a few yards away.

"I am not a movie actress," she protested. Nevertheless she descended from the carriage and walked across the slimy pacement of the fish mart and stepped nimbly aboard the boat, assisted by a policeman and a fisherman.

Several pictures were taken. Then the grizzled Captain of the boat was posed beside Lady Astor by the photographer, and the candidate improved the opportunity while the cameras were clicking by asking the Captain, "Will you vote for me?" He readily nodded assent.

"Cross your heart?" insisted Lady Astor, and the sailor complied, to the amusement of the onlookers.

Lady Astor's First Formal Speech.

Lady Astor, in her speech tonight on her adoption as Unionist candidate for Parliament, told those who had gathered to hear her that it was because she had "the mirth of the British Tommy, who could laugh while going over the top," that she was able to face the tremendous responsibility of attempting to become the first woman member of the House of Commons.

"I realize that it depends on how I behave myself there," she added, "whether other women will get in."

A moment later she said: "It took the spirit of Drake and the faith of the Pilgrim Fathers to get me here tonight."

Lord Astor came forward to present his wife, saying: "I have been asked to introduce to you my successor, your future representative." This was greeted with loud cheers and laughter, and Lord Astor went on:

"I have been asked, presumably because I know more about her than any one else. Although she is light of heart, nevertheless she is mindful of the responsibilities."

He concluded by expressing regret at the necessity of stepping aside, owing to his elevation to the House of Lords.

In her speech Lady Astor said that she was too much interested in the general welfare of the country to enter lightly into the contest. Nor was she there, she declared, as a sex candidate. She was there as a citizen, honored beyond measure by the invitation of the people to become their candidate for Parliament.

The speaker said she came before the people as a substitute for one whom she felt even his opponents would admit to be one of the highest-minded and ablest men in the House of Commons today. She was not a "warming pan," although she hoped by next election that Viscount Astor would once more be a free man and able to come himself to be their Commoner.

Some people, said Lady Astor, found it difficult to get a title, but her husband was finding it even harder to get rid of his. He had fought the people's battles now for ten years, she added, and they could give him their moral support by returning his wife to Parliament so that she could continue his work. She might have many faults, she asserted, but feebleness was not one of these.

Viscount Astor in his address declared that it was his intention to do everything possible again to become the candidate of the people in the next election for the House of Commons.

Lady Astor introduced into her speech many expressions novel in English campaigning, which evoked repeated outbursts of laughter.

"I have heard many people say they favored women taking part in public affairs, but," here lapsing into American rural vernacular, she continued, "they ain't so sure they ought to be in the Commons."

This convulsed the gathering. Some of Lady Astor's other hitting remarks were:

"The whole of England is looking at us. Let's keep the campaign clean."

"You are not going to get a perfect Government until you are perfect. The Government can only reflect the governed."

Lady Astor concluded by saying:

"If you want a lawyer, Bolshevist, or a pacifist, don't elect me."

Lady Astor has issued an address "to the electors of the Sutton Division of Plymouth," appealing for their votes in the coming election to fill the seat in Parliament made vacant by the elevation of her husband to the House of Lords.

"I come before you in all humility," Lady Astor says in the address, "fully conscious of all my limitations. If you decide that Plymouth is once again to help in making history by being the first English constituency with a woman member in Parliament, I shall do all in my power to maintain the high traditions of the borough, the ideals of my sex, and the credit of Parliament.

"I hesitated long before consenting to stand for the coming election, as I was overwhelmed by the special responsibility which, under the circumstances, would rest upon me as regards Plymouth, womankind, and my husband's work. I have no personal ambition to go to Parliament, but when a representative body of Plymouth rose and so many of my women friends in Sutton, through most touching personal appeals, asked me to stand, and when, despite my own misgivings my husband told me I could assist the causes we have at heart by coming forward, I felt there was only one course open for me.

"I intend to work for peace, progress, and the prosperity of the country. I shall, at the same time, have due regard for national efficiency and economy, which women, above all, understand. During the war I worked for the soldiers and sailors, their wives and children, as well as for all others who were serving at home and abroad. I now ask them to work for me in order that I may work for them in Parliament.

"I believe I know the real Plymouth, its children, and women, and its social problems better than any other of the candidates. With this knowledge and with your knowledge of me based on my past record as a guide to the future, I ask the electors to let me represent them."

The address is signed "Nancy Astor."

The Independent Unionist candidate, Lionel Jacobs, who had the support of a number of Unionists opposing Lady Astor on the ground of sex, tonight withdrew his candidacy.

The Labor candidate, W. T. Gay, and his Liberal opponent, Isaac Foot, have indicated that Lady Astor's American birth, the possession of wealth, the fact that she is a woman, and her attitude regarding prohibition are points upon which her candidacy will be attacked.

RUTH MILLER SECRETLY WED

Prima Donna's Marriage to Mario Chamlee, Tenor, on Oct. 2, Just Told.

Announcement was made yesterday of the marriage of Miss Ruth Miller, a prima donna of the Society of American Singers at the Park Theatre, and formerly of the Metropolitan, to Mario Chamlee, a tenor with Antonio Scotti's company now on tour. The wedding was kept a secret, though it took place in this city on Oct. 2. Justice of the Peace M. J. Cruise officiated, and the witnesses were Paul Miller, brother of the bride, and Henrietta Wakefield, a Metropolitan singer.

Mr. Chamlee was a member of the 77th Division and one day at church in France his voice attracted the attention of some officers, and he was soon after assigned to the Argonne Players to entertain the soldiers. He first heard his wife sing when she was with the Cosmopolitan Opera Company at the Garden Theatre, and they afterward appeared together in "Faust" with that troupe in Detroit. The former Miss Miller's town home is at 56 West Fiftieth Street.

ARMY AND GUARD BELOW STRENGTH

30,000 Men Still Needed to Make Up the Total Regular Force Allowed.

GUARD SHOWING VERY POOR

Is Only 36,039 in the Twenty-five States Presenting Units for Federal Recognition.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Since the signing of the armistice practically one year ago, 2,000,342 men have been brought back across the Atlantic in army transports, including the marines, navy personnel, and civilians. During the first twenty-seven days of October 16,047 army personnel sailed from Europe. Since the armistice a total of 3,421,916 men have been discharged from the army, more than a million of whom are in this country and never had a chance to go to France.

The estimated strength of the army is now 270,200, not including nurses and army field clerks. The distribution of the army includes 18,445 in Europe, 7,783 en route to or from Europe, and 209,884 in the United States. The total "enlisted" strength is 247,543, which is 30,000, or 12 per cent. below the number permitted under existing appropriations.

There are still 13,580 emergency officers in the army. Resignations from the Regular Army have been greater since the armistice than during the whole previous history of the army. A total of 1,061 resignations of Regular Army officers have been accepted since the armistice. One-fourth of the field artillery officers, 24 per cent. of the coast artillery, 19 per cent. of the infantry, and 18 per cent of the cavalry officers have resigned.

Figures for the authorized strength of the National Guard of the various States were announced by the General Staff of the Army today, showing that the present enlisted strength of the National Guard of the country is only 36,039 in States presenting units for Federal recognition. Twenty-five States only have so far presented units for Federal recognition, and to date twenty-three States and Porto Rico have presented no units whatever for recognition.

The figures announced today are based on the appropriation made by Congress for the fiscal year 1920, and authorize a total enlisted strength of 126,109 for the National Guard of all the States and Territories, of which 40,688 will be the authorized enlisted strength of the States which have so far presented no units for recognition by the Federal Government.

The latest returns for units to which Federal recognition has been extended for New York State give the present strength of these New York units as 1,408. This, however, may, under the announcement made today, be increased to 9,473.

The present enlisted strength of units in the East to which Federal recognition has been accorded and the authorized enlistment strength based on new appropriations by Congress were announced as follows: New York, authorized 9,473, present 1,408; New Jersey, authorized 2,774, present 940; Maine, authorized 1,361; present 1,201; Vermont, authorized 853, present 205; Rhoue Island, authorized 1,004, present 222.

HYLAN APPEALS FOR MORAN.

Asks Voters to Support Candidate Opposed by Hearst.

Mayor Hylan yesterday issued a formal appeal to "the men and women of New York" to vote for Robert L. Moran, Tammany candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen. It was not recalled about the City Hall that any other Mayor had issued such an appeal for a candidate.

It was commented on that the Hearst newspapers have urged voters to support Mr. Moran's opponent, Representative Fiorello H. La Guardia. No candidate except Mr. Moran is mentioned in the Mayor's appeal, which follows:

CITY OF NEW YORK.
OFFICE OF THE MAYOR.
Nov. 3, 1919.

To the Men and Women of New York:

Tomorrow when you go to the polls you are going to decide whether you are loyal to those in public office who are fighting your battles for you.

Robert L. Moran, the Democratic candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen, has been your true friend, a loyal and honest public servant.

His illness shut him out of the campaign and he has to depend on your recollection of his clean, unselfish service in your behalf as your best reason for his re-election.

If you forget that, or are carried away by false or foolish issues in this campaign, you will make public officials feel that they are foolish to fight your battles.

The Traction Trust is working hard to defeat Robert L. Moran and to elect Fiorello La Guardia as President of the Board of Aldermen.

Moran does not pussy-foot and he is not a hypocrite.

Moran is a clean, upright, courageous public servant. The only opposition to him is that inspired by the Traction Trust. A vote for Moran is the best evidence in the world that you are always willing to stand by a public official who has stood by you.

JOHN F. HYLAN,
Mayor.

DEPLORES ISAACS KILLING.

Laundry Association Speaker Urges Members to Aid Police.

A special meeting to discuss the shooting and killing of Harry Isaacs in his place of business at 88 Washington Place, Saturday night, by an unidentified man accompanied by two others, was held last night by the Greenwich Village Laundry Owners' Association. More than 100 members were present. Isaacs was a member of the association.

William Resnick, who presided at the meeting, urged the laundrymen to do all in their power to assist the police in running down those responsible for the death of their fellow member.

"We wish to expel the idea," he said, "that the association or any of its members are in any way responsible or know anything about, or had information of this unfortunate affair. I myself have prevailed on members that no drastic action be resorted to in their business difficulties."

He also said that he had communicated with Police Lieutenant Dunn of the Homicide Bureau, soon after he had hear of the shooting of Isaacs, and had offered his services. He closed by asking all those present to do likewise.

GENEVA, Nov. 3.—The Germans have started to dismantle the fortress at Istein, on the Rhine, about eight miles north of Basle. The work is being conducted under the supervision of allied officers.

Navy to Sell Victory Turbine Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Secretary Daniels today announced that the Victory Turbine plant at Buffalo, which was built by the Navy Department for use by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation during the war, will be sold on Nov. 17, when sealed proposals will be received by Commodore G. R. Salisbury, Inspector of Engineering Material at the Federal Building at Buffalo. The plant consists of a large machine shop of steel and concrete and a number of adjacent structures. The property cost the Government more than $1,500,000.

PLAN TO BOOM 42D STREET.

Association Expects to Keep It the Greatest Crosstown Thoroughfare.

Plans to make Forty-second Street the greatest crosstown street in New York will be discussed at a luncheon of the Forty-second Street Property Owners and Merchants' Association to be held in the east ballroom of the Hotel Commodore on Nov. 13. A number of city officials will be present.

It is the intention of the association to obtain improvements, paving, additional transit service and street lighting, and also other things that will make for the security and convenience of merchants within the district. Now that Hudson River steamships stop at West Forty-second Street the association has under way plans to have Long Island Sound steamships stop at East Forty-second Street.

The association considers that it is one of the the greatest streets or this city and without doubt the greatest cross street. Its district from Thirty-eighth to Forty-sixth Street, and from river to river, comprises the concentration of hotels, theatres, retail stores, and office buildings that guarantee this as the centre of New York City for all time to come, in the opinion of the association. In the last ten years over $200,000,000 has been spent in building enterprises, and at the present time other buildings costing between $30,000,000 and $40,000,000 are under construction.

PRISONERS MAY MINE COAL.

It Is Rumored They May Keep Leavenworth Plants Supplied.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Nov. 3.—A persistent rumor here, although unverified, has it that prisoners at the United States disciplinary barracks and the Federal prison may be used, if needed, to mine coal sufficient for the prisons and the city water and power plants here.

"Has Jenkins Bought This Season?"

"No Sir, No Order in Six Months"

You grasp the situation—the salesman phoning in to see if a dealer in your adjoining town was ripe for a re-order. You know how vital it is for the Sales Manager to be able to answer immediately. Having Kardexed his records, he found out at once. But if it had been necessary to search through a maze of card-in-box data, there might have been several minutes costly delay.

Here is just one incident in the day's work of every business where Kardex pays in time, efficiency and clerk cost. And every department—from financial to stock room—will run with less friction and more "function" if its details are Kardexed.

One clerk does the work of four with Kardex—no fumbling, thumbing, searching through obscure card-in-box records. There is a Kardex outfit exactly suited for your business regardless of its size. You can start with a thousand-card unit and expand it to a million.

Each card file is a household-tipped envelope quickly inserted, singly or in groups, in the sliding tray.

The Sales Manager found out when Jenkins bought his last stock because the sale had been entered on Jenkins' card. The order clerk had only to pull out the J slide and Jenkins' name appeared instantly, ready in front of her. Raising the cards above all others disclosed the date of the last order.

You can choose the Steel Cabinet or Rotary Type of Kardex Machine—either one will give you Kardex speed and Kardex economy.

Find out the time and labor economy of converting your present card system to Kardex. 'Phone us today.

CAFE MEN INDICTED FOR CONSPIRACY

Two Saloon Proprietors Accused of Attempting to Violate Prohibition Law.

TRAINING REVENUE AGENTS

Mager Opens a School to Teach Government Detectives How to Make Arrests.

RULES FOR LIQUOR SALES

Gompers Says Prohibition Breeds Bolshevism—Anderson Denies That It Does.

Two café and saloon owners were indicted yesterday by the Federal Grand Jury on a charge of conspiring to violate the War Time Prohibition act. The men against whom indictments were returned by the Grand Jury to Judge John C. Knox in the Criminal Branch of the Federal Court were Timothy J. Shine, proprietor of a café on Seventh Avenue near the Pennsylvania Station, and Arthur McLean of Hunter Island Inn.

The indictments against the men were superseding indictments and also covered five men who were indicted two weeks ago. They are Pasquale Pignoulo, Charles P. McCarver, and William J. Polling, agents of the Department of Justice; Richard Yancey, Jr., former Internal Revenue agent, and Morton T. Allen, who volunteered his services in running down violators of the law to U. S. District Attorney Caffey.

The Government men and Allen were arrested following an investigation directed by William J. Flynn, Chief of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice. The indictment mentioned four other saloon men as co-conspirators but not as defendants. It also told of conversations between the defendants and the co-conspirators on certain dates and charged that Pignoulo collected $50. Pleading was set for Thursday.

Harry W. Mager, Chief of Internal Revenue Agents, opened a school yesterday in the Custom House where agents are to be instructed in the law and the best methods in gathering evidence. The agents will be instructed how to assemble evidence in such a manner that it will be easy to prove to the satisfaction of a Judge and jury that the liquor obtained is the same that was taken from the person or place accused of violating the law.

New Rules for Sales of Liquor.

Mr. Mager made public yesterday the regulations received from Washington as to the new rules covering the sale of liquor containing more than one-half of 1 per cent. of alcohol. All who desire to use alcohol in manufacture, except distilleries and similar lines of business, must qualify by filing with the prohibition enforcement officer of the State an application for a permit in triplicate, to be approved by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, and a bond in duplicate, to be approved by the prohibition enforcement officer.

Physicians may obtain permit without giving bond for the purchase "of not in excess of two quarts of alcohol or alcoholic preparations during a period of one year" by filing the proper form, together with a sworn statement that the liquor is to be used in their practice.

Bond will be required for physicians who use more than two quarts per year. Physicians must state the liquor is to be used in professional practice only, for the compounding of medicines or for use without charge for non-beverage purposes.

Hospitals must state that the liquor is to be dispensed to patients in the course of treatment under regulations prescribed by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

Serial numbers will be given those who are permitted to sell or use alcoholic liquor. Permits will be non-transferable and may be revoked or canceled at any time. Permit holders will be required to post permits conspicuously in their places of business.

Manufacturers of preparations including flavoring extracts for culinary purposes and soft drinks will be required to forward sworn statements giving the name of the preparation, by whom and for whom manufactured, advertising matter distributed with the preparation, and the percentage of alcohol in the finished product.

Some of the standards for alcoholic preparations in which non-beverage alcohol may be used were given as follows:

"Any medicinal preparation will be classed as a medicine, provided the same is unfit for use as a beverage and contains no more alcohol than is necessary for the purpose of extraction solution, or preservation, and contains in each fluid ounce a dose as a whole or in compatible combination of one or more agents of recognized therapeutic value, and contains no agents either chemically or physiologically incompatible with the active medicinal agents upon which the medicinal claims are based."

Various flavoring extracts are defined in the regulations, which describe the proper forms for making application for sacramental wines and kosher wines which have been made under the supervision of the Union of Orthodox Rabbis. The propriety of continuing the use of wine in religious observances is recognized.

Abraham Weinberg, who said he was head of the Northwestern Detective Agency, stated yesterday that he and not the "Northwestern Protective Association" made the raids on road houses in Huntington, L. I., last Saturday.

Gompers Attacks Prohibition.

Samuel Gompers, who was in New York yesterday, upheld the allegations appearing in the statement issued by the Association Opposed to National Prohibitions, saying that investigation in eleven dry States disclosed an increase in radicalism and crime since prohibition. Mr. Gompers said that the apostles of Bolshevism in this country were seizing on prohibition as a weapon to force into their ranks the foreign-born who have been accustomed to their light beer and wines.

"By adopting prohibition we have chanced the wrecking of the social and economic fabric of the nation," he said. Bolshevism in Russia, he said, began in prohibition.

William H. Anderson of the Anti-Saloon League differed with the Association Opposed to National Prohibitions, saying it was "false and absurd." He charged the organization with receiving $50,000 from the National Organization of Retail Liquor Dealers, and declared the organization could not give the name of a single radical labor leader or of a single leader of the I. W. W. or any anarchist who has any genuine record of activity in favor of prohibition.

There have been fewer labor disturbances in prohibition States than in wet States, he asserted, adding that there have been less labor disturbances in the dry States since they were dry than in the same States in a similar wet period.

"The main centres of anarchistic activity have been wet centres," he asserted. "It is true that the radical element has been increasing, but it has increased over the entire country, in the wet centres as well as in the dry centres, which explodes the theory that prohibition is responsible for it, and a comparison of the bloodshed of some of the big strikes in years past with the present strike situation, notwithstanding the increase in organized radical propaganda, shows an almost infinite improvement, and even though it should not all be due to prohibition, though much of it is, it proves at least that prohibition has not been promotive of strike violence.

"The real truth is that it is not prohibition but the specious nullification activity of agencies like the Association Opposed to National Prohibition, which frankly announces its main purpose to be the prevention of the enforcement of prohibition, that is menacing the nation today. The Association Opposed to National Prohibition, the German brewers, and all other wet interests that hide behind its false front, are opposed to the enforcement of prohibition because they realize that if it is given a fair trial by enforcement it will be utterly impossible even in New York to maintain any formidable movement for its repeal. Not a single State that has tried prohibition has gone back to license since the passage of the Webb-Kenyon law, enabling the States to enforce their own regulations."

Test Cases Thursday.

Test cases on behalf of the distillers, the brewers, and the saloon and café owners will come up for argument on Thursday in the Federal Court. Argument will be had by Elihu Root's law firm on the Government's motion to dismiss the injunction sought by Jacob Ruppert to restrain the authorities from interfering with the manufacture of beer. The right of the distillers to manufacture whisky will be argued in the case of a distilling firm, and the case of the hotel and café owners will be taken up when argument is had on a motion to dismiss the preliminary injunction obtained by the Government against the Eastern Hotel Corporation.

Brewers were interested yesterday in the report that New York bankers holding millions of dollars worth of warehouse certificates as collateral for loans made by liquor people have been assured that the ban will be lifted in time to permit the banks to liquidate their securities. The report concerning the expected action has been going the rounds among liquor interests for several days, it was stated.

Two men were sent to the Workhouse for two days each on charges of drunkenness when arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Brown in the Williamsburg Bridge Plaza Police Court. The men shrugged their shoulders when the Magistrate asked where they obtained the liquor.

Anti-Jewish Gangs in Vienna Suffer in Clashes with Police

VIENNA, Nov. 3. (Associated Press.)—Sharp clashes between the police and gangs of rowdies occurred yesterday in Vienna as a result of numerous cases of Jew-baiting. In the fighting a number of heads were broken.

For several Sundays past bands of young roughs had taken stations on bridges and insulted or manhandled Jews in orthodox garb. Sometimes the Jews were accompanied by a bodyguard of young Jews, in which cases fights were frequent.

Yesterday the situation became such that the police had to intervene.

LIQUOR SHIPPED BY ERROR.

Explanation of Why Col. Junkin's Whisky Was in Record Boxes.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Responsibility for the attempted shipment in an automobile of eleven and a half gallons of liquor to Washington, D. C., packed in Victrola record boxes, was shifted to a servant today by Francis T. A. Junkin, Lieutenant Colonel attached to the Army Contract Board.

Colonel Junkin was found at the Metropolitan Club in Washington after a warrant for his arrest had been issued here by United States Commissioner Foote, charging violation of Section 240 of the Federal Criminal Code prohibiting the shipment of spirituous liquors unless properly labeled.

As soon as he learned of the seizure, which was made by Government agents in a local freight yard on Saturday, Colonel Junkin got into long distance telephone communication with Attorney Andrew R. Sheriff.

"It appears that a few weeks ago Colonel and Mrs. Junkin closed up their Lake Geneva home preparatory to leaving for Washington," said Mr. Sheriff. "Odds and ends were placed in boxes for removal to their Michigan Avenue residence. It happened that the liquor was placed in the Victrola boxes. Colonel Junkin had no intention of taking the liquor East. He expected it to remain in the Michigan Avenue home, but through a mistake of a butler the boxes were placed in the automobiles subsequently loaded aboard a freight car.

"Colonel and Mrs. Junkin have made no attempt to evade the service of any kind of papers, and have not been hiding. Mrs. Junkin is with friends in New York while their Washington home is being prepared for occupancy. The story that some of the servants have disappeared, Mr. Junkin tells me, is absurd, just as absurd as that other yarn about trunks filled with liquor being shipped to Washington by them."

ESPIONAGE ACT TO REMAIN.

Senate Judiciary Committee Would Keep Liquor-Search Provision.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—By unanimous vote the Senate Judiciary Committee today declined to recommend repeal of the Espionage act. Repeal bills of Senators France of Maryland and Poindexter of Washington, Republicans, were ordered reported adversely.

The committee decided it was impracticable to repeal the law, because it included search warrant and other provisions necessary for the enforcement of prohibition.

CELEBRATE ITALY'S VICTORY

Armistice Day Diners Hear Both France and Germany Aid Jugoslavs.

A year ago the armistice between Italy and Austria was signed, and yesterday a group of men met in the Hotel Brevoort to celebrate the event. Justice John J. Freschi of the Court of Special Sessions was toastmaster. After speaking of the part Italy had played in the war he said Italy's claims and aspirations were just and should be recognized by her allies. There was applause when a speaker said that what d'Annunzio did was what the Italian Government ought to have done eight months ago. Then the diners drank a toast to Fiume.

Captain H. S. Sherwood of the Fourth Royal Irish Fusiliers, who was political officer on the British Adriatic Mission, said that Jugoslavia was being financed with money from Frankfort in order to force Italy to return to a German alliance. He spoke of Jugoslavia as a country without a soul, and declared that Italy was being imposed upon because of unjustified trust she had placed in other countries.

When the armistice was signed Arthur Bennington was in Italy. He, like Captain Sherwood, thought the people in this country did not know the truth about Italy or about Jugoslavia. Mr. Bennington charged that Jugoslav propaganda was being financed with French money principally supplied by bankers. He knew this to be true, he said.

ORDERS RUMANIA TO QUIT BUDAPEST

New Allied Note Declares Against Further Territorial Concessions.

GREEK TREATY IS DRAFTED

Proposed Agreement with Allies Deals with the Protection of Minorities.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—The Supreme Council took up the Rumanian problem today. To whip Rumania into line remains as the last big task of the Peace Conference. So long as the Rumanians remain in Hungary that country cannot form a Government and sign a peace treaty. Therefore the conference is very anxious to get this obstinate ally to withdraw her troops.

All the members of the Supreme Council joined today in sending a note to Rumania asking her to answer the communication sent her three weeks ago. The only reply Rumania has sent so far is that she received copies of this note from American, British, and French officials, but because the Italians did not deliver their copy she did not consider the communication official, and therefore did not answer it. The Italians say that they cannot understand why their representative did not deliver their note. Neither can the rest of the Supreme Council.

The allied note delivered Oct. 17 called on the Bucharest Government to get the Rumanian troops out of Hungary, notified the Rumanians that they must not try to get any more Hungarian territory than the Peace Conference had give them, and servevd notice that their "requisitions" from Hungary would result in diminishing the total of the reparations coming to them.

Today's note calls for a declaration by the Rumanians of what they intend to do. As one American put it, "They have got to fish, cut bait, or come ashore."

While the Supreme Council was trying to make Rumania be good, the Rumanian Secretary of State issued a statement today saying that it was all wrong tion by revealing the fact that Bessarabia, which the conference did not give her. M. Oiugureano says that it should be said that Bessarabia annexed Rumania. He declares that Rumania could not help herself, inasmuch as Bessarabia held an election and declared that she belonged to Rumania, and to no one else.

Now, the Supreme Council's members—or, at least, two of them—have some private reports on that election which the Rumanian diplomat calls proof of a "sacred union?" However, M. Oiugureano has added some spice to the situation by revealing the fact that a Bessarabia is today holding elections to choose members of the Rumanian Parliament—and this when the Peace Conference did not give Bessarabia to Rumania at all.

The Supreme Council has not yet taken official cognizance of the "sacred union" of Rumania and Bessarabia. For the present it is trying to get its allies, the Rumanians, to let go of its enemies, the Hungarians.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—The Supreme Court, sitting under the chairmanship of M. Pichon, French Minister of Foreign Affairs, approved today the draft of a treaty to be concluded between the allied and associated powers and Greece concerning the protection of racial and other minorities.

The Council decided to request the Polish Government to open to traffic certain railroads crossing the German-Polish frontier north of Warsaw. The Council will soon examine the question of the future of Eastern Galicia, formerly Austrian territory, but now occupied by Polish troops.

Text of New Note to Rumania.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—An emphatic request that Rumania reply without delay to the note of the Supreme Council, delivered on Oct. 17, is made in a communication addressed by Stephen Pichon, the French Minister of Foreign Affairs, to the Rumanian Government today through the French Minister at Bucharest. The text of the communication, which was sent at the direction of the Supreme Council, was made public tonight by the State Department, as follows:

"The Supreme Council has decided to request the allied Ministers at Bucharest to notify jointly, without delay, the Rumanian Government of the fact that it was unfavorably impressed upon learning that General Conda, sent as special envoy to Paris by the Rumanian Ministry, arrived without the Rumanian reply to the last note from the powers, under the pretext that the Italian Minister had not taken this step at the same time as France, England, and the United States.

"The Supreme Council expresses the formal desire to obtain within the shortest time a brief and clear reply from the Rumanian Government on all the points discussed. As the situation in Hungary demands an early decision in order to insure the re-establishment of normal conditions, which is absolutely essential for the security of Central Europe, the principal allied and associated powers cannot allow Rumania to prolong dilatory negotiations on the three questions stated Oct. 12 last.

"Please communicate this in the name of the conference collectively with your colleagues, who need not wait for special instructions from their Governments owing to the urgency of the situation.

PREPARES FOR PLEBISCITES.

Supreme Council Is Receiving Complaints from All Parties Concerned.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

By Wireless and Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Great preparations are being made for the plebiscites provided for in the Versailles treaty. The inhabitants of Upper Silesia, Slesvig, Teschen, and Klagenfurt, who are going to be called on to do a bit of self-determination, will be assisted in a manner that will probably make the election efforts of the political machines of New York and Philadelphia look in comparison as if they were suffering from infantile paralysis.

The Germans are now leaders in this electioneering, but as soon as the treaty comes into effect the German troops must get out, and the allied troops will get in. This will give the other side a chance, for the Allies can postpone the election until what they judge to be the proper time. The Poles are protesting loudly against the proceedings of the Germans in Upper Silesia, charging that 200,000 troops are being sent there, and that every one who has ever been in Silesia is being corralled and is receiving free transportation to enable him to vote. They say that the Germans are terrorizing the population and driving the Poles away. In the meanwhile there is shooting enough to make a difference in the final returns.

The Germans, of course, say that they have discovered the Poles doing very reprehensible things to influence the plebescite. But before long Yankee doughboys, French poilus and British Tommies will replace the German soldiers, and a French General will probably be in charge.

Also charges are being made against German activities in Slesvig, which must decide whether it belongs to Germany or to the Danes. Here, again, allied troops will manage things at the time of the election.

Five of Hylan's Official Aids Appear Before Special Traction Grand Jury

Interest in the investigation of the transit matters by the Extraordinary Grand Jury was renewed yesterday when it became known that five employes from the City Hall had been called to the jury room. These witnesses were all from the Mayor's office. They included Augustine Kelly, executive secretary to the Mayor; Miss Frances W. Roxus, assistant secretary; John J. Glennon, chief clerk and bond and warrant clerk; Arthur H. Allen, clerk, and Terence F. Casey, former executive clerk, who has been an employe of the National City Company since Sept. 3.

After these members of the Mayor's official family had been disposed of, a filing cabinet, guarded by a policeman, was taken into the Grand Jury room at the Criminal Courts Building. The cabinet was said to have come from the Mayor's office and contained letters and other documents.

The appearance of these witnesses and documents gave rise to the impression that the jury had started a new feature of the transit inquiry, a phase of the subject to which the jurors referred in their letter to Governor Smith, requesting the appointment of special counsel to replace the District Attorney, on the ground that a "crime which overshadows the charge by the Mayor may escape detection." Confirmation of this could not be obtained from the jury or from the District Attorney. Judge Swann, who was asked by the jury a few days ago if he would be willing to appear as a witness, sent one of his assistants to aid the jury yesterday.

It was intimated, however, that the jurymen were not yet ready to open up a new line of inquiry, and were continuing the investigation based on the information furnished by the Mayor, in a letter to the District Attorney, in which he requested action to determine if collusion had existed between officials and employes of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company to bring about a strike for propaganda purposes toward getting increased fares.

It was rumored at the Criminal Courts Building that the Grand Jury has not approved of some statements in the letter of the District Attorney to Governor Smith, in which he replied to the letter of the Grand Jury, and that the jurymen may make comment in the form of another communication to the Governor. The jury adjourned until tomorrow.

WARSHIPS SILENCE KRONSTADT GUNS

Heavy Explosions Reported to Have Occurred in the Fortress and at Krasnaia Gorka.

DENIKIN CAPTURES A TOWN

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 3.—Reports that the Bolshevist batteries in and around Kronstadt and Krasnaia Gorka, on the Gulf of Finland, have been silenced by bombardment by allied warships lasting several days, are contained in dispatches to The National Tidende today from Reval. Heavy explosions are said to have occurred in both the places named, presumably being due to ammunition dumps blowing up.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—General Denikin's current communiqué, received by wireless, claims the capture of Bobrov, southeast of Voronezh, toward the right flank of his line. He concedes the abandonment of Kromy, in the Orel region. In the Archadinsky district General Denikin's troops, he reports, surrounded a Bolshevist division and took numerous prisoners.

The Russian Soviet communiqué of Sunday, received today by wireless from Moscow, claims the capture of 1,500 prisoners in the taking of Petropavlovsk, 166 miles west of Omsk, from the Kolchak forces.

The statement also reports fighting of the fiercest character in the Finnish Gulf region and a continued advance by the Bolsheviki all along the line against the Russian Northwestern Army of General Yudenitch. The occupation of many villages in the Luga-Gdoff sector, to the east of Lake Plepus, is claimed.

In the campaign against the Poles the Bolsheviki assert that their forces have effected a crossing of the River Beresina, taking numbers of prisoners.

A dispatch from Helsingfors says it is reported there that the Bolsheviki captured Gatchina Sunday and also that they have taken Luga and are attacking Pskov.

The Communist Party, which controls Petrograd with an iron hand, consists of only about 3 per cent. of Petrograd's population and even that small ratio is maintained with difficulty, according to Paul Dukes, a British secret agent, who has just returned to London from Russia.

Mr. Dukes told The Associated Press that he succeeded in joining a Communist Council and knows the inside workings of the party. The Communist Government rules only by terrorism, and the Russians have been so cowed that they fear to rise up and show their strength, he says.

"Last July the Communists in Petrograd numbered about 8,000," said Dukes. "Some undoubtedly were idealistic, but a great many were unscrupulous men, who joined to rob or to save themselves and their property. This 'bad' element became so strong that the leaders decided to purge the party of 'undesirables.' As a result almost half the names were struck off the books and a new system of admitting members was put into effect.

"To join the party a man needed the indorsement of two Communists and it was stipulated that should he prove disloyal to the movement his indorsers would be held responsible. To be held responsible for anything the leaders do not like usually means death; hence there were few indorsers and the ranks of the party remained far below what the leaders desired.

"Then the leaders issued an appeal to the workers. Any man who did not employ any one to aid him in any way, even a servant, was eligible to membership. This brought in about 6,000 members.

"Now the Petrograd Party consists of not more than 12,000 members, including the idealists and the workmen, many of whom were coerced into joining. But with the system of terrorism the Communists rule, nevertheless."

NOW RECOGNIZE FINLAND.

Independence Conceded by Russians in Effort to Obtain Her Aid.

HELSINGFORS, Nov. 3.—The independence of Finland is formally admitted and recognized by Prime Minister Lianosoff of the Northwest Russian Provisional Government in an effort to secure the assistance of Finnish troops in the campaign against Petrograd. Mr. Lianosoff has sent to the Finnish Minister of Foreign Affairs a note officially demanding military assistance in order to capture Petrograd and agreeing to recognize the independence of Finland.

General Mannerheim's letter to President Stahlberg, demanding Finnish intervention in the campaign, has caused a profound impression in Helsingfors, the centre of the interventionists, but it is too early as yet to calculate what effect it will have on the country generally.

The letter has greatly stimulated the activities and hopes of those desiring intervention and has caused uneasiness among the elements opposed to war. Government circles seemingly are unperturbed, the opinion being expressed that the letter will arouse general resentment.

A report is current in Helsingfors that General Yudenitch proposes, if he effects the capture of Petrograd without Finland's aid, to levy a war indemnity of 20,000,000,000 marks on Finland and demand the return of all Russian property and ships, including the only ice-breaker available to keep Finnish waters clear.

FRANCE IS WAITING ON CLEMENCEAU

TALK OF TREATY REVISION

Prediction Is Made That He Will Insist on Added Protection Against Germany.

Copyright, 1919, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—All France is eagerly awaiting the speech which Premier Clemenceau will deliver at Strasbourg tomorrow afternoon. The general opinion is that he will make a striking declaration of French policy, but people here are about divided as to whether the address will be of a purely domestic character, designed to give a lead for the elections which will take place Nov. 16, or of much wider import.

Those who hold the latter theory argue that Clemenceau has undergone a remarkable change of outlook as the result of the criticism offered during the five weeks of long debate in the Chamber on the Peace Treaty. Throughout the Peace Conference, they say, he made the mistake of leaving the handling of the French case in detail to Captain André Tardieu, on the strength of the prestige which the latter brought back after his visit to America. It was noted that M. Clemenceau was present throughout the whole debate in the Chamber, and that he was evidently greatly impressed by the destructive criticisms leveled at the treaty. The speech with which he wound up the debate showed that he was disappointed at the measure of security afforded to France by the treaty, and it is believed in many quarters that he will take advantage of the opportunity tomorrow to make a strong plea for drastic revision of the treaty in favor of securing greater protection for France.

It is also felt here that tomorrow's speech will give some indication as to Clemenceau's own future. As is well known, he has formally refused to stand for either the Senate or the Chamber, and has intimated his intention of retiring from political life. In all this, however, there is an indication that he will not be a candidate for succession to Poincaré as President of the Republic at the election which will take place between Jan. 17 and Feb. 3. If the election of a President rested with French voters as a body Clemenceau would undoubtedly be sent to the Elysée Palace by an enormous majority. His only rival, according to the straw vote of French intellectuals taken by the Journal La Renaissance, is Paul Deschanel, Speaker of the Chamber, a good-looking politician who was the unsuccessful rival of Fallières and Poincaré in two previous elections. It is significant that the Renaissance vote places Foch as a good third to Clemenceau and Deschanel.

The probabilities are, however, that the Assembly of the two houses who will elect the new President will select some mediocre personality in consequence of the traditional fear of the French Parliament of the advent of a strong man who would give the nation the positive direction it is admitted it needs.

Clemenceau has announced that he intends to drop out of politics in order to pay that visit to Egypt of which he has dreamed for so long, and to write that book on democracy which is to be his political last will and testament. But, in the opinion of many, he will be a silent figure as the leader in a new campaign for a movement against Germany to compel that country to give cast-iron guarantees that will render another war of aggression impossible.

Many Frenchmen regard another war as inevitable within five or ten years, although they hate the idea of further fighting, and they are looking to Clemenceau to give them the lead.

LAUNCH SADOUL'S CAMPAIGN

Paris Socialists Disregard Treason Charges Against Their Candidate.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—The public campaign for the election to the Chamber of Deputies of Captain Jacques Sadoul, the army officer against whom court-martial proceedings for treason are pending in connection with his defection to the Russian Bolshevists, was begun last night at a meeting of the Socialist Party. Captain Sadoul's name appeared on the program as "honorary President" of the meeting, although he is still with the Bolsheviki in Russia.

Among the speakers at the meeting the most picturesque was Mme. Saumoneau, a woman with flaming hair, who urged the election of Sadoul while awaiting the coming of a social revolution which would establish him as the "people's commissary."

Captain Sadoul's friends here have initiated legal steps to defer the court-martial until he returns, as he intends to do, it is asserted. Albert Thomas, the former Socialist Minister of Munitions, to whose staff Captain Sadoul was attached when Thomas visited Russia, has filed a deposition on behalf of Sadoul.

LAST ZAPATA MEN YIELD.

In Impregnable Position, but Without Food and Water.

GALVESTON, Texas, Nov. 3.—Holding a position that was impregnable against assaults, but forced to submission through lack of water and provisions, the last remaining forces of Emiliano Zapata's army surrendered yesterday to Mexican Federal forces under General Cosio Rovelo.

The surrender was reported in official advices received today by the Mexican Consul, Meade Fierro.

COUPLE ENTRAPPED ON ROBBERY CHARGE

Police Capture Man and Woman Who, They Say, Stole from Rooming Houses.

IDENTIFIED BY VICTIMS

Cracksmen Find One Safe Empty and Are Driven Off from Another.

The police of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station believe, they say, that in the arrest yesterday afternoon of Peggy Matthews of 2,040 Madison Avenue and Frank Pecaurch they have captured the pair who perpetrated some forty burglaries in boarding and rooming houses during the last few months.

These robberies occurred in houses of the better sort and the loot is said to have totaled some $10,000. Various districts in the upper west side suffered, and in each case the method of robbery was the same—a young man and a young woman engaged rooms at the house, taking with them two bulky suitcases. After a residence of a day or two they disappeared, and with them went the two suitcases, loaded with all the portable valuables belonging to the guests in the house.

The two arrested by the police last night were caught in a carefully prepared trap arranged by Detective Captain Walsh of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station. Walsh inserted in the newspapers a series of advertisements of boarding houses of the sort he believed likely to attract the couple sought. For some months his efforts were unavailing, but yesterday a man and a woman answering the description of those sought and carrying two suitcases such as those described in connection with the series of burglaries answered an advertisement inserted by Walsh, offering accommodations at 146 West Seventy-eighth Street.

Two of Walsh's men were hidden in this house. They kept watch on the couple, allowing them, however, to rove about as they chose. The detectives charge that they soon filled their suitcases and departed. They were followed to an elevated station, and there Pecaurch, they say, resisted and attempted to draw a pistol. He was overpowered and locked up on charges of grand larceny and violating the Sullivan law. The girl was charged with grand larceny.

The police say that about eighteen victims thus far have identified the pair, and that one of them was Lieut. Commander Hiram Knight, U. S. N., who was robbed in a rooming house of many possessions, including two valuable fur coats, one brought from China and the other from Japan.

The detectives in the case said last night they were on track of two Harlem stores where they think the couple disposed of their loot, and they hope to be in position to prefer charges against the proprietors.

Burglars entered the office of Baros Brothers, dealers in Liberty bonds at 528 Willis Avenue, the Bronx, early yesterday, bundled up the safe and carried it to the rear. An electric drill provided a place for a charge of explosive, and the door of the safe was blown open.

The explosion was heard three blocks away by detectives from the Alexander Avenue Station. They hurried to the store and found nothing missing except the robbers. Before entering the office of Baros Brothers the cracksmen had forced their way into the office of Morris J. Grossman, a real estate man, where they found a safe wide open and a sign on it reading, "This safe is open and empty." Verifying the truth of the placard, the burglars departed.

Louis Fardman was in his dry goods shop at 2,025 Third Avenue when two men entered and robbed him of $50 and his watch and chain. Joseph Spadarbo of 70 East 124th Street was arrested, charged with being one of the men.

Accused of petty larceny, Abraham Relkin, 16 years, of 65 Forsyth Street, who said he conducts a news stand at Delancey and Suffolk Streets, was held yesterday by Magistrate Brough in Essex Market Court in $300 bail for trial. Relkin was arraigned on complaint made by L. J. McKay, an investigator for the New York Telephone Company, who said numerous complaints had been made recently by persons calling for numbers from booths near Relkin's stand. Persons who failed to get their numbers have been unable to get their coins back, he said.

He testified that a few marked coins were dropped into the coin box yesterday and then ordered returned by central. The investigator said he couldn't get the coins back and went outside to see what happened. He then alleged that Relkin went into the booth, removed a piece of paper which had obstructed the return of the coins, pocketed the money and went back to the stand. The marked coins were said to have been found in Relkin's possession.

SCRAMBLE TO LEAVE BERLIN

Railroad Stations Swamped as Passenger Embargo Is Near.

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—The railroad stations in Berlin have afforded pictures of wild scrambles since early morning by persons desiring to board outgoing trains in consequence of the notification that passenger traffic will cease on Wednesday.

The stoppage of passenger travel is due to the determination of the Government to use its utmost endeavors to move potatoes and coal and also to save coal. It is expected that tomorrow night, when the last trains for eleven days are to leave, the crush of passengers will be greater than ever.

The greatest demand was for accommodations to Munich, Cologne, and Frankfort on the fast trains leaving for those cities.

The Prussian State railroads alone will save 10,000 tons of coal daily by the passenger embargo, which is expected to increase freight traffic facilities 30 per cent. by releasing numerous high-power engines. The days of the embargo will be devoted to repairing damaged rolling stock.

Commercial organizations are protesting against the cutting off of passenger traffic, but the Government is obdurate, declaring that there is peril of a coal and food famine unless the right of way is given to freight trains.

Joseph E. Willard, United States Ambassador to Spain, returned yesterday from Brest on the U. S. army transport Orisaba, which brought 1,100 soldiers, welfare workers, and civilians home. The Ambassador said he had come over for a short visit and was going immediately to Washington. He said he had left Mrs. Willard and his family in Madrid and had nothing to communicate.

RISE IN MILK PRICE TO BE MADE TODAY

Advance Due to Wage Increase for Drivers and Other Employes.

FIGURING ON THE COST

Producer Also Gets an Advance for His Supply Over the October Rate.

Retail milk prices for November will be announced today, L. A. Van Bomel, Assistant General Manager of the Sheffield Farms Company, Inc., of 524 West Fifty-seventh Street, said last night. The distributers were busy yesterday figuring out the increased cost of milk to them resulting from the wage increase granted to the milk wagon drivers and other employes. Added to this is an increase of about one-half a cent a quart to the producer over the October price.

The increase is granted under a compromise agreement accepted by the employes at the request of Governor Smith Sunday night. Under the agreement the Sheffield Farms Company, Inc., which operates 1,100 wagons, it was said, will have to employ about 250 extra drivers to care for the routes on additional days off granted. The Borden Farms Products Company also will have to employ many more drivers, it was said.

I. Elkin Nathans, Secretary of the New York Milk Conference Board, which represents the distributers, expressed the appreciation of the efforts of Governor Smith in settling the wage dispute.

"It is not difficult," he said, "to see that any public official might hesitate over injecting himself just before election into a situation in which it was a foregone conclusion that increased costs were necessarily involved and increased prices necessarily would follow. His action made possible a settlement involving considerably lower costs than would have been the case if the men had struck to enforce their demands. No city official seemed to sense the seriousness of the situation.

"On the other hand, credit must be given to the employes and their leaders for heeding the Governor's advice and recognizing their obligation to the public. We learn with satisfaction that most of the men are well pleased with the six-day week and the increase in wages."

SENATE GETS SUGAR BILL.

Measure Proposing Federal Control During 1920 Is Reported.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The bill proposing continuation of Federal control over sugar during 1920 was reported today to the Senate and placed on the calendar, with a view to early action.

In a majority report, Senator McNary, Republican, Oregon, author of the bill and Chairman of the Senate agriculture sub-committee which investigated the sugar shortage, declared "a serious situation will ensue" if the Sugar Equalization Board's control over sugar is discontinued.

Minority views, presented by Senator Ransdell, Democrat, Louisiana, expressed agreement in the plan to continue the Sugar Board, with authority for its purchase of Cuban sugar, but opposed giving the board power to buy and sell domestic sugar as an unwarranted interference with natural economic laws and as likely to unduly depress prices of Louisiana and other domestic sugar.

Data in the hands of the committee, the report stated, showed that about 730,000 tons of Cuban and domestic sugar was available for distributon until Jan. 1, which would meet the needs of the country. The world shortage of sugar was estimated at 2,000,000 tons over the pre-war average.

EXPECT FIUME SETTLEMENT.

State Department Officials Say Progress Is Being Made.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—While unwilling to go into details at this stage of the negotiations high officials of the State Department today asserted that progress was being made toward a settlement of the Fiume problem.

It was explained that definiteness concerning the position of both sides was being established, but that there was no indication just when a solution would be found.

Sues Lewis Nixon for $10,000.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., November 3.—Russell E. Watson of this city today began suit for $10,000 against Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon, of New York, who is also the head of the Nixon Nitration Works at Millville. The suit is brought on an assignment of a claim by Rodney Miller to Mr. Watson. Miller alleges that the amount sued for is due as compensation in a real estate transaction.

INDICT SUGAR MEN FOR PROFITEERING

Federal Grand Jury Accuses Two Commission Dealers and Grocer of Overcharging.

CHARGED UNDER LEVER ACT

Williams Says Future Violators Will Be Turned Over to Department of Justice.

FINDS SUGAR ABOARD SHIPS

Food Administrator Asks Prosecutor if 6,000 Tons in Bay Cannot Be Seized.

The Federal Grand Jury brought in two indictments yesterday charging profiteering in sugar. One of the men indicted is Jacob Lerner, an east side grocer, and the others accused are George and Julius Roth, commission men operating in lower First Avenue. Lerner is alleged to have charged an exceptional amount for 1,000 pounds of sugar, while the Roth Brothers are alleged to have charged 22 cents a pound for 20,000 pounds of sugar sold to Max Barneff, a restaurant keeper of 25 Clinton Street.

These are the first indictments for profiteering to be returned in this city since the signing of the armistice ended Herbert Hoover's food administration. The charges in each case have been drawn up under the amendment to the Lever Act recently passed by Congress and signed by President Wilson about two weeks ago.

Federal Food Administrator Arthur Williams said yesterday that as fast as they came to his notice all cases of profiteering would be turned over to the Department of Justice.

"Under the law as it stands now," Mr. Williams said, "we can prosecute dealers who attempt to gouge the people of New York. The District Attorney in the cases disposed of today moved very rapidly and I think that the indictments will serve as a useful warning to those who would profiteer. For a long time we had no way to get at a man who persisted in hoarding or gouging except by giving him and his practices the widest sort of publicity. That method of procedure generally induced the dealer to cease his profiteering for the time being. But we had no way under the law actually to force him to quit. It is changed now, however, and we will turn over all our cases to the Department of Justice as soon as evidence seems to warrant it."

Appeals for Federal Aid.

Mr. Williams yesterday asked the Federal District Attorney to see if the United States Government could not seize 6,000 tons of raw sugar which the Food Administrator discovered in ships in the harbor. The sugar was discovered, Mr. Williams said, when the holding agents attempted to sell it at a price considered excessive. As usual, in sugar deals that have been unearthed by the Federal authorities, this transaction had passed through a half a dozen or more hands before Mr. Williams got hold of the matter. After he had investigated, however, he announced yesterday that it was the first time he had discovered any real sugar at the bottom of these deals. Here is Mr. Williams's version of the matter:

"I learned," said the Food Administrator, "about ten days ago that a manufacturer here had been offered a thousand barrels of sugar at 21 cents. The brokers named were the firm of Snook & Co. That concern had been offered the sugar by a man named Lewis who is employed in a downtown bank. This morning Lewis came to my office and brought H. E. Greimes of Fourth and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia. The latter admitted offering the sugar to Lewis, who said he got the sugar from A. F. Llauser of the Franklin Sugar Refining Company, who got it from Doub & Carr of 128 Front Street, this city. Doub & Carr said they had been offered the sugar by F. H. Goecker of 79 Wall Street, the agent of the St. Lawrence Refining Company. Mr. Goecker admitted to me that his firm had 6,000 more tons in the harbor, all of it raw sugar, on which the duty had not been paid.

"Now this sugar, which was not refined and on which the legal price allowed by the United States Government was 7 cents, was offered by Mr. Goecker at 11½ cents a pound exclusive of duty. He told me the sugar had been bought in Santo Domingo at 7.28 cents a pound, and the profit of the firm would have been, had they been able to sell a thousand tons at the price offered, somewhere around $80,000.

Warns of Possible Seizure.

"I told Mr. Goecker that I considered that the St. Lawrence Refining Company, through him, was attempting to charge the people of New York too much for their sugar. I told him I thought to make amends they should offer the sugar on the local market at a fair price. He promised to consult with his principals.

"This afternoon he told me that his firm had ordered him to take the sugar off the New York market, which act, I advised him, I considered unfair to New York. I have placed the matter in the hands of the Federal District Attorney."

Mr. Williams warned Mr. Goecker by telephone that the United States Government might seize his sugar before he could get it out of the harbor. The latter answered, Williams said, that the Canadian Government, in that case, might have something to say.

"I think they would have something to say to your firm for trying to sell sugar at such a price in New York," Mr. Williams told Goecker.

Assistant United States District Attorney Ben A. Matthews promised the Food Administrator that he would investigate the situation at once to learn if he had power to seize the sugar. If it is proved to be a fact that the sugar can be taken, Mr. Williams said, many thousands of tons of sugar now held in the harbor would be made available to public use.

Dr. Jonathan O. Day, Commissioner of Public Markets, announced yesterday that he was about to complete arrangements for the sale of about $4,000,000 worth of navy foodstuffs here with the closing of the sales in the public schools. The distribution of the foods will be conducted in nine centres, two in each borough, with the exception of Richmond, which will have only one. Negotiations are now pending for the use of armories for food distributing centres.

While no more army foods are available, Dr. Day believes that the navy foodstuffs are sufficient to last until Christmas.

The New York Food Show, held under the auspices of the New York Retail Grocers' Association, opened last night at the 12th Regiment Armory, Sixty-second Street and Columbus Avenue. About 125 booths were in operation, and in addition to contrivances for making the preparation of food easier and less expensive, there were displayed many samples of cooking in general to aid in the education of the housewife. Today there will be a lecture by Mrs. Mary M. Wilson, on "The Practical Side of Baking."

The boisterous entertainment called "The Little Blue Devil," which arrived last evening at the Central Theatre, is described on the program of that temple of the arts as "the new musical farce." It is rather musical at that, but it is not strikingly new, for it is a just a refurbished version of a popular and somewhat brazen piece named "The Blue Mouse," which caused considerable hilarity and a few blushing shudders when it was produced in this less hardened country a dozen years ago.

The untruthful program further amplifies its description by the phrase "Book and lyrics by Harold Atteridge." At a late hour last night no one had rushed forward and denied Mr. Atteridge's authorship of the lyrics, and this is not altogether incomprehensible, but most of us graybeards remember the farce from which the present piece was taken without credit. It should not be thought for one moment, however, that this bland mendacity of the program is an effort to conceal a form of theft. Far from it. It is true that the late Clyde Fitch wrote "The Blue Mouse," but his play was an adaptation, and if memory serves the original was German. There lies the whole explanation. The decent concealment is just another example of that pretty mixture of discretion and splendid patriotism which has been in vogue ever since a lot of very workmanlike playwrights were turned all of a sudden into enemy aliens.

"The Little Blue Devil" is presented by that sporadic producer Joe Weber. The theatregoer can never tell what Mr. Weber is going to do next. He brought up and cherished a delightful musical play called "The Only Girl," and produced it with a freshness that shamed his neighbors. He airily sponsored the Welsh players in their lofty enterprise in this country some seasons back, and it was Joe Weber who introduced Edward Locke with that excellent play "The Climax." On the other hand, it was the same entrepreneur who invited the public to "Alma, Where Do You Live?" and it was in the "Alma" mood that he put on "The Little Blue Devil."

To "The Blue Mouse" he has added a lot of Harry Carroll music, some wild and wonderful dancing, and some moments of vulgarity of which even the naughty original was innocent. Even the battered old first-nighters, used to suggestive situations, coarse jokes and divested damsels, were made just a wee bit sick by some of the antics of the senile lecher who is supposed to figure as the comic relief of the plot. But then, imagination swoons at adequately describing a musical show which could include all in one program a song named "Peter Pan" and another named "Shimmy—Shaking—Love."

Let us hasten to consider the assembled talents of the cast. This included such old, familiar faces as those of Lillian Lorraine and Bernard Granville, but the role of historian compels the statement that one Donald Kerr, a young person of no fame, picked up the show and ran away with it. He is one of those whirlwind gymnastic dancers who seem to have heels or no need for the floor.

At least they appear to touch it only once in a while, as if for inspiration. The uproarious reception accorded to Kerr both in the second and in the third acts last night was in amusing contrast to the less impulsive, nay the downright conscientious, applause which was supplied, as though ordered by the pound at certain other moments in the evening. Mr. Kerr shared his later honors with a breathless partner named Effie Weston.

It was as a dancer that Mr. Granville made his deepest impression, not only in his old-time tipsy reel he used to dance at the Follies and at the Winter Garden, but in a new and very startling bit of facetious stepping he did last night with Katherine Hatfield, a number riotously received. Mr. Granville, a skillful entertainer who suffers from a somewhat too complacent manner, sings also in his familiar fashion. He has ever been adept in that science of projectories involved in "putting tifem over," as the old saying is.

A scrupulous intent to say something about the lyrics led to the retention of a scribbled program note to the effect that one of them rhymed "lingerie" with "in the way" or something like that. On reasonably sober reflection this seems grossly improbable. However, another of Mr. Atteridge's efforts certainly paired "maniac" with "attain a shack" so you can't tell.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"The Whirlwind," by George C. Hazelton and Ritter Brown, has been placed in rehearsal by John Cort. Mimi Aguglia, the Sicilian actress, will have the leading role.

"Linger Longer Letty," with Charlotte Greenwood as its star, will be produced in New York on Nov. 17, probably at the Fulton Theatre. The piece is a sequel to "So Long Letty."

Wallis Clark will be in the cast of "Seven Miles to Arden," coming to the Little Theatre late this month.

David Kramer has joined the cast of "Roly-Boly Eyes" at the Knickerbocker.

"The Phantom Legion," by Anthony Paul Kelly, author of "Three Faces East," was presented last night at the Teck Theatre in Buffalo. It is expected to come to New York late in the month.

CHAMBER MUSIC SOCIETY.

Carolyn Beebe Gives Works of Classic and "Cubist" Composers.

Five seasons of the New York Chamber Music Society have earned not only a following for intimate airs of wind and strings combined, but also a guarantee presently for the artists' first tour to the Pacific Coast and back. This was the venture brilliantly opened by Miss Carolyn Beebe and ten or a dozen assisting men on the stage of Aeolian Hall last evening. Had they played only their rare Beethoven and dainty Mozart classics, both with leading voices of vernal oboe and mellow French horn, with Messrs. De Busscher and Franzl, the performance would have merited a pleasant paragraph of record, for music and performance were of the best.

What happened further was the presentation of two modern works, unfamiliar to most hearers, which placed the society in new light as a contemporaneous producer. Eugene Goosens's "Impressions of a Holiday" was a composer's holiday, indeed, from all the rules of harmony before Debussy and Strauss; Mr. Kincaid's flute was the Faun by those English hills and river mill wheels, Paul Kefer's 'cello the Till Owiglass in the "Village Church" and "At the Fair." In contrast was the sounding joy of Paul Juon's "Chamber Symphony," modern more in the spirit of Franck and with one odd quotation of the Siegfried's horn of Wagner. A large audience applauded both the classic and the "cubist" composers.

Mary Pickford Comes to Testify.

Mary Pickford arrived in New York yesterday from the coast, where she has been making pictures. The object of her visit is to testify in her appeal of the suit brought by Mrs. Cora Wilmerding, theatrical agent, who received a verdict of $104,000 against the actress a few months ago. The case is scheduled to come up in Part 14 of the Supreme Court tomorrow.

MUSIC NOTES.

The Philharmonic Orchestra began its season last evening with a concert in Newark, assisted by Percy Grainger. Next week, it will be the sixth big organization to start the season in New York.

Margit Ecerass, a Norwegian, the wife of Ivan Tarasoff, a Russian dancer, has been chosen as premiere danseuse of the Chicago Opera this Winter. She has appeared here in the last three years with Adolf Bolm.

Theo Karle, the tenor, has been engaged to sing a leading part in "The Wayfarer" pageant at Madison Square Garden in December, as he did at Columbus, Ohio. Two others re-engaged are Helen Hewitt and Bernard Ferguson.

MUSIC

By RICHARD ALDRICH.

Miss Germaine Schnitzer's Recital.

Miss Germaine Schnitzer, a pianist favorably known in New York for several years as one possessing the higher attainments, gave a recital yesterday afternoon in Aeolian Hall. Her program began with Schumann's F sharp minor sonata, Opus 11, that seems to enjoy, with Chopin's B minor sonata, an especial favor with pianists this season, so far as the season has gone, as though it were a new discovery. She gave a performance of it marked by much energy and vigor, and by a keen understanding of some of the underlying and essential features of its thematic structure, which she brought out clearly, as they have not always been brought out, so far as the season has gone.

The clear discernment with which she did this and at the same time made her reading a logical and well composed whole, resulted in a performance of genuine interest in many ways. Yet it seemed also as though the analytical side of it to a certain extent overshadowed the poetical; and the impulsive and passionate expression of Schumann, the young romantic who poured such a prodigality of ideas into these four movements, was sometimes kept within rather strait limits.

Into Liszt's "Bénédiction de Dieu dans la Solitude" from his "Harmonies poétiques et religieuses," Miss Schnitzer put an abundance of the facile technique, the brilliant display of figuration and sonorous tone that it was made for and worked up the rhetorical climax to the proper pitch. The piece seemed, notwithstanding all she did for it, more than ever rambling and feebly sentimental after Schumann's fiery sonata, commonplace and wearisome in its harmonic basis. In Liszt's transcription of Schubert's "Erlking" Miss Schnitzer made an impressive effect with her masculine and unwearied power, which would have been still further heightened if she had delivered the Erlking's honeyed phrases to the boy with more contrast and without the "expression" that is such an insidious invader.

Brahms's B minor capriccio, two études by Chopin, MacDowell's Bre'r Rabbit from his "Fireside Tales," and Liszt's "Reminiscences of Don Juan" made up the rest of her program.

Gov. Smith Sees Himself in Film.

Governor Smith last night attended the performance at the new Capitol Theatre, and saw himself in the films in the weekly news reel. With the Governor were Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Henry Moskowitz, and others.

'JUDGE' NORRIS SITS FIRST DAY ON BENCH

Pioneer Woman Magistrate Hears Cases and Renders Judgment with Composure.

RUNS COURT WITH DISPATCH

Without the slightest trace of nervousness, and with the same composure that a male judge would show, Mrs. Jean H. Norris took up her duties yesterday at the Women's Day Court as the first woman judge in this State. After serving with Judge Norman J. Marsh since last Tuesday, during which time she listened attentively to the decisions which Judge Marsh gave, Magistrate Norris sat alone, heard cases, and passed judgment.

Clothed in the black, judicial gown, Magistrate Norris entered the court room at 10:30 o'clock. Immediately after the attendant had opened court Miss Amy Wren, President of the Brooklyn Women's Bar Association, rose and offered the congratulations of her organization to the woman judge. The Magistrate responded briefly. Then followed women representing the Women's City Club and the Democratic women of the Tenth Assembly District, of which Mrs. Norris is a leader.

The Magistrate showed little hesitation in her judicial activities, making use of the thirty years' experience of Chief Clerk Charles Anthes only once or twice, when he whispered a few words of advice in her ear. Assistant District Attorney Rose Rothenberg, who has been serving in the Women's Court since July, was also at hand to be of service if needed.

The Magistrate was courteous in the extreme. When she directed plaintiffs to take the stand, she prefixed her request by "Please." She did not use the gavel which lay on her desk at all.

The first case she heard was that of Gladys Pricard and Florence Dunn, 16 and 17 years old, who were charged with being incorrigible. When the Judge adjourned the case until the afternoon their counsel, Frank Aranow, asked that they be paroled in his custody in the meantime. She refused the request, but when the case came up later both girls were placed on parole.

Insists Upon Complete Evidence.

Annie Bondrock was charged with vagrancy. Magistrate Norris listened attentively to the testimony of the policeman who arrested her. She asked the defendant a few questions, and then released her, saying the evidence was insufficient.

Two alleged shoplifters, one a negro, she placed under $200 bail each for Special Sessions. Another woman was charged with "jumping" her bail of $1,000 and fleeing from the city a few months ago. Magistrate Norris consented to postpone this case until tomorrow.

In the afternoon the magistrate discharged three out of four prisoners who were brought before her. In each case, she said that there was insufficient evidence against them, although one admitted having been convicted twice of a similar offense.

Although not called upon, on her first day, to render any important decisions, the new magistrate conducted her court in a businesslike manner. Chief Clerk Anthes, who has served under seventy different judges, said his new "boss" was "just great," and showed as much cleverness as any man ever had shown his first day on the bench.

After the morning session Magistrate Norris granted an interview. She said her work was most interesting, but referred to her lack of knowledge of judicial duties.

"The press has been perfectly splendid to me," she said. "The newspapers have spoken of me in a very dignified manner."

Congratulated by Women.

In her address of congratulation at the opening session, Miss Wren said: "As lawyers, we feel your elevation to the bench more deeply than women in other walks of life. It was our dream that some day a woman would hold the position you occupy, and I am glad our dream has been realized."

Miss Frances Marion Brandon, representing the Womens' City Club, and Miss Julie Wheelock, Commander of the Barbara Frietchie Post of the American Legion, representing the women of Magistrate Norris's district, also congratulated her.

The judge flushed slightly while listening to the praise the speakers gave her. She said that while she felt gratified for the honor which was done her, it was not for herself alone, but for the womanhood in this city that she felt proud.

Among those who were present to greet the woman magistrate as she began her judicial career were: Mrs. Coffin Ranselliar, of the Women's Department of the National Civic Federation; Mrs. Mortimer M. Menken, of the Central Committee for Friendly Aid to Jewish Girls; Mrs. John Blair, of the Women's City Club; Miss Mary E. Paddon, of the Courts Committee of the Women's City Club; Mrs. L. Frederic Pease, of the Church Mission of Help, and Mrs. Arthur Taylor, of the Courts Committee of the Women's Municipal League.

DUTCH BUY GERMAN GRAIN.

Wholesale smuggling of German grain over the Dutch border all along the Lower Rhine is complained of in an Elberfeld dispatch printed in the Kölnische Zeitung of Sept. 21. It is asserted that the German farmers get twice as much from the Dutch smugglers as is paid in Germany for their grain under the food regulations, but that the buyers still make big profits on resales in Holland because of the cheapness of the German marks with which they purchase the grain.

The German customs authorities are strengthening their forces along the border, and severe punishment is threatened for such farmers as may be caught selling to the smugglers in defiance of the food laws and to the detriment of the German food supply.

Buy Control of Motors Company.

A controlling interest in the Republic Motor Truck Company has been purchased by John N. Willys, President of the Willys-Overland Company; F. W. Ruggles, President of the Republic Motor Truck Company, and W. J. Baxter, a Director in the latter company. It is asserted that there will be no direct connection between Willys-Overland and Republic, though the former will probably be a big purchaser of Republic products. The Torbenson Axle Company is a subsidiary of the Republic Motor Truck Company. Extensive expansion plans, it is understood, are being worked out for the Republic company.

Georgia Southern Earnings Drop.

The report of the Georgia Southern & Florida Railway Company for 1918 shows in the corporate income account a surplus, after the deduction of taxes and other charges, of $172,559. This was equal to $4.20 a share on the $2,000,000 common stock outstanding, as compared with $358,339, or $13.49 a share, earned on the same stock in the preceding year. The Federal operating account showed that against a standard return of $511,457, the net operating income was $347,860, leaving a deficit of $163,597. In the preceding year net operating income was $697,260.

CONVICT SIX NEGROES IN RACE RIOT TRIALS

First of Those Arraigned for Murders in Arkansas Outbreak Will Be Executed.

HELENA, Ark., Nov. 3.—Rapid progress marked the trials today of cases growing out of the recent race disturbances south of this city. Six negroes were convicted of first degree murder after brief deliberation by a Circuit Court jury. All of them will be executed by electricity.

The first of the cases tried was that of Frank Hicks for killing Clinton Lee, an ex-soldier. Afterward Frank Moore, Ed Hicks, J. E. Knox, Paul Hall, and Ed Coleman, charged jointly with the murder of Lee, were tried together.

Indictments have been brought against 122 persons, mostly negroes, as a result of the disorders.

Evidence brought out by the prosecution in the cases heard showed the existence of a post of the "Progressive Farmers and Household Union of America," the organization under which, it is alleged, the negroes were banded for the uprising at Elaine which resulted in the death of five white persons and a score of negroes.

BROADWAY ELECTION HELD.

The Broadway Association yesterday, at a meeting in the Hotel Martinique, elected officers in opposition to the regular ticket, after it had been rumored that influences in the Democratic Party had been brought to bear to declare the opposition ticket illegal. Jefferson DeMont Thompson, who arranged the anti-Hearst meeting at Carnegie Hall last Wednesday, was slated for President on both tickets. Just prior to the counting of the ballots Theodore M. Riehle, son of the President of the National Democratic Club, moved that all ballots cast by proxy should be declared void. If this action had been taken the regular ticket would have won.

The following officers were elected: President, Jefferson DeMont Thompson; Vice Presidents, Edwin Schenk, Robert E. Dowling, Rodman Wanamaker and L. M. Boomer; Secretary, John David; Treasurer, J. B. Vandover. Four other men were tied for the two remaining Vice Presidencies. They were John A. Harriss, Henry C. Copeland, Dr. Paul Henry Zagat and Frank G. Carrie. The officer on the regular ticket who was voted down was August Janssen, who was slated for Treasurer. Besides there were a number of Directors on the regular ticket who were defeated. Among them were Edward F. Albee, John I. Anderson, Robert Blackman, Joseph H. Emery, Walter B. Gilson, G. A. Green, Robert L. Hatch, Alexander J. Hemphill, Louis G. Kaufman, N. L. Ottinger, R. W. Poor, C. A. B. Pratt, Clinton B. Price, Walter J. Salmon, August J. Silz, Frank Tilford and Leon Weinstock.

GERMAN PENSIONERS BITTER

Bitter complaints against the new German Government were voiced by numerous speakers at a meeting held in the old Prussian House of Lords building on Sept. 22 by the Central Association of Pensioned German National, State, and Municipal Employes and School Teachers, according to the Berlin Vorwärts. It was stated that the revolution of Nov. 9 had been of no service to the retired Government employes, as their pensions had not been materially raised, despite the increased cost of living and the fact that the employes now in the service had been comparatively well taken care of.

Resolutions were adopted demanding increases in pensions at the same rate as the raises granted to the active employes and that the widows of former employes should not lose their pensions upon remarriage.

An order issued by the National Government in September provides for a monthly increase of 20 marks, beginning Oct. 1 and continuing to Dec. 31, 1920, in the payments made under the old age and sick benefit insurance and of 10 marks to payments made under the widows' insurance regulations.

RATE BILL GOES TO WILSON.

President May Veto Delayed Legislation on the Railroads.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—The conference report on the bill restoring the pre-war rate-making powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission was adopted today by the Senate. The measure now goes to the President. Some advocates of the legislation would not be surprised if he vetoed the bill because of delay in enacting permanent railroad legislation.

By a margin of one vote, the House Interstate Commerce Committee today eliminated from the sub-committee draft of the Railroad bill the provision extending the authority of the Interstate Commerce Commission over coastwise and international water carriers.

Advocates of the legislation said an effort to restore the provision would be made.

Unveil Tablet to Bessie Krohnberg.

At the Brenez Synagogue there was unveiled yesterday morning a tablet dedicated to the memory of the "Little Mother of the East Side," Bessie Krohnberg, who died a few weeks ago from illness resulting from her war work. Five thousand dollars has been collected from people on the east side to continue the charitable work of the deceased.

The "A. P." Combination Last

Narrow Heel—Wide Ball

THREE out of every five women complain of having a "narrow heel." They can't find shoes which are snug in the heel when fitted comfortably at the ball of the foot. The shoe shown here has proven the most successful of any shoe ever offered for this type of foot. It is two widths narrower in heel and top than at ball. Heel widths run as narrow as AAAAAAA. Lengths up to size 10. Several new styles on this last just received. The supply of each is small, which suggests an early call to avoid disappointment.

Why Preferred Stocks Are So Popular

Many corporations are financing their requirements through Preferred Stock issues rather than by Bonds and Notes because in this way they decrease their taxation. Twelve Preferred Stocks yielding from 5.94% to 8% which compare favorably with Bonds are described in a new circular which we will send on request.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Discount Rates Raised by Federal Reserve Bank—Stocks Show Strong Front.

The outstanding development of financial interest yesterday was the Federal Reserve Bank's action in increasing discount rates. This step may be looked upon as an important one in process of deflating the mass of credit expansion brought about by needs in financing the war. The Reserve Bank authorities made it clear that in their opinion much credit which is being released from Government use is being applied to speculative undertakings instead of being used to reduce bank loans, and the higher cost of borrowing at the central institution has been put into effect as a corrective of the situation. Hereafter the discount rate to member banks on advances not exceeding fifteen days on promissory notes, secured by Treasury certificates of indebtedness, Liberty bonds, Victory notes, and customers' notes secured by any of these securities, will be 4½ per cent., compared with the 4 per cent. rate in force since April, 1918. This is the alteration having widest application to current borrowings of Wall Street, although the discounts on loans of longer maturity will also be higher for most classes of paper on which loans are based.

The rise of discount rates removes the preferential which had existed from the time when the distribution of billions of Government bonds first became a weighty matter for the banks. It had been expected that once the Federal demands upon credit began to ease up and the banks were able to report that Liberty bonds and Victory notes were being taken up in quantity by subscribers, the discount quotations would rise. The changes are being instituted at a time when the credit market is, and has been for several weeks, giving signs of strain, reflected in high call money rates. Member banks have been expanding their discounts at the Federal Reserve Banks steadily, and the local bank noted in its statement last week that while this was being done, bank loans for speculative and commercial purposes failed to contract; in fact, were increasing. It was assumed yesterday that other Federal Reserve Banks would shortly increase their rates also, with the general purpose of checking credit expansion for less essential purposes.

News of the advanced discount rates did not appear until after the stock market closed and, therefore, had no reflection in speculative sentiment. Certainly stocks acted as though measures to conserve credit were remote from the speculative field, for the industrial list was active and buoyant throughout the day. Many issues scored net gains extending from 2 to 5 points, and several of the expansive automobile and equipment shares rose further. Call money opened and renewed at 10 per cent., a rate which equaled the maximum for renewals of the year, but in the afternoon receded to 5 per cent., while a small amount lent as low as 2 per cent. The Federal Reserve Bank's decision could hardly be looked upon as a drastic effort to check borrowing for the purpose of carrying stocks, but the rise of discounts denotes a movement which has possibilities of going further if additional measures are considered necessary later on.

Trading in stocks appeared to be influenced to a degree by impressions gained in dispatches about the coal strike that a compromise between the miners and employers in the near future was not impossible. The foreign exchange market was quiet and rate changes were nominal.

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Trading on the Bourse today was irregular. Three per cent rentes were quoted at 60 francs 15 centimes for cash, exchange on London at 37 francs, and the 5 per cent. loan at 89 francs 72 centimes. The quotation on the dollar was 8 francs 83½ centimes.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Reducing Inflation.

The action of the Directors of the Federal Reserve Bank in ordering an advance in the more important rediscount rates was generally interpreted in financial circles as the first definite step toward deflation. The proposition, as it presents itself, is simple. During the war it was necessary to expand credit greatly, because the amount of new credit normally created was not enough for Government purposes. That was inflation. Now the Government has turned the corner, and that the surplus of what may be called emergency credit will not be diverted into speculative channels the Reserve Bank is trying to eliminate it as it is relinquished by the Government. By advancing rediscount rates, destroying the differential between what Government obligations pay the holder and what the holder is able to borrow at, it is hoped to accomplish the desired result automatically and gently, without upsetting the general situation. Doubtless, if the expedient does not work, something more heroic will be resorted to.

Call Money.

It is an odd coincidence that on the day the Reserve Bank decided to advance its rediscount rates, which are supposed, in a general way, to govern the money market, call money on the Stock Exchange should lend at a minimum of 2 per cent., after having been at 20 per cent. no longer ago than last Friday and after renewing yesterday at 10 per cent. Yet this is exactly what happened. As for the details of the transaction, granting that they were vague, it appears that some brokerage firm found itself "overborrowed" and got rid of its surplus by relending it. When the relending was done money happened to be a drug on the market, with many potential lenders and no potential borrowers, so that the brokerage firm got a rate of only 2 per cent. Incidentally, it was said by brokers in the money crowd that quite a sizable amount was put out at less than 6 per cent. after the high renewal rate had been established.

Money and Speculation.

It will be interesting to note what effect the action of the Reserve Bank has on the stock market when it reopens tomorrow morning. For weeks past the market has completely ignored high money, but, on the other hand, it may be recalled that it underwent some fairly violent downward reactions when the Reserve Board issued its "warnings," and if an advance in rediscount rates is not a warning—a rather subtle one, to be sure—then a good many competent observers were mightily mistaken yesterday afternoon when word got around Wall Street that the action had been taken.

$613,610,000 in New Oil Companies.

There were 157 new oil companies organized, with an aggregate authorized capitalization of $613,610,000, in October, which compared with $42,910,000 in the corresponding month in 1918. The former record was established last July, when $586,216,500 was reported as the aggregate capitalization of new oil companies in that month, according to compilations of The Journal of Commerce. The October total is greater by some $183,129,400, or more than 42 per cent., than the total for the whole twelve months of last year. In the first ten months of this year The Journal of Commerce figures show the organization of 1,307 companies, with an aggregate authorized capitalization of $2,717,037,500. In the corresponding period in 1918 the authorized capitalization of new oil companies organized was only $408,470,600.

Rails Held Well.

While it was said in some quarters in the financial district yesterday that railroad shares were inclined to show the effect of the suggestion by the brotherhoods that the period of Federal control be extended for a period of two years, this apparently had but little effect in either direction. Some traders were bearish on rails because of the brotherhood action, but at the close the aggregate turnover in this group had been so relatively light in such a busy market session that it could not be said that rails were weak. In fact, what losses there were were fractional, and the individual exchanges of stock were in the majority of cases for only a few hundred shares.

Power Ship Firms Formed.

Figures on the number of new shipping enterprises launched in October show that only twenty-seven companies were formed, with a total capitalization of approximately $23,500,000. This was the lowest total since last May, but it compares favorably with the figures for October, 1918. The latter showed that the total capitalization of new ship companies organized in that month amounted to $2,675,000.

International Paper at New High.

On buying, which was said to be speculative as well as for investment, the common stock of International Paper moved into new high ground and sales were recorded at 77¾. There was a subsequent fractional reaction, but even the closing price of 77½ was higher than the previous high record, which was 74 on Saturday last. Rumors have been current in Wall Street for some time that the company's earnings are running at a rate sufficient to allow for favorable dividend action by the Directors.

Sears-Roebuck More Active.

Sears-Roebuck, which has been considered for sometime as one of the high-priced issues which it was hard to buy, and which usually is turned over in 200 and 300 share lots, became more active yesterday than it has been for some weeks and gained 4 points. The actual exchange of shares totalled 1,300.

Traction Bonds Strong.

Interborough Rapid Transit 5s showed a marked degree of strength yesterday. Under the impetus of heavy buying, the transactions amounting to more than $400,000, the issue advanced 3 points on the day's trading. The opening was at 50⅝ and from that level the bonds moved up to 53⅝. They touched their low for the year last week at 50¼. A high for the year was made at 75½.

General Motors at New High.

It is not so far back that market traders were predicting 300 for General Motors. With the eventual passing of that mark there began to be talk of 400 for the shares. Yesterday this was surpassed, a gain of 22 points placing the stock at 401. The high yesterday was 405. On the basis of the high price the old shares, for which the present shares are a subdivision of 5 for 1, would be selling at 2025. Rumors of another subdivision continue to be circulated, the basis most frequently mentioned being 10 for 1. Subdivisions in other stock recently have resulted in sharp advances for the subdivided shares. The case of Chandler Motors is a notable example. The old stock was divided on a basis of 3 for 1, and since the new stock was issued it has advanced from below 100 to 140. The present price of the new shares would therefore be the equivalent of 420 for the old.

Sinclair Advances.

There was a substantial forward movement in Sinclair Consolidated shares yesterday that carried the price up to 64⅛, a new high. It was reported that Sinclair stockholders had been heavy subscribers to the new stock. While rights were extant the stock was under a depression. Yesterday the trading was in large volume, with profit taking causing a reaction at the close.

Steel and Coal.

There is much interest in the effect which the coal strike will have upon the steel companies which are just recovering from the steel strike. In the case of some a long interference with coal production would doubtless cause difficulties. On the other hand, the larger companies are well equipped to withstand a temporary shortage. The United States Steel Corporation, through the Frick Coal Company, has its own supplies, and insofar as can be learned there has been little or no withdrawal of workmen.

BONDS ON STOCK EXCHANGE

RESERVE BANK ACTS TO REDUCE LOANS

Directors in New York District Announce Increase in Rediscount Rates.

MOVE TO DEFLATE CREDIT

Step Follows Several Warnings Issued Against Overspeculation.

Directors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank have decided to increase rediscount rates, according to a communication sent out to member banks in this district last night. The new rates, which take effect immediately, together with the rates which they replace, are:

	New. Rate.	Old. Rate.
ADVANCES.
For advances not exceeding fifteen days to member banks on their promissory notes secured by:
(a) United States certificates of indebtedness, Liberty bonds, Victory notes, and customers' notes secured by any of the foregoing	4½	4
(b) United States certificates of indebtedness bearing 4¾% interest	4¼	4
(c) Eligible commercial paper	4¾	4
REDISCOUNTS.
For notes, drafts, and bills of exchange having a maturity at time of rediscount of not more than 90 days	4¾	4¾
(Including rediscounts, for periods not exceeding 15 days, of eligible paper having a maturity at time of rediscount of more than 15 days)	4¾	4¾
For notes, drafts, and bills of exchange having a maturity of not in excess of 90 days secured by Liberty bonds or Victory notes	4½	4¼
For trade acceptances and bankers' acceptances having a maturity at time of rediscount of not more than 90 days	4½	4½
For agricultural paper having a maturity at time of rediscount of more than 90 days but not more than six months	5	5

Following the announcement of the new schedule, Governor Benjamin Strong gave out the following statement:

"The reason for the advance in rates is the evidence that some part of the great volume of credit, resulting from both Government and private borrowing, which war finance required, as it is released from time to time from Government needs is being diverted to speculative employment rather than to reduction of bank loans. As the total volume of the Government's loans is now in process of reduction, corresponding reductions in bank loans and deposits should be made to insure an orderly return of normal credit conditions."

Move Toward Credit Deflation.

In leading financial circles this move of the Reserve Bank was interpreted to mean that the Government, acting through the Reserve System, has taken the first step toward deflation of credit. The possibility of this step being taken had been widely discussed for some time, and, while many had expected an advance in rates would be undertaken before the end of the year, there was general surprise that it should be taken now, when the final installment on the Victory Liberty note issue of last Spring is not due until a week from next Saturday. In most places it was believed that Reserve Bank rates would be unchanged until then, at the earliest.

It was recalled in conjunction with the advance that the Federal Reserve Board several times had issued "warnings" against overspeculation, and one or two of the individual reserve banks had covertly threatened to advance discount rates if the charge that some bankers were availing themselves of the relatively low rates to foster speculation were substantiated.

In most of the Reserve Board's utterances care was taken to explain that overspeculation did not obtain only in the stock market, but prevailed in all parts of the country, and concerned itself with real estate and commodities of all kinds, including foodstuffs and fuel. Thus while as far as was known in this city yesterday no other reserve bank has announced an advance in rediscount rates, it was generally believed the other eleven banks soon would advance their rates to conform with the New York standard.

Bankers pointed out that an incongruous condition would prevail if the other reserve banks failed to adjust their rates, for if they did not there probably would be a decided shift of loans out of this district and into other districts, and in protection to themselves, it was believed, the other banks would have to raise their rates.

Rediscount Rate Changes Important.

The most important alteration in the rediscount rates announced were those based upon rediscounts of bills secured by war bonds and Treasury certificates of indebtedness. In the past, with the fifteen-day 4 per cent. rate, it was possible for member banks to pledge their Government bonds and certificates with the reserve bank and profit by the operation to the extent of the "spread," which was the difference between the rate of interest the Government obligations paid and the rate the bank charged for rediscounting.

In the case of most Liberty bonds, this amounted to one-quarter of 1 per cent for the bonds paid 4¼ per cent., while the banks could borrow money on these securities at 4 per cent. from the Reserve Bank. In the case of most Treasury certificates, the "spread" was one-half of 1 per cent. Under the new schedule, those spreads are eliminated and it was believed the new rates would encourage banks to liquidate their indebtedness at the Reserve Bank by paying off their loans.

Loans at the Reserve Bank have been mounting rapidly of late. On Jan. 1 the total of member bank borrowings at the Reserve Bank amounted to $684,238,117. This was increased to $805,242,744 on July 11, but was reduced to the low point of the year on Sept. 19, when the total was $528,591,767.

Since then the expansion has been steady, and last week, under date of Oct. 31, the bank reported loans to member institutions amounting to $833,021,921, a high record for all time. Of the total, $702,141,939 represented rediscounts and advances on bills secured by Government obligations and $130,879,982 on rediscounts of bills otherwise secured. These items compare with $742,901,041 for Government paper discounts and $62,341,703 for other rediscounts on July 11.

Alabama Great Southern Report.

The report of the Alabama Great Southern Railway for the year ended Dec. 31, 1918, shows in its corporate income account a surplus of $1,109,425. This after the deduction of preferred dividends was equivalent to $5.93 a share earned on the $7,830,000 common stock as compared with $10.64 a share earned in the preceding year. The Federal operating figures contained in the report show that the profit for the period accruing to the Railroad Administration was $335,391.

HUYLERS, $25,000 A SHARE.

Daughter's Suit Reveals Value of Candy Firm's Stock.

It was brought out in the course of a motion made before Judge Delahanty in the Supreme Court yesterday by John J. Crawford, counsel for Martha A. Gaines, for a writ of mandamus to require Frank and Coulter Huyler, as officers of Huylers, candy manufacturers and distributers, to permit the inspection of the company's books in connection with a suit brought by Mrs. Gaines to recover fifty shares of stock in Huylers which she alleges were owned by her father and left to her, that she had agreed to sell twenty-one shares of stock for $535,000, or at the rate of more than $25,000 a share.

Opposing counsel objected to the granting of the writ on the ground that Mrs. Gaines, who is the daughter of the late David Huyler, had sold her stock. In reply to this counsel for Mrs. Gaines insisted that the contract was not a sale, but only an agreement to sell, and that only $125,000 of the $535,000 which had been agreed upon as the purchase price for twenty-one shares of stock had been paid on account. He also explained to the court that the contract between Mrs. Gaines and Frank and C. Huyler provided that the shares remain on the books in Mrs. Gaines's name until the entire amount agreed upon is paid. Decision was reserved.

The motion yesterday was the outgrowth of a suit brought by Mrs. Gaines in the Supreme Court for the recovery of fifty shares of stock in Huylers formerly owned by her father, which he willed to her. She also alleged that the late John S. Huyler improperly had this stock transferred into his own name after the death of her father. In this action she also asks for an accounting of the dividends paid to the late John S. Huyler or his estate, which were probably very heavy, as it is shown in the contract for the sale of the twenty-one shares of stock mentioned in court yesterday that the total capital of the concern is only 150 shares of $100 par value.

SHOWS FEWER FAILURES.

Figures compiled by R. G. Dun & Co. show that the failures in October totaled 463 and the liabilities $6,871,966. Commenting on this the report says:

"Excepting the 412 defaults of last July, the October insolvencies are the smallest in number of any month of which there is record, and the indebtedness, although larger than in August and July of the present year, is less than in any October back to 1905.

"Comparing with the 660 business reverses for $13,980,[illegible] of October, 1918, the numerical reduction is 29.8 per cent. and the falling off in amount 50.8 per cent., while from the 1,686 failures for $29,702,178 of October, 1914—the high point for the period—decreases of 72.5 and 76.9 per cent. appear. For the ten elapsed months of this year, moreover, defaults have been 39.1 per cent. fewer in number than in the corresponding months of 1918, with a contraction of 60 per cent. in liabilities."

COTTON ADVANCES TO NEW HIGH PRICES

LIVERPOOL DEMAND HEAVY

Southern Spot Markets Continue Upward, Galveston Going to 41½ Cents.

There was another sharp advance in yesterday's cotton market and along with new high records for December and January, March also moved into new high figures for the season. The two first-named options scored new high records last week, but yesterday was the first time March had exceeded its high figures of last July. May sold to within 5 points of its previous high record of 36 cents, and the rest of the market was correspondingly strong.

The influences which sent prices skyward at the opening were the bad over-Sunday crop and weather reports and the extreme strength at Liverpool, where the market was both vigorous and strong. Also, the Southern spot markets kept up their rapid advance, showing gains of ½ to a full cent from last week's closing figures, with Galveston sending in the unprecedented price of 41½ cents, and with Houston, Dallas, and Fort Worth all quoting the staple at very close to 41 cents. The New York spot market was up 40 points to 39.05, and all other spot markets of any consequence, with the exception of Memphis, which was unchanged, reporting unusual strength.

The futures market here opened strong, up 10 to 25 points, and then continued the climb until the net advances had run to 40 or 50 points. There was a slight reaction around midday, but the market picked up again in the afternoon and carried quotations up to their high figures, which were in some cases up as much as 60 and 70 points. September of the 1920 crop sold at the greatest gain of the day, rising to 33 cents.

A surprising feature of the Liverpool market was the great strength in spots, which sold at 24.42d, in the face of very large receipts, amounting to 21,000 bales, of which 18,000 bales were American. Recent reports from Liverpool have spoken of a "squeeze" due to disappointing receipts from America, and because of the labor difficulties at New Orleans and elsewhere along the Gulf, there has been some slackening in exports. But against this, Savannah has been sending out good quantities and receipts at Liverpool recently have been above the average. Yesterday they were very large, yet the market sold at the best price of the season, up 17d, equal to 34 points, over Friday's quotation.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

TO MAKE PASSENGER CAR.

New York Air Brake Co. Will Increase Motor Output.

The New York Air Brake Company, which has for some time been manufacturing motor trucks, has decided to enter the passenger car field and before long will begin production of its first model. The truck production is still small, but it is planned eventually to bring this up to 20,000 annually. The manufacture of motor vehicles is part of the reconstruction plan of the company in its change from war to peace endeavors.

There is no definite announcement to be made at present as to the details of the passenger car which will be produced. It is asserted, however, that there will be several innovations.

Back of Your Bond

CHARACTER, to the experienced banker, is the real measure of credit. It is of equal importance to the investor who, in purchasing bonds, is extending credit to the borrowing corporation. HALSEY, STUART & Co. bonds are the "promises-to-pay" of corporations of character—corporations of established credit and proven earning ability, conservatively capitalized and capably managed. Representative of these are the 6% Debentures of Armour and Company.

Our current list of offerings N. A. 35, among which are several adaptable to your needs, will be sent upon request. You will incur no obligation nor will the amount of your contemplated investment make any difference in the character of our service.

BILLS TO MAINTAIN A MERCHANT MARINE

Senator Jones Says the Government Will Own 8,000,000 Tons Next Year.

TOTAL CLOSE TO BRITAIN'S

Measures Are Introduced Providing for a Federal Corporation to Operate Government's Ships.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Predictions that ships flying the American flag will almost equal the tonnage of Great Britain by the end of 1920 were made in the Senate today by Senator Jones, Republican, of Washington, Chairman of the Senate Commerce Committee, in introducing his bills proposing alternative plans for a permanent Federal shipping policy. Both bills were referred to the Commerce Committee for consideration.

With prospective completion of the Government's war shipbuilding program by December 31, 1920, Senator Jones said the United States, including coastwise vessels, will have a merchant fleet of about 18,000,000 tons, nearly that of Great Britain and, he added, the two nations will control about two-thirds of the world's tonnage:

"We do not desire and it is not our purpose to drive other nations off the sea," said Senator Jones, "but we do want to do and we ought to do at least our proportionate part of our own and the world's carrying trade, so that our commerce shall have a fair chance in the world's markets and we may hereafter be fully prepared for any emergency."

Regarding the Government's future shipping policy, Senator Jones said about 8,000,000 of the 12,000,000 tons under the American flag in foreign trade will be Government owned.

"We may differ about Government ownership," he said, "but that can be no issue here. The Government owns these ships, whether we will or no. We must not allow private parties to take the cream of this shipping and let the Government hold the balance to dispose of at a great sacrifice. Grant that Government ownership should end as soon as may be, it must be brought about as nearly as may be without unnecessary sacrifice.

"No one can reasonably hope that private enterprise and capital, in the face of foreign competition and handicapped by our own inexperience, will be able to absorb and take over all this shipping in a short while."

Senator Jones also contended that unless private capital can take over the plant constructed by the Government at Camden, N. J., now operated through the New York Shipbuilding Company, it should be retained and used for the construction of the large ships for which there are no other facilities.

In explanation of his bill to create a merchant marine corporation under Government control to operate the Government fleet for not more than thirty years, but without competing with privately established lines, Senator Jones said:

"We now have the United States Shipping Board acting in a dual capacity. It was intended to be a great regulatory Governmental agency, and is in fact doing the work of a great corporation. It cannot well serve both ends. What I propose is to divorce the Shipping Board entirely from building, selling, or operating ships and allow it to do the things it was created to do, and create a corporation separate and independent of it to operate, maintain, and dispose of our ships in such a way as to give us an adequate merchant marine on a permanent basis."

Alexandria

A CITY of dominating importance in both ancient and modern times, not only as Egypt's commercial gateway to the Mediterranean, but as the centre of international strife in the Eastern Mediterranean district. Alexandria has a population of over 400,000—chiefly Mohammedan.

The port owes its two splendid harbors to its founder, Alexander the Great, who extended a mole several hundred feet to enclose them. Its capture by the Turks in 1517, and the discovery about the same time of the American sea route to India, gave Alexandria a setback from which rapid recovery did not begin until the end of the eighteenth century.

About nine-tenths of the entire trade of Egypt now passes through Alexandria.

The commerce of the port in 1916 totaled $284,195,000, with imports valued at $106,109,000 and exports at $178,086,000. Although Egypt's need and ability to purchase in foreign markets were perhaps greater during this year than in any preceding period, its requirements could not be supplied, owing to the restrictions occasioned by the war at that time.

With the conclusion of the war and the development of shipping these drawbacks will disappear, and promising trade conditions bid fair to develop.

Creating Good Will in Canada

Good will is one of the most valuable assets a business can possess. It is best built on a foundation of service.

DURING the twelve months ending September, 1919, Canadian imports from the United States decreased $125,000,000. This was due partly to the high premium demanded in Canada for American funds, partly to the fact that a fluctuating rate of exchange made the future profits of Canadian importers of American goods problematical.

Individually American exporters cannot hope to affect the factors governing the situation in the Canadian exchange market. They can, however, mitigate its effect on their Canadian customers by protecting them against fluctuations in exchange at the time they contract to ship goods. This can be done in a number of ways. The officers of the New York Agency of the Union Bank of Canada will be pleased to suggest methods best suited to special needs.

Why not protect your Canadian business by serving your Canadian customer?

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

The quotations are for six months' paper.

Buying from Description.

It is a far cry from the regular selling methods of a few years ago to those which featured many of the openings of Spring clothing lines. Selling from reference samples, for instance, appeared to be a rather haphazard way of introducing goods to a customer a short time back. But not even samples were used in many cases during the recent openings. One house, for instance, sold on a description of the models, which was tendered by the salesman before the sample lines were obtained. Quite a good deal of business was taken in this way.

More Underwear Orders Booked.

The two leading Southern manufacturers of men's cotton ribbed underwear have opened their lines for March, April, and May delivery. This is the way the prices run: Ten-pound shirts and drawers, $1.50; 11-pound shirts and drawers, $1.35; 15-pound union suits, $14.50; 16-pound union suits, $15.50, and 16-pound two-thread union suits, $16.50. It is understood that the prices will be 25 cents a dozen higher for shirts and drawers, and 50 cents higher for union suits, when the same lines are opened for July, August, and September delivery. A large amount of business is being booked on the March-May goods at the prices given.

Sold Up on Spring Line.

One of the foremost dress goods houses yesterday announced that the Spring line had just been sold up. A review of the business done on coatings showed that materials on the soft-faced bolivia order were the best sellers. The colors desired were navy blue and light blues, browns, and tan shades. For the season, then, brown, which was formerly a first-line color, has taken second place. Deliveries, it was stated, are expected to be an improvement over those for Fall, although some curtailment of the ordinary output is still noted.

Lace Prices Cut No Figure.

The high prices asked for laces appear to cut no figure in the buyer's mind at the present time. An instance was related yesterday where an up-State buyer purchased several pieces of beaded lace costing $36 a yard. This order was supplemented by further purchases of material priced at $18 a yard. Representative houses report an active business with the demand well distributed over all offerings. Foreign laces have become short owing to the harbor tieup, which prevented the goods either from being unloaded or from leaving the piers. The lace trade looks for a white season next Spring and Summer, which will mean continued prosperity for the business.

Still Top the Mode.

Mole, seal, squirrel, beaver and kolinsky are again the favored furs for millinery purposes this season, despite the fact that they have held this position several times in recent years. While women seem willing enough to keep on buying hats made of these furs they are not content to accept the same treatment of them. The result is that the designers have had to use their wits quite a bit in working out new ideas. In some of the newest hats of the season Chantilly lace and fur are prettily combined. A particularly popular combination is kolinsky fur with brown or black Chantilly lace. Among the odd things seen here in hats are some that are made of white lamb's wool.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

A pretty fair business was put through in the local market for gray goods yesterday, in spite of its being "a day between." Good-sized sales of 38½-inch 64-60s were made at 19 cents for November-January delivery, while for shipment in April, May and June the same goods sold at 18¾ cents. For this month and next, business was done on 39-inch 68-72s and 72-76s at 23 and 24½ cents, respectively. Buyers paid 16¼ cents for January-February lots of 38½-inch 60-48s. In the sheetings additional sales of 5-yard goods were made at 16¾ cents, for January-February delivery. Fifteen cents was paid for similar shipments of 150-yard sheetings. Fine-yarn goods and the clothing numbers sold well, the latter especially so, at full market prices.

Between Devil and Deep Sea.

A garment manufacturer expressed himself yesterday as "between the devil and the deep sea" as far as his buying of dress goods for next Spring is concerned. "My best judgment tells me not to plunge in the silk and woolen markets under present conditions and, yet, not to take care of my full requirements will force me to buy later at much higher prices from the jobber if a heavy demand for merchandise comes next Spring. What it comes down to is that if business proves good next Spring I must put in heavy orders for materials now. If it isn't, I am loaded with goods that cannot be sold. And if I wait until later, the market will be 'sold up' on me and I will be at a disadvantage competing with the house that bought from the manufacturers and not from the jobbers. We are all between the devil and the deep sea."

Effect of Misstatements.

The publicity given the retraction by the former Attorney General of statements made which were considered to reflect on the loyalty of a leading dress goods manufacturer, was much discussed yesterday in the market. Another case was mentioned of a similar kind where a mill organization was wrongfully described as being administered by the Alien Property Custodian when the fact was that only a minority holding of the stock was in enemy hands. Although the Government office authorized a correction of this report some time after, the reaction did not get the same publicity that the original story did, with the result that the reputation of the business suffered. In the discussion of the whole matter in the market yesterday, the feeling seemed to prevail that "there is little sentiment in business" and that all ill-feeling due to the war has about disappeared even at this early date.

A Peculiar Specification.

One of the most peculiar specifications that the underwear trade has ever seen is contained in a Government circular calling for sealed bids for 2,400 union suits. The invitation to bid on the goods in question was issued from Washington under date of Oct. 31. Not only is the smallness of the quantity wanted out of the ordinary, but the fact that union suits are sought is also interesting. A third point of interest to the trade is that the invitation should be issued while the War Department is still endeavoring to dispose of goods accumulated during the period of the war. The most unusual point of all, however, is the specification that the goods must be of a certain patented type or the "equal" thereof. No one in the trade seems to know just what is meant by the word "equal," or how anything could be made like the specified garment without violating the patent covering it.

Says Furs Are Moving Well.

Local manufacturing furriers are loath to admit that the unseasonable weather is having any detrimental effect on their business, though they are not so sanguine about what may happen to duplicate orders if the thermometer persists in staying up. It was said yesterday that the success of the fur business really depended much less on the weather than on a prosperous condition of the country. It was pointed out that if the weather had anything to do with it there would be few sales of Summer furs, and it was further said that women are buying furs this Fall as much because they are very fashionable as for their warmth. Many women who ordinarily would buy furs for their warmth, it was asserted, will doubtless not buy them at all this Fall because of the high prices. It is those who are not so practical that are supplying most of the present business.

OHIO BANS RIPE OLIVES.

12 Deaths Bring Warning Against Eating or Selling Them.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 3.—As a result of seven deaths at Canton, Ohio, recently, and five fatalities at Detroit from eating ripe olives, the State Dairy and Food Department and the State Department of Health today warned citizens against eating ripe olives and warned dealers against selling them until further notice.

Local health officers are requested to forbid their sale.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

The real estate holdings of the late George F. Johnson in the Longwood Avenue section of the Bronx were sold at public auction yesterday in the Vesey Street Salesroom by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, for a total of $601,000 for 225 lots.

The sale began shortly after 1 o'clock, there being about 600 present in the room. Bidding, which was slow at first, became very spirited as the sale advanced, and by 3 o'clock 139 lots had been disposed of, for a total of $425,300, an average of $3,059 a lot. Among the first property offered was a plot of thirteen lots, running to a point at the junction of Leggett Avenue and the Southern Boulevard. It was started at $15,000, and finally sold to John Jordia for $25,000. Lots on the Southern Boulevard within a block of the Longwood Avenue subway station sold for as low as $1,950, while the corner of the Southern Boulevard and 156th Street was bought by Samuel Jackson for $2,500, and the inside lot adjoining for $2,250. Julius Schneller purchased the five adjoining lots on the Southern Boulevard for $1,950 each, and Joseph M. Levine the seven adjoining for the same price. Jacob Leitner, the operator and builder, purchased a plot of nine lots on the corner of Hunts Point Avenue and Whitlock Avenue for $126,700, and a few minutes later refused a $13,000 profit on his purchase. Among other large buyers were Adolph Guttman, S. Burland, John Kadel, L. Roseman, David Jacknowitz, and Daniel Pasto.

With the closing out of the Longwood section holdings of the Johnson estate interest will turn to the sale to be held by Mr. Day today, in the Vesey Street Salesroom, involving valuable Bronx terminal property and 986 lots located on both sides of Hunts Point Avenue, between the terminal and subway lines.

The terminal property, comprising ninety acres, to be offered in eight parcels, is the first of its kind in New York to be sold at auction. It is Auctioneer Day's belief that, as this valuable industrial and shipping property is to be sold for whatever it will bring, prominent business and shipping concerns seeking highly improved and finely bulkheaded deep-water frontage will acquire sites at today's auction.

Yesterday Robert Dollar, the Pacific Coast steamship man, signed contracts for the purchase of fourteen and a half acres at Hunts Point, through Joseph P. Day, from the Bronx Terminal Company, for use as the New York terminal of a New York to Shanghai direct freight and passenger service through the Panama Canal.

It is expected that some lots will go as low as $400 at today's sale.

100-Year Lease in Times Square.

Max Spiegel of the Strand Theatre, who was reported to have purchased the Fitzgerald Building, on the southeast corner of Broadway and Forty-third Street, made the following statement yesterday: "The statement made by the Klaw & Erlanger office in yesterday's papers that their lease on the George M. Cohan Theatre does not expire till 1922 and that we are not to take over the Cohan theatre this year, is correct. We have leased the Fitzgerald Building, in which the George M. Cohan Theatre is located, for a period of one hundred years. We take possession of the building next month, but the Klaw & Erlanger interests have a lease of the theatre until 1922, at which time we will take over the theatre."

FARM FOR MACY EMPLOYES.

Department Store Provides Place for Rest and Recreation.

With the idea of providing healthful recreation and rest for employes, R. H. Macy & Co. have purchased the Todd Lake Farm at Burlingham, Sullivan County, the property of Benjamin F. Todd. The farm will be at the disposal of the men and women employed at R. H. Macy & Co.'s department store, Summer and Winter, and it will take the place of the farms and other recreation resorts which the firm has rented in years past for the recuperation and pleasure of employes.

Considerable additions have been made to the farm buildings so as to accommodate a greater number of persons. The firm has always taken an interest in the welfare of its people, who are understood to be under no obligation during their residence at Todd's farm, as they will be charged for room and board, at cost rate, nor will they be under any compulsion to spend vacations at the Macy resort. Robert D. Kohn, architect, will design the changes and additions necessary for an increased number of visitors.

LOOK TO THE FUTURE.
A wonderful future stretches before this great city of New York; more and more commerce will center here, more and larger ships will enter our harbors, more and swifter trains will rush in and out of our stations; more business, involving bigger affairs than ever before, will be transacted in our buildings.

By its very nature, the telephone business must increase as the city develops; as industry grows and expands, its demands for telephone service grow larger and more exacting; it is the duty and privilege of the Telephone Company to anticipate and meet these demands.

There are wonderful opportunities right now in telephone operating; girls and young women are needed to handle the present enormous telephone traffic; these young women will rise to higher positions with greater responsibility and higher salary as the increasing demand for telephone service creates new opportunities in the telephone business; the junior operator of today is the supervisor, assistant Chief Operator and Chief Operator of tomorrow.

Girls 16 to 23 are wanted for for Telephone Operating.

Young women, 21 to 35, for Night Telephone Operating.

PARENTS!
YOUR BOY'S FIRST POSITION OFTEN DECIDES HIS FUTURE.
If your boy has the right stuff in him he will find in this organization a chance to develop his talents if they lean toward finance, engineering, bond salesmanship, financial advertising or financial accounting. For the ordinary "office boy" we have no opening. We want several young men who are willing to start at the bottom and demonstrate to us their fitness to eventually hold responsible executive positions. We believe that the best executives are those who have started at the foundation and have grown up with the business.
We make a practice of filling vacancies in our organization by promoting those who have demonstrated their ability and fitness to hold such positions.
Write us fully regarding your boy or have him call at third floor, 150 Broadway, Wednesday.
